GOOD HEALTH HABITS.

"Any act often repeated soon forms a habit and habits allowed steadily gain in strength. At first it may be but as the spider's web easily broken through, but if not resisted it soon binds with chains of steel."—Edwards.

Good health habits are dependent on the power to show control over the common-place and ordinary situations of life. Habits may become assets or liabilities. Good health habits are assets that contribute to the well being of the individual.

Many people nowadays are complaining that their young folks have drifted away from the old standards. In many of these cases, however, these families have never made any sustained effort to bring up these children according to their good standards.

People who claim to know say that money is all the time being spent in this country for communistic propaganda, financed apparently by the soviet government of Russia. It is declared that these ideas which promise to do so much harm, and which have caused such misery and destitution in the country where they come from, are constantly spreading.

Mrs. Coolidge's smile has become famous on the North shore of Massachusetts where she spent the summer. It is referred to as her "million dollar smile."

Did your wife ever kick about that provision of the income tax law, as to the statement required relative to people's occupations? In the portion of the blank where people name their occupations, she has to write "none," in case she has no outside employment but simply devotes herself to housekeeping at home.

One excellent way to have an automobile smash-up is to insist on your right of way at all street crossings.

DUMBLELL DORA THINKS Woman is never a mystery as long as she dresses the way she does.

If a feller follows the maxim, "Early to bed and early to rise," he'll never meet many well known folks.

It's pitiful to stand around the drug store scales and watch the wimmin folks step lightly on the machine. The look of horror that passes over their countenance would make a short story writer want for words.

Some of those boys who married to avoid the draft have long since wish they'd died for their country.

WHAT THE EARS TELL Now that ears have come back into view, the amount you display is supposed to reveal your situation in life.

Demure, unmarried damsels still have the ear practically hidden. The engaged girls show the tip. Newly married girls expose about half an earful.

Matrons and old maids don't care how much ear they show. They're as careless with their ears as some girls are with their knees.

JAPAN MAPS OUT EXTENSIVE PROGRAM OF ROAD BUILDING.

KOKYO, Sept. 18.—Good roads in Japan are as hard to find as the proverbial haystack needle, but if a bill which is being planned by the Home Department is enacted by the next Diet, automobiles in this country will come in for their own.

PREVENTABLE LOSSES The economic loss from preventable disease in the United States is staggering in its proportions.

These figures are given out by Dr. Frank K. Margetta, who speaks at the armory Friday evening on the subject "How to Be Young at 70."

"This terrific loss in human productivity can and must be checked," says Dr. Margetta. "Manifold must not continue to blunder along and compound the evil by carrying the burden of the sick. It is an unnecessary burden. In the main, because most illness is preventable. Right living habits would reduce the total of illness to a point where it would cease to be a menace to the forward march of civilization.

Such is already being done to educate the public in right living habits, but more remains to be done." "In devoting my time to telling people the simple rules of caring for their body machines, I feel that I am doing an economic service of prime importance. If, for instance, I should be instrumental, through my talk, in giving Roseburg just one more year of productive labor, in the aggregate, I would feel that my visit here was well worth while."

State Press Comment

Sunday a Fizzle?

The Portland papers, having joined in the hula-balloo to secure Billy Sunday and having for several days splattered him all over the front page, have relegated him to the short space with small heads on inside pages, whereupon the reverend stunginger is denouncing the press for the lack of publicity he receives. Probably they also are in league with the devil against him.

Mr. Sunday is engaged in a commercial enterprise, saving souls for a cash consideration, so many dollars subscribed, so many bibles rescued from the burning, and has grown rich in the business. The papers give him all the space, and considerably more, than the news warrants. If he desires additional space, he should utilize the advertising columns.

The Reverend Sunday was brought to Portland by a condition of preachers headed by Mayor Baker, whose cooperation was in latitude for the work of the preachers, in uniting with the alms and dives of the North End, to reject him. Perhaps also, the mayor figured that a great revival was the only practical way of cleaning up the graft in the Portland police department which is under his personal charge. If money is lacking to pay for Sunday publicity, it is up to the mayor to raise it from his other allies, in return for their being left alone.

It is apparent that the Sunday revival has become an old story, are not turning the town upside down and not evoking any pronounced degree of enthusiasm. If they were, we can rest assured, the publicity would be forthcoming, for the subscribers control the policy of all the Portland papers.—Salem Journal.

When Pale Fall Out When pale fall out, the public learns the bitter truth about both of them. While the truth is very likely over-accented and embellished by hatred, there is usually a modicum of real truth that compels attention.

The voters of New York City are learning the truth soon about Mayor Hylan on the one hand and Tammany Hall on the other. At any rate they are learning what Tammany Hall is saying is the truth about Mr. Hylan and vice versa. The contest of charges and counter-charges ended last night. Today the majority primaries are being held and Hylan and Tammany Hall are fighting it out to a decision.

For eight years Mr. Hylan was the Tammany mayor. If he has been as bad as Tammany says he has been, Tammany know it for a long, long time before it made protest. And inasmuch as Mr. Hylan has been a life member of the famous political organization, he has had ample time in which to cry out against its political methods and practices.

But it was not until the two forces clashed that either one was willing to peep on the other.—Albany Democrat.

As to School Taxes Last week the registration in the Portland public schools was a fraction under 5 per cent more than the first week last year.

The ambulance in which she was riding would fall to get her to the hospital before she choked to death. The ambulance struck a hole in the pavement. The bump flung the girl to the top of the vehicle and out came the quarter.

Again, a western man fell to the sidewalk. Physicians pronounced him dead from heart failure. The ambulance carrying him to the morgue struck a hole in the pavement. The bump started the heart pumping again.

There was a time when we all thought that rough roads would bump the life out of us. But it seems as if they bump life back into us.—Portland Journal.

KITCHEN CUPBOARD

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Sandwich Fillings SANDWICH filling is always in season. It is a good plan to keep a list of good combinations. One may not always follow them, but they will be suggestive and helpful.

Chop fine two large hard-boiled, one cupful of cold boiled ham and two cucumber pickles. Make a paste by adding a tablespoonful of mayonnaise. Spread on thinly sliced buttered white bread.

Take a pint of finely chopped chicken, turkey or game, one-half cupful of ground almonds blanched, mix with a cream of mayonnaise dressing. Spread on buttered brown bread.

Chop the desired quantity of olives mix with mayonnaise and spread on slices of buttered bread.

Chop equal quantities of veal and tongue or chicken, moisten with stock from the meat, season well with salt, paprika and scraped onion and a sprig of nutmeg. Spread on buttered graham bread.

Neufchatel cheese softened with a little cream, adding nuts, makes a delicious filling. Use one-half the quantity of pecans, a few chopped olives and spread on buttered brown bread.

To one cupful of ground ham add two cupfuls of chicken, both fine, add a little green pepper finely chopped and mix with mayonnaise. Spread on buttered graham bread.

Soften a little cream cheese with cream and spread on slices of buttered white bread. Cover the cheese with bits of chopped preserved singer and sundried peel.

Crisp lettuce leaves dipped in French dressing and served at once are most tasty.

Chop three hard cooked eggs, season with onion juice and softened butter, spread on buttered bread.

Chop equal parts of pecans and celery and mix with mayonnaise which has been seasoned with grated lemon peel. Spread on thin slices of white bread.

the property owners of the state will pay, but it is clear that the millage tax will not adequately support the university or the Oregon Agricultural college.

There is no way of limiting the attendance at either institution. Standards of scholarship should not be reduced. What, then, is the alternative. Tuition fees? This would be repugnant to the principle of public education. Probably the people would consent to an increased millage tax, but this is doubtful.

Whether one views public education, which in the grammar grades is compulsory, or in the colleges, he must recognize the fact that the demand will steadily increase. No matter how heavily the burden shall become, the taxpayers must bear it.—Portland Telegram.

Not So Bad An Atlantic City girl swallowed a quarter. It lodged in her throat and there was every evidence that the ambulance in which she was riding would fall to get her to the hospital before she choked to death.

The ambulance struck a hole in the pavement. The bump flung the girl to the top of the vehicle and out came the quarter.

Again, a western man fell to the sidewalk. Physicians pronounced him dead from heart failure. The ambulance carrying him to the morgue struck a hole in the pavement. The bump started the heart pumping again.

There was a time when we all thought that rough roads would bump the life out of us. But it seems as if they bump life back into us.—Portland Journal.

PIRATES NOW LEAD NATIONAL LEAGUE

BY SEVEN GAMES

(Associated Press Local Wire.) NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The Pirates are now leading the National League flag race by seven games and the senators are in front in the American league scramble by seven and one-half games.

Roy Kramer limited the Braves to seven singles while his buccaneer team mates rolled up 13 hits for an 11 to 2 verdict yesterday. The Pirates gained half a game, as the Giants were not scheduled.

The Phillies met with a five to 2 defeat in opening a series at Cincinnati Carl Mays beating Ring in a pitching duel.

After Walter Johnson fell victim to the Tigers in the first part of a double header by 12 to 9, Stanley Coveleski twirled the Senators to a 1 to 0 victory in the afterpiece, which was called on account of darkness in the sixth inning. It was Johnson's seventh defeat and Covey's 18th victory of the season.

The Red Sox weakened the Browns' hold on third place by handing them a double shut out, 2 to 0, and 4 to 0. As the Bengals drew an even break with the Griffins, Detroit edged to win one and one-half games of the third rung.

Quinn held the White Sox to seven hits while the Macknacks turned out a six to 3 victory in the final lineup of the clubs this season. In their series with Chicago the Athletics have won 14 games and lost 8.

With Henry Johnson, Florida Rookie, in the box, the Yanks won the final game of a series from the Indians, 5 to 0. It was the third straight victory for the Yanks over Cleveland and in the season's play the Hugen have won 12 of 22 games from the Speaker tribe.

BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL Preparation Day next Sunday. Present and former pupils urged to be in their places. Strangers and newcomers especially invited. Good teachers and a good place to be.

WEATHER BUREAU.

An extensive service maintained by the Weather Bureau, and one that is altogether unique among Government activities, is the marine meteorological work, says the Official Record, a publication issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It extends literally to the ends of the earth and numbers among its active personnel vessel masters and other officers of the world's merchant marine of almost every nationality.

The service is conducted upon a strictly cooperative basis. In return for observational data the Government returns to seamen, by means of various publications and radio broadcasts, meteorological information of value in the operation of shipping. In this work the Weather Bureau cooperates closely with the Hydrographic Office and the Office of Communications of the Navy Department.

The Hydrographic Office publishes and distributes the so-called Pilot Charts, well and favorably known to all mariners. On these charts are portrayed average, or normal, conditions of wind and weather for all the oceans, representing complications of untold thousands of observations, extending over many years. These data are supplied by the Weather Bureau. Other valuable information is furnished by the Hydrographic Office.

In the course of a year the bureau receives observations from about 1,400 different ships and the number of individual observations runs into large figures. Many vessels which report to the bureau never visit an American port. The officers of such vessels learn of the work through other officers who are engaged in the work or note the invitation to cooperate that is carried upon various publications. Those sufficiently interested write to offer their services. Instructions for making and recording observations, printed in English, are supplied to all observers, and, in addition, brief instructions in French, German, Italian, and Spanish are added for the benefit of those observers who are not familiar with English.

In addition to the observations collected by mail the bureau now receives daily many observations transmitted by radio from ships at sea, having in recent years built up an extensive service of this character. The radio service is maintained in connection with the forecast and storm-warning work, and is especially effective in the collection and dissemination of information regarding the West Indian hurricanes.

The ocean meteorological work was begun by Lieutenant Matthew Fontaine Maury, of the United States Navy, in the early fifties of the last century. From the observations collected Maury was able to construct wind and current charts of the oceans and to lay out favorable sailing routes. His work had a profound effect on shipping and won for him world-wide fame and honors. At the present day the observations collected are principally used in constructing daily weather charts, tracing storm tracks, supplying information for use in admiralty cases, and in studying the influence of ocean water temperatures on weather and climate.

ATTEMPTS TO END LIFE BECAUSE DEVIL AFTER HIM SALEM, Ore., Sept. 18.—Charles Davis, 65, who said he had lived in Portland for a number of years was committed to the asylum this morning following an attempt to commit suicide by stabbing himself in the neck with a pocket knife in the city jail last night. Davis had been picked up in a demented condition on the streets by the police. He said he stabbed himself because the devil was chasing him.

PHILIPPINES INFANT MORTALITY EXCEEDED FIVE-YEAR AVERAGE MANILA, Sept. 18.—While remarkable success was achieved in keeping down the rate of general mortality in the Philippine Islands in 1924, the infant mortality increased, the annual report of Dr. Jacobo Fajardo, director of health shows.
