Commissioner and Game Warden Pay Visit to City

M. H. Bauer, state game commissioner, and E. F. Averill, state game warden, were in Roseburg today for a short visit with local sportsmen. They are on their way south by way of Roseburg, Grants Pass and Medford, and will go to Klamath Falls to attend the venison barbecue to be given there. The game officials met members of the local Rod and Gun club this morning, talking over matters pertaining to fish and game protection in Douglas Lake. Mr. Averill states that he expects to return to Roseburg in the near future for the purpose of visiting the game commission's trout hatchery at Rock Creek. The commission will make a determined effort to stock the fishing streams of the state heavily, he says, in order to make up for the inroads on game fish made by the advent of fishermen along the streams near automobile roads.

AD TO BE GIVEN IN SETTLING THE TUMALO DISTRICT

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 12.—The land settlement department of the Chamber of Commerce pledged assistance in settling the Tumalo irrigation project in Central Oregon at a conference held yesterday afternoon.

E. M. Wright, president of the board of directors of the irrigation district; D. J. McLelland, district manager and State Engineer Rhea Lund and the members of the land settlement committee were present.

Approximately 2600 acres of the land are ready for settlement now, an additional 1500 acres will be ready for farming by Christmas, and an additional 4,000 acres will be available during the coming year. It was explained by McLelland.

The land, he said, would be sold for $1 an acre, with a water lien of $1.25 to $1.50, bringing the total cost to approximately $60 an acre.

Interest payment on the construction charge will begin January 1, 1927, and payment on the principal will start in 1933 and continue 10 years.

SERVICE AWARD FOR RODGERS PROPOSED BY COL. MITCHELL

"Stormy Petrel" of Air Service Advocates Overland Flight From New York to Peking China.

(Associated Press Local Wire.) SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 12.—An overland flight from New York to Peking, China, by two transport airplanes now being constructed, and awarding of the distinguished service medal to Commander John Rodgers and his crew were suggested today by Colonel William Mitchell, eighth corps area air officer, in his fourth formal statement.

Colonel Mitchell said the two transport airplanes are of proved design and are able to go 4,500 miles without taking on fuel. He pointed out the ships could stop at Nome, Alaska, for re-fueling and the trip from New York to Peking could be made in from 60 to 80 hours.

In advocating the immediate decorating of Commander Rodgers and his men, Colonel Mitchell said "their tenacity, good judgment and physical endurance are worthy of our highest type of American manhood."

The eighth corps area office pointed out that 40 per cent of all deaths in the commissioned personnel of the whole army are suffered by the fliers.

"Our losses of fliers in time of peace, exceed those of some countries in times of war," Colonel Mitchell said.

His statement follows: "Commander Rodgers and the crew of the airplanes should be decorated with the Distinguished Service medal for their feat in saving themselves from almost sure destruction in the Pacific. Their tenacity, good judgment and physical endurance are worthy of our highest type of American manhood."

"The loss of life at the present time among flying men is appalling. "In connection with long distance flying, it is interesting to note that there are two airplanes in this country about to be finished that are of the proved type and are able to go 4,500 miles without taking fuel. Why should it not be a good idea to fly with these overland from New York to Peking, stopping once at Nome, Alaska, for fuel and then going on to the Asiatic continent, with a total elapsed time from New York of from 60 to 80 hours, where now by steamship and railroad it takes four or five weeks? Think of the saving on commercial paper and bank exchange that would accrue from a service of this kind, think of the advantages to business and the benefit to civilization. With a service of this kind, it would not be necessary to take diphtheria serum from the south coast of Alaska, by dog team to Nome occupying weeks of time, freezing the serum and not only getting it there late, but getting it there in a useless condition, when it could be sent from New York in a comparatively few hours."

"These are just a few of the things for the people to think about."

Declaring he did not desire to boost the stock of any airplane manufacturing concern, Colonel Mitchell declined to state where the two army transport airplanes he referred to are being built.

He said he hoped for an immediate showdown on the charges he has made.

"It's the move of the American people now," he said. "I feel I have done my full duty in pointing out the defects in our service and suggest remedies. I will see the verdict and pleasure of the people of America."

ASTORIA, Ore., Sept. 12.—Ranchers by the Nehalem valley, re-inforced by deputies from the sheriff's office, are searching the forests in the lower Nehalem valley for Rudolph Barth, Astoria post clerk who left the town of Elsie early Thursday on a deer hunt and who has not been heard from since.

The district about Elsie is wild and remote and extreme uneasiness is felt for Barth's safety. He expected to return to Elsie before nightfall Thursday, but two nights have elapsed without word from the hunter.

He was not equipped for camping.

SLATTERY GIVEN K. O. IN 11TH ROUND BY BERLENBACH

(Associated Press Local Wire.) NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Paul Berlenbach of Astoria, N. Y., world's light heavyweight champion, successfully defended his title last night when he scored a technical knockout over Jimmie Slattery of Buffalo, N. Y., in the eleventh round of a 15-round encounter at the American league baseball park. Unable to come back, the Buffa-

to boy went down in the 11th round of a scheduled 15-round battle under the terrific punches of the champion after gamely fighting back under a grueling, relentless attack. He was floored six times before Referee Haley awarded Berlenbach a technical knockout.

The result was forecast early in the battle. Slattery passed a vigorous first-round assault only to run into a heavy storm of punches in the second. The champion plied the left hook to the jaw. The Buffalo boy, reeling but instinctively fighting back, refused to go down and the crowd arose as one in a tremendous ovation.

In the third round Berlenbach blinded his challenger with a vicious volley of left hooks, but Slattery came back with rallies in the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds which drove the champion to the defensive.

Berlenbach sent home a crushing left to the head in the eighth. The challenger was groggy again in the ninth and soon after the start of the tenth he went down for the first time under a savage left. Berlenbach, sensing the end, pursued his foe with a volley of lefts and rights from which the fleeing Slattery could find no cover.

Slattery fighting the first 15-round bout of his career was no longer able to protect himself. He sagged to the floor under a terrific left at the start of the 11th. When he got on his feet Berlenbach floored him again with a left hook for a count of nine. Slattery was barely able to rise. He reeled, corner and the champion smothered him with gloves as he sagged on the ropes. There the fight ended—one minute and 25 seconds after the start of the round.

Berlenbach left the ring with liberal applause, but it was nothing to the long ovation for Slattery, who weighed only 161½ lb the champion's 172.

CAVEMAN TACTICS OF HUSBAND LEAD TO DIVORCE SUIT

Simultaneously with the issuance of a warrant for the arrest of Lester N. Smith, charging him with assault and battery, a divorce complaint has been filed by his wife, Mabel Smith, the victim of his alleged caveman proclivities.

According to information given the justice court in a complaint filed by the wife, domestic troubles resulted in a heated argument between Smith and his wife, which ended in a fist fight in which the woman came off second best.

Mrs. Frances Swanson, mother of Mrs. Smith, was also struck as she went to the aid of her daughter.

Smith, who is alleged to have some real estate business, and the trouble was employed for some time in this city as a cook and he and his wife have been recently working at Bandon. The trouble between him and his wife is alleged to have resulted from an accident to Mrs. Swanson's car.

Several days ago Mrs. Smith and her brother, Charles Swanson, drove to Roseburg from Bandon on a hunt for a deer. They had an accident, smashing the wheels, and were unable to return to Bandon as they had planned.

Friday evening Mrs. Smith received some money from her husband and made preparation to return to Bandon next day, but about six o'clock Mr. Smith arrived from Bandon by stage and according to Mrs. Swanson, demanded to know why his wife had not returned.

An argument ensued, but Mrs. Swanson proposed they all go to a show, so they started up the street. A short distance from the house, Mr. Smith began to use his fists, according to Mrs. Swanson, and endeavored to choke and otherwise beat his wife. Mrs. Swanson was also hit in an effort to secure them.

In the fight Mrs. Swanson was also hit in the forehead and neck. Mrs. Smith this morning filed suit for divorce from her husband, Attorney J. O. Watson being her legal representative.

MRS. GODFREY DIES AT SEASIDE

Albert Godfrey, of Seaside, who has been in the Tillamook country on a hunting trip for the past several days, was called home last night upon the receipt of a message of the death of his mother, Mrs. O. F. Godfrey, at the home of her son, Frank, in Seaside. Cause of death was not given, although Mrs. Godfrey has been suffering from heart trouble for a number of years.

Mrs. Godfrey, with her husband, the late O. F. Godfrey, made her home in Roseburg for a number of years, coming here from Stillwater, Minn., with Mr. Godfrey, who was connected with the old Bank County bank here for a number of years. They had their home where the present Wm. Bell home on Jackson street is situated.

About twenty years ago she and her husband moved to Seaside to make their home. Mrs. Godfrey was a life member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and active in church activities. She was a member of the Neighbors of Woodcraft here and was a woman of sterling character. The death of her husband about 5 years ago, will be remembered here. Mr. Godfrey with his son, Albert, was at Seaside in a boat fishing when a storm came in, in which he was drowned and the body never found. Surviving here are three sons, Frank F. Clair, and Albert. The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Methodist church at Seaside, and interment will be at the cemetery there. The news of her death comes as a great shock to her many friends here.

NEWS GLEANINGS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD

(Associated Press Local Wire.) LONDON, Sept. 12.—Castles are being sold in England at bargain rates. Historic mansions of various sizes and ages have been disposed of secretly by members of the gilded aristocracy, because of high taxes and death duties.

In other instances, drastic economies have been made in the administration of great estates, one of those being that of the Duke of Norfolk, which originally employed some 50,000 acres. Arranged to be sold, some of the 17 year old Duke has been placed five years and three in debt of Norfolk. The Dukes of Norfolk have given up the castle for a small cottage in Oxford to be near his son who is attending the university.

The most recent transfer of estate at a 100 figure is that of historic Godfrey in the sale of the Wynne, which was purchased by Jay Mitchell of Colwyn Bay for 2,000 pounds Sterling. Godfrey was the son of a famous Welsh family, the Wynne, until 1678. That part of the original castle which still stands was built in 1555 by Sir John Wynne and for generations has been a favorite haunt of eight-seers. It was restored in 1825.

American tourists have found another place of interest to visit in Great Britain in Abergele castle, the Prince of Wales's Scottish residence near his father's estate at Balmoral. The particular object of curious interest is an unpretentious footprint of Wales in a concrete walk made when the royal heir was seven years old.

The story is that for 24 years the boy's footprint was known only to the prince and two servants present when it was made, but the secret became known to American tourists last year. Now this once quiet and almost deserted estate is said to be swarming with sight-seers.

Abergele often was visited by the prince and his parents before the latter became king and queen and the tale is that the young prince one day bounded across the turf and onto a newly laid pavement before a nurse and policeman could stop him.

Last year the policeman broke a silence of nearly a quarter of a century and told the story to a visiting American.

The sizes of paper are to be standardized in England and the terms "ream" and "quire" used as measures for buying and selling since the time of Caxton are to become obsolete by an agreement arrived at between the federation of master printers and the national association of wholesale stationers and paper makers.

The ream will hereafter be replaced by 1,000 sheets to secure the advance of decimal calculations for the trade.

PARIS, Sept. 12.—Too many deaths and not too few births are said to be the real cause of France's dwindling population. This is just beginning to be brought out by associations formed to combat the tendency toward depopulation of the country.

The French birth rate is comparatively the same as that of other countries. Compared to England it is 19.4 per 1,000 against 19.7 for England, according to figures for 1923, just made available.

Infant mortality in France has been at the appalling high rate of 95 per 1,000. This has been attributed to ignorance and defective hygienic conditions which Minister of Health M. Durafour is seeking to combat by education and an active health campaign.

The venerable statesman M. Clemenceau, recently received a call from an unemployed workman who showed the father of veterans his discharge papers.

The screen comedian is compared with such well known personages as Hindenburg, Einstein, Richard Strauss, Trotsky, Lloyd George, Mussolini, Prandello, Bernard Shaw, Ludendorff, Edison and Ford, none of whom, however, stand a ghost of a chance beside Charlie Chaplin in point of notoriety.

The only rivals worthy of a moment's consideration are believed to be Jackie Coogan and Jack Dempsey. But of Jackie Coogan is said that he will grow up and promptly lose his popularity and Jack Dempsey, after all is said, is really considered a high light only in America and Europe.

Finance Minister Callaux, whose sensational return from prison to power in the short span of five years—like his arch-political enemy Georges Clemenceau—is one of the best hated men in France.

An aristocrat by training, education and temperament, M. Callaux, whose rise to political fame was achieved through leadership of the radical left parties in personal appeal and manner is the very antithesis of the "generally accepted representative of the common people," whose claims he has championed.

He has few close personal friends, but enjoys the unlimited devotion of those he has made.

A few days ago upon entering his automobile at the ministry of finance, the huge wolfhound that always is seated by the chauffeur snapped at one of the correspondents who were talking to M. Callaux.

"This is the most vicious dog I ever owned," exclaimed the minister. "He is always trying to bite my friends."

"The dog must have very little opportunity to bite anyone," came a low but distinct voice from the rear ranks of the group of journalists.

BERLIN, Sept. 12.—Because 74-year old Baron Christof von Drecoll, head of Berlin's most exclusive fashion house, refused to denounce his firm has been compelled to go into bankruptcy.

Baron Drecoll designed gowns and trousseaus for practically all the German princesses and when the "Empress" Hermine started for Holland to join William II in wedding, she stopped in Berlin long enough to have her wedding gown and other clothes made by the firm. Germany's upper 400 were quite as much charmed by the venerable head of the firm as by the creation of his staff for Baron Christof always insisted upon personally waiting on all distinguished customers, and placing the finishing touches upon their gowns.

The Baron, who before the war conducted shops in New York, Vienna, Paris and London, insisted that his clients of distinguished families must not be denied. The gradually led to his liabilities exceeding his assets, but it is expected the bankruptcy proceedings, as the creditors are showing a disposition to make
