ROSEBURG CHOSEN FOR INSTITUTE TO BE HELD OCTOBER 8

Roseburg has been chosen as one of the Oregon centers in which an institute will be held by the national and state tuberculosis workers, on methods of the health campaign, and methods of conducting the Christmas seal sale. October 8 is the date set for the conference. Mr. Dwight Anderson, staff representative of the National Tuberculosis Association, New York, will be the chief speaker, assisted by Mrs. Saldie Orr-Dunbar and Mr. Rowan Wheatland of the Oregon Tuberculosis Association.

O. C. Brown, chairman of the local committee on arrangements announces that the institute will be held at the South M. E. church in Roseburg. Delegates from Klamath, Jackson, Coos, Curry and Lane counties are expected to attend. Details regarding program and attendance are being worked out, and will be announced later.

Other institutes are being held in Oregon at Portland and at La Grande.

HUNGARY HONORS LIVING RATHER THAN DEAD HEROES

BUDAPEST, Oct. 1.—In contradistinction to the prevailing custom in the allied countries to honor the memory of their dead war heroes by monuments, the Hungarians make it a point to honor those among their living veterans who performed some act of valor in the world war, by making them knights of "The Order of Heroes."

Each knight is presented with a small plot of land. Recently 200 officers, 300 non-commissioned officers and 1,300 privates were knighted by Admiral Horty, captain general of the order.

Every candidate for knighthood must show evidence of being an irreproachable Hungarian citizen. Among the newly knighted veterans there was also a small boy through whom the memory of his dead father was honored. The badge of the order represents the Hungarian coat of arms.

NEW FOUND LETTER SHOWS FRANKLIN'S KITE CLAIM TRUE

CINCINNATI, Oct. 1.—(A. P.)—Lately American historians have been bombing the story of the flight of Benjamin Franklin's electricity detecting kite. They have attempted to relegate the legend to the junk heap of historical fallacies. Their claim has been that had Franklin tried the experiment, he would have been electrocuted and burned to a crisp brown crust.

But a book has been discovered, piled with 12,000 other volumes in a garage store room owned by the Cincinnati public library, containing a letter written by Franklin himself on the experiment and its results. The volume is a compendium of many letters written by Franklin and members of the Royal Scientific Society of London.

While the story handed down placed the scene of the trial in the tower of old Christ church in Philadelphia, Franklin fails to mention the locality. It is also evident that he had no intention of attracting lightning to his kite, but that he merely wanted to prove the presence of electrical energy in the atmosphere during a thunderstorm.

The letter was written probably in 1752. His observations and instructions follow:

"Make a cross of two light strips of cedar, the arms so long as to reach the four corners of a large silk handkerchief when extended; tie the corners of the handkerchief to the extremities of the cross, so you have the body of a kite, which being properly accommodated with a tall, loops, and string, will rise in the air, like those made of paper, but this, being silk, is fitted to bear the wet and wind of a thunder gust without tearing. To the top of the upright stock of the cross is to be fixed a very sharp pointed wire, rising a foot or more above the wood. To the end of the twine next to the hand, is to be tied a silk ribbon, and where the silk and twine joints a key may be fastened. This kite to be raised when a thunder gust appears to be coming on, and the person who holds the string must stand within a door or window or under some other covering, so that the silk ribbon may not be wet, and care must be taken that the wire does not touch the frame of the door or window.

"As soon as any of the thunder-clouds come over the kite, the pointed wire will draw the electric fire from them, and the kite, with all the twine, will be electrified, and the loose filaments of the twine will stand out every way and be attracted by an approaching finger. And when the rain has wet the kite and twine so that it can conduct the electric fire freely, you will find it stream out plentifully from the key on the approach of your knuckle. At this key, a phial may be attached, and from electric fire thus obtained, spirits may be ignited and all the other electric experiments be performed which are usually done by a rubbed glass globe, or tube, and thereby the sameness of the electric matter with that of lightning completely demonstrated."

CHURCH HOLDS ANNUAL ELECTION

The annual business meeting and election of the First Christian church was held last night. The reports of all of the various departments were read, showing that the church has made a substantial gain during the year and that its work has been carried on in an efficient manner. The pastor, Rev. H. E. Mow, offered a program for the coming year, one of the outstanding features of which is a revival to be conducted during the month of November by Rev. George Kellems, one of the leading evangelists of that faith.

In the election the officers chosen were as follows: Dr. S. L. DeLapp, trustee; James Hutchings and Dr. R. A. Moon, elders; Guy Radabaugh, T. F. Epping and Jesse Morris, deacons; Mrs. A. O. Rose, Mrs. Belle Case, deaconesses; R. A. Wilson, financial secretary; Vernon Orr, treasurer; Mrs. D. E. Carr, clerk; Mrs. H. L. Boucoff, Mrs. C. G. Stanton, pianists; Mrs. Jessie Gibbs, assistant pianist; Charles V. Stanton, song leader; Dr. R. A. Moon, bible school superintendent.

Following the business session Rev. Adams, pastor of the Christian church of Cottage Grove, made an interesting address on the subject of "Success," urging full support of the membership for the program of work outlined for the ensuing church year.

The evening was concluded with a social time and the serving of refreshments.

Herbert Knibbs' novel

Hoot has the part of a young man who has grown up in the cattle country, and who since youth, has lived for one thing alone and that is to avenge the murder of his foster father, the only person from whom he can remember having received kind treatment. To accomplish this he had to wander, for years, over the trackless west.

The old man's death came one night in a fight against great odds—a band of cowboys who had threatened the nest, as they termed him, in vain, and finally resorted to ambush and murdered him.

The time of the story is that period in the history of the country that was made exciting by the many battles between the cattlemen and the man who came into the country to become a farmer.

Antlers

One of the most picturesque sections of the Nevada mountains served as a background for the exterior scenes in "The Iron Horse," which was produced by William Fox under the direction of John Ford.

With the Washoe mountain range of the Sierras towering in the background, the long level stretches of sage brush desert rolling away to the foothills, the scenic effects added greatly to the dramatic action of the story, and lends romance to the entire production which could have been attained in no other place.

Director Ford and a huge company spent many weeks at Dodge, Nev., in the heart of the Pyramid Lake Indian reservation filming the history-making railroad construction dramatic story and which are skillful scenes that bear vitally on the fully interwoven with his history of the first transcontinental railroad.

George O'Brien, Madge Bellamy, Gladys Hulette, Cyril Chadwick, Will Walling and Fred Kohler head an extensive cast of stellar players appearing in the Fox production to be shown at the Antlers theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Liberty

"The Sky Raider," the Encore picture which introduces the world's greatest living ace, Captain Charles Nungesser, to the screen combines romance and thrills in a modern drama of the air. Captain Nungesser plays the role of himself, the French aviator who brought down one hundred and five planes during the war. One day, while paying tribute at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the ace meets an American girl (played by Jacqueline Logan), who is trying to trace her brother. The captain recognizes him from his picture as a flyer sentenced to twenty years in prison when his aviator's insignia was found in Nungesser's engine, a fact that nearly cost Nungesser his life.

In love with the beautiful America, Nungesser effects the release of her brother, who is bitter toward his liberator, having been told that Nungesser framed him into prison.

The boy was framed, but not by Nungesser. The manner in which the ace exposes and captures the villain, who commits the first robbery of air mail history, is one of several interesting plot threads in "The Sky Raider," showing today at the Liberty theatre.

GLENGARY NOTES

Prune harvest is over for another year. Those who had prunes dried are busy hauling them to market.

The Glengary Sunday school had election of officers as Mrs. John Betts, who was superintendent and Frank Betts, secretary, are moving to Roseburg for the winter. Mrs. Fannie Betts was chosen superintendent, Mrs. D. C. McGehey, assistant and Nellie McGehey, secretary. Brother Tobias, Sunday school missionary was with us and gave a splendid talk.

Leatha Fitzgerald is home again after spending several weeks in California.

School days are here again. Miss Viola Thomas is our teacher for the coming year.

Mrs. T. P. Carnes is very sick, her son and two boys are here on a visit. We hope she may recover in a short time.

Miss Marriet Groves was a visitor at the home of Mrs. W. L. Nelson of Roseburg, last week.

D. C. McGehey and family were in Roseburg Saturday, shopping and attending the produce show.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Morrison had dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Betts last Friday. They were also attending the produce show.

Mrs. Jack Weaver had the misfortune to break her wrist last Sunday evening. She is staying in Roseburg for a few days.

Harley Schaffner and Frank Betts are attending high school this year.

A new family has moved into our neighborhood. Let us not forget to call on them and invite them to Sunday school.

Mr. and Mrs. Minor Cooper and family attended services in Roseburg last Sunday. We missed them in our valley.

The Glengary W. C. T. U. met at the home of Mrs. Earl Agee last Wednesday afternoon. Quite a number were present and Mrs. Agee was elected secretary and treasurer.
