THE STORE OF VALUES

Today's Markets

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 17.—Visiting buttermakers, attending the National Creamery Buttermakers' association convention here, were treated to a bit of excitement on the dairy exchange yesterday afternoon when bull cliques sought control of the egg market and were bitterly opposed by "bear" interests. Trading was brisk and the competition keen during the entire session. In the egg division approximately 250 cases were sold to stem the advance.

Extras were forced up to 46 cents, then back to 45 cents. A sale of extras was made at 51¢, cents just as the exact number, but it was not counted and the quotation on extras remained at 45 cents, the previous day's close. Firsts too were held at the former level but an advance in pullets and current receipts could not be prevented. Pullets closed a cent higher at 59 cents and current receipts 13¢ higher at 59 cents net.

Outside egg markets continue on the upward trend and this fact or along with the light receipts of fresh stocks helped maintain the local market in a strong position.

Butter firm and higher. Cubes advanced briskly during yesterday's session of the dairy exchange. Extras closed a cent higher at 53 cents. Standard and prime firsts advanced a half cent at 51¢ and 50¢ respectively. The local butter market is in a very strong position. Advances in prices are expected by the trade but no change has been announced by local creamerymen at a late hour today.

The local hog market is now well established at the 26 cent level. Sales of 200 hogs were made yesterday at that figure and other sales reported at high at 26¢. The market is very firm and remaining stocks in strong hands. Investors are looking a hard time. Interesting holders even at the new levels.

Declines in hog prices at the yards is having a weakening effect on country dressed pork. While not enough pork has come during the last two days to actually test the market, buyers along Front street are unwilling to go over 17¢ cents for tons. Choice light veal 5.10¢ at 17 cents.

Live poultry steady and unchanged. Moderate arrivals moving out in a brisk fashion. Springs, especially are in demand at 25 and 26 cents.

BODY SMALL GIRL FOUND BURIED IN AN OLD CESSPOOL

(Associated Press Local Wire.)
STOCKTON, Cal., Sept. 17.—The mystery of the sudden disappearance last December of four-year-old Lenora Auuller, at Tracy, has been solved. The body, encased in a wooden box, was found last night in an abandoned cesspool at the Tracy residence formerly occupied by the child's stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Zamora. They left the town two weeks ago and police are making a state-wide search for them. The body was found by A. Delmuto, who is living on the place and three friends, Andrew Lewicki, Louis Chenave, and Joseph Sartori. They notified the authorities. Delmuto claimed that he had a premonition that the child was buried somewhere on the place. He also said that he had dreamed that her body could be found there. Tuesday he started digging in the cesspool with the result that the body was unearthed.

On being questioned as to the whereabouts of her daughter, Mrs. Zamora told investigators that the child died in the county hospital, but she said in that name had ever been a patient at the institution. Rumors spread among the residents of the district that the child had been murdered and buried on the place. An older girl, Mary Johnson, an adopted child, told that her mother had drowned the little one in a tub of water and hidden the body. Officers who renewed the search after the body reports, failed to locate the body.
