METHODISTS GET DOWN TO WORK AT STATE CONFERENCE

R. A. Booth, in Address of Welcome, Stresses Need of Standards for Human Action.

(Associated Press Local Wire.)
EUGENE, Ore., Sept. 30.—With the opening session last night, the 73rd annual state conference of the Methodist Episcopal church got under way with approximately 500 ministers and laymen in attendance. Examinations of undergraduate members were held Monday and yesterday, with the welcoming service last evening.

"Preaching Jesus Christ is the chief mission of a minister of the gospel," was the message brought by Rev. Melville T. Wire, of Astoria, in his address of response at the opening meeting. "We ought all to serve our communities, but when ministers become merely handy men about town the chief reason for their work is lost," he said.

Robert A. Booth, of Eugene, gave the address of welcome. "We have standard schools, standard lumber scales, which makes it impossible for products to pass muster if they are not up to standard; we have standard food and standards for everything we use or do," he said. "It is possible that in the universe, which was created in the image of God, there is no standard of life? The mission of Jesus Christ was to standardize human action."

The purpose of religion, he declared, is to bring people to a right relation to each other. The change in human relations, necessary to bring about a harmony and joy, cannot be accomplished by argument or disputes over the interpretations of the acts of Jesus Christ, he said.

Bishop William O. Shepard, of Portland, was praised by Booth, who declared that there have been many outstanding bishops since the Oregon conference was organized but none as outstanding as Bishop Shepard. The ministers of the conference were also commended for their work.

The opening business session of the conference is scheduled for this morning. Conference sessions for reports of district superintendents and statistical reports of pastors will be held this afternoon.

tions in the bible," the speaker stated, "and never yet has the word failed me. Those faithful who have passed away during the year have not died—they have passed on to their hour of triumph, to their coronation."

Raymond V. Johnson, field secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist church, arrived this morning, and delivered his address scheduled for last night. Prohibition is not falling in America, he declared. It is backed by every right element in the country and it is bound to succeed.

The use of the ballot box to bring about law enforcement was urged. "The officers of the law must be made to enforce the law, and the way to this is to demand that they live up to their platforms. If they fail, if they are inefficient, they should be banished by vote."

The banishment of ignorance in the world is bringing about reform such as prohibition, and as knowledge increases, prohibition will fail, said Mr. Johnson. The program of the board, as outlined by Clarence T. Wilson, its head, is wholeheartedly backed by the entire membership of the Methodist church, it was said.

The pension plan now in force by the Methodist church was discussed by Rev. Thomas A. Stafford, of the board of pension and relief, and the new pension plan is to be brought up at the conference tomorrow afternoon. Dr. Stafford presented the Oregon conference with a check for $1,000 to be used for the necessitous fund in Oregon.

A rising vote of honor was also paid to Rev. L. J. Jones of Portland, who is unable to be present at the conference for the first time since 1871.

COMMISSION NOT TO OPPOSE MODOC NORTHERN RAILWAY

Fears of Klamath Falls Set at Rest by Statement of Impartial Attitude Toward Rivals.

(Associated Press Local Wire.)
SALEM, Ore., Sept. 30.—The attitude of the state public service commission toward construction of the Modoc Northern railway line is explained in a telegram dispatched by the commission today to the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce at Klamath Falls, in reply to a sharp telegram received from the Klamath Chamber in which the latter appeared to believe the commission would oppose the Modoc Northern. The commission's telegram points out that it does not oppose the Modoc Northern, but is opposed to its being substituted for a direct trans-state line. Also it points out that the road would be in California while the commission is boosting for Oregon roads.

The Oregon commission predicts that any effort to bring the Modoc Northern question before the Interstate Commerce commission hearing October 5, will be opposed from quarters other than the commission and that the Interstate Commerce commission will sustain the objection for the reason that it would be an introduction of new issues. The telegram follows:

"Replying to your telegram of September 29. We intended to convey the thought that inasmuch as application has not been filed with the Interstate Commerce commission for construction of the Modoc Northern under rules of practice, there is not sufficient time to file an application and supporting data before the hearing October 5th. Manifestly any effort to bring the Modoc Northern case before the Interstate Commerce commission would meet with objection which would probably be sustained by the Interstate Commerce commission on the grounds that it would introduce new issues. While the commission is not opposed to construction of the Modoc Northern, it is opposed to accepting the Modoc Northern as a substitute for a direct trans-state line which it believes to be of utmost importance to the development of the entire state, but it is for railroads in Oregon. The Modoc Northern would shorten the present distance to eastern markets from Klamath Falls. The trans-state line from Odeo, to Crane will shorten the distance from Klamath Falls to all points east of Granger fifty-seven miles under the mileage of the Modoc. A modern cross-state line would shorten the distance two hundred twenty-seven miles shorter than the Modoc Northern from Western Oregon and afford more favorable grades, shorter distance, cheaper construction, will afford transportation for territory not now served equal in area in the state of Ohio connecting that territory by short haul to Portland, Oregon, afford short haul transportation for all points west of Mountain Home in Idaho to the Pacific coast and at the same time reclaim more than thirty millions of dollars already invested in branch lines extending from the Columbia River to Bend and from Ontario to Crane."

EUGENE, Ore., Sept. 30.—Election of officers and committees was accomplished at the opening business session of the Oregon annual conference of the Methodist church this morning. All conference business was organized, and regular proceedings began, under the direction of the Rev. Bishop W. O. Shepherd, who is presiding.

The business session was preceded by roll call, sacrament of the Lords' supper, and by the annual memorial service. Rev. R. N. Avison, in the principal address of the morning urged that members regard death as an hour of triumph and victory. And that the forward look and upward gaze should prevail at all times. "I will risk all on the declaration," he said.
