SEATTLE CITY EMPLOYEES HELD IN LOAN SHARK'S GRIP

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 28. — Two thousand of approximately 5,000 municipal employees here are victims of loan agencies commonly called "loan sharks," a recent check of payroll sheets in Comptroller Harry W. Carroll's office disclosed.

The majority of these debt-ridden workers never see their pay checks, which are assigned to the agency when a loan is contracted. After the agency deducts its interest charge the debtor receives what remains.

Though this state has a drastic usury law, making the maximum legal interest rate one percent a month, investigation shows as high as 36 per cent is collected in some instances. To the high interest rates city officials attribute the fact that some borrowers cannot free themselves from debt.

The agencies operate under a pawnbrokers' license law, which permits a greater interest charge, though they are not actual pawnbrokers.

Chief of Police Severyns estimated amounts owned by his patrolmen ranged from $50 to $600, with $100 the average. He said 120 men owing approximately $12,000 paid $360 monthly interest.

Men's suits cleaned and pressed, $1.50. Roseburg Cleaners, phone 472.

SAYS CHURCH FOUNDED FOR SINNER AS WELL AS SAINT

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—Believing that Christ founded the church to become a home for sinners as well as a school for saints, Rt. Rev. Irving P. Johnson, bishop of Colorado, said that "unless and until the congregations of the church reflect Christ's attitude toward the sinner, they will never produce saints acceptable to Him."

Bishop Johnson, who recently denounced the proposal to strike "obey" from the marriage service of the Episcopal church, today made public the conclusions of the Commission on Evangelism, of which he is chairman, that will be presented to the convention in New Orleans beginning October 7.

"It is our judgment that any diocese or congregation which limits its activities to the culture of its own people and measures its responsibilities by the comfort of its own constituency is acting in opposition to the commands of Christ," said the report.

"Bishops, priests and laymen have an equal responsibility to place Evangelism first in the church's program; not merely by the giving of money, but also by personal service rendered to the least of these brethren."

URGES MORE CUBAN WOMEN ENTER NATION'S BUSINESS

HAVAA, Sept. 28. — A greater part in the nation's commerce should be given women, Rogerio Zayas Bazan, secretary of interior, informed the Cuban chamber of commerce.

"This should be done," he said, "not only in obeying Cuban laws, but also in response to the current progress of civilized nations which have formented universal expansion of women's activities in economic mediums, to maintain life without sinking into vice or criminality."

It is not only in the North American democracy that women are able by personal work to maintain the dignity and honor of their homes, but also in the Hispanic nations this facility has been extended to women, in some cases by employment as street car conductors and motorists.

Pharmacists clerks, department store clerks, telephone operators, and stenographers are posts the secretary believes could be better served by women, in view of past experience in such positions in this country, than by men who would then be released to do other work more compatible to their sex.

GERMAN LABORATORY SUCCEEDS IN HELIUM MELTING EXPERIMENT

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—Helium has been melted for the first time in Germany at the Berlin Charlottenburg Polytechnic, which has been equipped with a frigorific laboratory. For the melting of Helium an excessively low temperature is required, 437 degrees below zero.

Hitherto the only places in Europe where this feat has been accomplished was in the laboratory of Professor Kamerlingh Onnes in Leidon, Holland.

At the frigorific laboratory of the Charlottenburg Polytechnic a specialty is made of experimenting with and studying all matter and the changes produced when exposed to extremely low temperatures.

OREGON U. SQUAD NOT YET IN GOOD SHAPE FOR OPENER

EUGENE, Oregon, Sept. 28. — Coach Dick Smith of the University of Oregon football crew is dissatisfied with his team, following a stiff workout Saturday. With the first game of the season scheduled for Saturday, here, against the Multnomah Athletic Club of Portland, it begins to appear that the Webfooters are getting off to a slow start again this season.

Last year, it will be remembered, Oregon was held to a scoreless tie by Willamette in the opening game of the season. Oregon should have won, but the team was ragged. Now, again, the lineup is ragged.

The change from the Michigan system, as taught last year, to the new style introduced by Smith has been causing no small amount of discomfort to the football men. The new style is speedier, and as speed is to be the keynote of the Oregon aggregation this year, it is believed better. But it is slow in getting started. First season games are the ones that are worrying Smith.

Stiff scrimmages will be in order this week, in an effort to whip the team into shape. New faces may be seen in the varsity lineup, as the failure of some of the lettermen to get into condition has proved a disappointment to the coaching staff.

Jack Bliss, veteran end and guard, injured the same leg that was hurt in the Idaho game last year, while he was scrimmaging Saturday.

The new worry of the coach is for a quarterback. At present Louis Anderson, last year's quarter, and Fred Harrson, ineligible last year, seem to have the best chance for the job.

ALASKA SEEKS OLD COAST GUARD BOAT AS MUSEUM

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28. — Many proposals are being put forward for disposing of the Coast Guard cutter Bear, when she retires from nearly half a century of duty in the Arctic wastes of Alaska, but none have been approved. The Coast Guard has under consideration the construction of a modern vessel to relieve the Bear, but is loath to part with the veteran craft that forms an integral part of its history.

An Alaskan Chamber of Commerce has sought to have the Bear utilized as a floating museum for America's Northwestern Territory. The Explorers' Club has put in a bid for the ship's bell. There are officers in the Coast Guard who say the vessel will ultimately be a training vessel for the service, probably at San Diego, California.

Doing duty since the early '80s, the Bear has been known to the Esquimoe as "oomiak puk" (powerful big ship). Recently Mrs. Aneva Mattson, a native-born Eskimo, educated at Carlisle Indian school in Pennsylvania, wrote of the Bear to Coast Guard headquarters.

"The Bear has written her beautiful heroic deeds and devoted faithful service in our hearts and lives as the years and time have gone by. She has brought hope and light from civilization to our hearts strong and secure. The Bear will be the Eskimos' most reverent memory in the years to come."

OREGON IRRIGATION CONGRESS GIVEN PUBLICITY IN SEPTEMBER VOLT.

This month's issue of The Volt, the publication of The California Oregon Power Company, gives publicity to the Oregon State Irrigation Congress which convenes at Grants Pass, Oregon, on October 5th, 6th and 7th, inclusive. In a very attractive way The Volt undertakes a review of the progress of irrigation development in Southern Oregon and Northern California, illustrating the story with pictures showing scenes on the various irrigation districts in the field of Copco service.

Much favorable comment has been heard concerning the effective community advertising being accomplished by The Volt, which has a circulation of over 20,000 and goes all over the United States and to many foreign countries. Beginning with May, which featured the highways of Southern Oregon and Northern California, the Volt has worked consistently to advertise generally the resources and advantages of this territory. The June number was devoted to a story on the air mail service, making an appeal to the people of the Pacific Coast to bring about an air mail service from Seattle to San Diego. This matter is now well advanced. In July the Volt described in alluring way, the wonderful hunting and fishing privileges which can be enjoyed in this section of the Pacific Coast. The August number was descriptive of the Land Land Settlement program and the distribution of this number served to stimulate in many readers outside of Oregon, an interest in this state which will no doubt bring in quite a few new people. Now comes this month's issue featuring irrigation in the field of the Copco service, and no doubt it will also do its share to attract new settlers.

WAR VETERANS OF EIGHT SOCIETIES MEET WITH LEGION

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 28.—(A. P.)—When the American Legion national convention meets here October 5-9, instead of just one convention there will be eight going on at the same time. All eight will be connected and rolled into one big affair.

The largest of the eight will be the American Legion convention proper. Next in size will be the convention of the Eighty-ninth division, which was made up entirely of men from the middle west. The Eighty-eighth division, another famous western outfit, will also meet, as will the society of the First division veterans. The veterans association of the 213th Field Signal Battalion is still another.

The Women's Auxiliary meetings will be about as numerous as the main convention itself and will continue through the entire week.

One of the largest inner-organization meetings will be that of the Forty and Eight, which devotes most of its time to entertaining other members, and the Eight and Forty the woman's auxiliary.

Officials are prepared to entertain 100,000 Legionnaires. The former service men will have as its host, Omaha American Legion Post, Number 1, the largest single Legion post in the world.

Invitations have been extended 40 combat generals of the World War, and the heads of the American navy and leaders of every national military and patriotic organization.

National headquarters of the American Legion have been temporarily transferred here. The bonus, compensation, relationship with the United States Veterans Bureau and plans for a greater organization of the Legion are due for active discussion.

Plans for holding a junior world series for boys' baseball teams throughout the country under the auspices of the Legion will also be discussed, in accordance with results of a conference between members of the National Americanism Commission and Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of the western conference.

SEEK TO PRESERVE OLD TIME HARMONY OF NEGRO'S SONGS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 28.—The New South is fast losing one of the cherished traditions of the Old South—the "spirituals" and unmatched harmony in the song of the negro.

Industrial progress is believed by music critics to be largely responsible for the changed conditions among the race. The large plantations of Dixie at one time were the homes of the South's chief negro musicians.

'Tis different now. The best musicians of the race are to be found in the cities and centers of population. But many of these who have become urban citizens have acquired cultural attainments which have detracted from the old-time song.

Big cotton farms in the Far South have been cut up into many smaller tracts. The cotton planter who boasted once of "1,500 plows" can't be found. His negro tenants have found more profitable employment in the cities—in the factories, on the highways, in structural work.

With the scattering of farm help the olden-time harmony is passing. One must journey far into Alabama to find negro singing which even approximates the harmony that once existed over the entire South.

Tuskegee Institute is making serious efforts to preserve for both the white and negro races the spirt of song originated by the negro. The Institute has produced some of the finest singers. During the last college year, its glee club presented an interpretation of the negro songs of other days which was described as being as nearly perfect as reproduction could be made. Fisk and Hampton likewise have given much thought along similar lines of endeavor at the instance of leaders of both races.

Those who have never heard the real cotton-patch harmony can scarcely appreciate the apprehension of music lovers that this art is about to pass. Fifty negroes, of varied ages, in one cotton field are capable of producing an impromptu program of song, chant, whistling and chatter than can be found nowhere else on the globe, in the opinion of music critics who have traveled far to hear the music in its original setting.

The song is usually one which was never written. It may or may not be one already worked out and familiar to those participating. A negro does not have to "know" a song to join wieh his fellows in singing it. Every farm group has a "leader." This person is nearly always a man. He "strikes" his key—and the group is off.

The same song may be sung for an hour, or all day. It never becomes monontonous because of its variations. The present-day jazz artist boasts of his "barber-shop." He knows nothing of "incidentals" and "chords."

The negro singer can "ring in" more notes than have ever been written in the staff. He sings in minor, major and unknown "keys." There's no precedent for what he does. Today he sings a new song and sings its differently from that of yesterday. Tomorrow he will have a new song and more harmony.

No matter what he sings and how he sings it, there is that indescribable rhythm, swing and motion which is as harmonious as the flow of a meadow brook. He knows nothing of crecendos, fastissimos, pianniasimos. He does know harmony.

EUGENE WOMAN SUES OIL COMPANY FOR MONEY FOR STOCK

EUGENE, Sept. 28.—Suit to recover $500 said to have been paid to the Guaranty Oil Company for five shares of stock in the corporation has been filed in circuit court here by Laura McFarland, Dr. David Eugene Olson, C. A. Olson and W. A. Sage, doing business as Olson Brothers and Sage are also named as defendant in the suit.

The defendants alleged that she purchased the stock July 5, 1923, with the guarantee that her money would be returned with eight per cent interest if within two years time she desired a return. This agreement has not been met by the oil company although numerous requests have been made, it is stated.

Further allegations are that the oil company officials misled the plaintiff in the purchase of the stock by stating that the guarantee for a return of her money was authorized by the state corporation commissioner.

When the plaintiff asked for the return of her money she was told, the complaint states, that this would have to be sanctioned by the state corporation commissioner and the board of directors of the company. All of this is misleading and erronous and not necessary, the complaint states.

TICKET SALE FOR MORONI OLSEN PLAY REPORTED BRISK

Ticket sales for "Pygmalion," the opening play of the Moroni Olsen players here on Friday night, October 2, have been very brisk, according to a report made by the Roseburg Business and Professional Women's Club, which organization is sponsoring the group of plays here. Aside from the known excellence of the Moroni Olsen players, "Pygmalion" itself draws many who are familiar with the clever Shaw comedy, and see in it an excellent stage vehicle for the clever group of actors.

Shaw takes the ancient fable of Pygmalion and his statue and makes it, with sparkling felicity into life. Liza Doolittle, a cockney flower-girl, is trained by a scientific teacher into a brilliant and beautiful society woman. But other things happen also. You must meet jolly Pickering and Shakesperian Doolittle, Liza's father, to appreciate how much of contemporary fun and laughter the dramatist has created with his "curbstone English" and "commercial millionaires."

Moroni Olsen also announces the addition to his cast of four new players for the coming season. Mr. Gordon Nelson, a young English actor, Mr. Gene Greenwell, a brother of the pleasurably remembered singer in "The Taming of the Shrew," and Miss Ethel Baker and Miss Virginia Greenwell, both of Salt Lake, will help entertain audiences beginning September 15.

And, of course, most of the old faces will be there. Janet Young, Leora Thatcher, Dorothy Adams, Joseph Williams and Byron Foulger are all "in harness" again.

Boys' all-wool suits and overcoats made to measure $18.00 to $27.50 at Berniers, the Tailor, 2 doors north Liberty theatre.
