CONSTITUTION DAY BANQUET PLANS ARE ABANDONED

Owing to the inability to secure the desired speakers for the proposed Constitution Day banquet, the plan for a joint meeting of the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, with the American Legion and Bar Association members, has been abandoned, and each of these organizations will hold their own patriotic programs. An effort was made to secure Congressman Hawley, Judge Harris, and other prominent speakers, but none of these men could be obtained for Thursday evening, and consequently the program committee decided that it would be better for each organization to arrange its own program.
Constitution week is being observed generally between the dates of September 13 to 19, and particular attention is being given the subject at all civic meetings.

6 CONVICTS MAKE ESCAPE FROM JAIL IN WASHINGTON

SEATTLE, Sept. 15.—Six prisoners, including one convicted slayer and three accused in bank robberies escaped from the King county jail here today, using two pistols and a knife fastened on a pole. They fled in a jail physician's auto.
Those who escaped were Alvin Kibbourne, held for robbery of the State Bank of Bothell, 15 miles north of here June 5, when two companions of his, James Hollock and George Jones—all three living at Everett, Wash., were slain by citizens and Kibbourne was wounded; T. H. Johnson and James Burns, held pending extradition in a $42,000 robbery December 12, of a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada in Nanaimo, B. C.; Lloyd Richardson, convicted with Floyd Slevy and Charles Fairchild of manslaughter for fatally shooting Patrolman R. L. Litsay of this city, when he entered a house on his beat September 25; Ed Watson and Joe Ward. The pistols were used by Watson and Ward. Watson was under sentence of 90 days in jail. While serving this sentence, he was shot in attempting to escape from a stockade near the city. He was then brought into the jail. Ward was under sentence of 23 to 30 years in the state penitentiary for a previous attempt to hold up the Bothell Bank.
The physician and a jailer entered a part of the jail called tank No. 2, to give medical attention to a prisoner. Confronted by the pistols and the knife, the doctor and the keeper went into a cell, in which the six prisoners fastened them.
The prisoners then hurried into an office adjoining the tanks. Here they encountered another guard, whom they menaced with their weapons, and on their way into a corridor, where they passed another guard and went out the rear entrance of the prison.
Investigation was begun as to how this door was opened.
