

WRITERS DISTORT PICTURES LIFE IN SOUTH SEA ISLANDS

TOKIO, Oct. 6.—A 2,000-mile shopping expedition, from Sautil, one of the South Sea Islands to Tokio, was recently made by the Rev. C. R. Helme, a representative of the American Board of Missions, who has been stationed in this lonely, far-away post for 25 years.

Out in the Marshall Islands, which is the group to which Jaluit belongs, where there are not automobile and where one pays calls over a distance of 200 miles, the Rev. Mr. Helme reports that considerable progress is being made among the natives under the supervision of the Japanese. Most of the Germans, he reports, left voluntarily at the beginning of the world war and the rest were deported when the war ended and the islands were put under Japanese mandate. Now there is only one other white on the island beside Dr. Helme, who is an Australian. There are no hotels and no motion picture shows and no amusements, and the roads are mere pathways not more than eight feet wide, cut between the plantations and the jungle.

"No, the South Sea Islands are not exactly as painted by the romancers," said Dr. Helme, "as far as comfortable living is concerned. But it is quite true that the 9,500 natives of the Marshall group are nearly all well-to-do, because of an industrious development of the land. There is no great wealth and yet there is no poverty at all. Some of the native chiefs even have private yachts which take them from one island to the other, each one being between 60 and 100 miles apart. They may even have planes some day."

"But if one wants to call on a white friend in the South Sea Islands, the nearest are in the Gilbert Islands, which are under the British mandate and some 300 miles away."

"Life in the South Sea Islands is for the most part uneventful," says Dr. Helme, "and there was one period shortly after the world war when for more than a year the inhabitants were without newspapers from the outside world. There had been stories circulated in Sydney and other quarters to the effect that the Germans had prepared elaborate fortifications and secret supply bases in some of the South Sea Islands. For this reason the Japanese and other allied powers prohibited the islanders from any communication with the outside world, and boats were allowed to stop only for the purpose of landing provisions. We heard vaguely about the war from the lips of the seamen, but it was not until everything was over that we were able to get any definite news at all."

GOLDEN BEARS AIM TO KEEP GRID RECORD UNBLEMISHED

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 6.—The University of California football team has started another season determined to maintain its record without a blemish. California has gone five straight years without a defeat, and begins the sixth season auspiciously, because of the large number of veterans on the field.

In this period Coach Andy Smith's squads not only have cleaned up everything in the far west, but have met and held off some of the leading teams of the east. Four were tie games.

This season Smith should have easier going. He has picked a tentative eleven almost entirely from last year regulars. On the present first-string team the only new man is Baze, the center, who replaces Horrell. The late Walter Camp picked Horrell for his first All-American team for 1924. Capt. "Tut" Inlay, the diminutive player who was a sensational open-field runner last fall, will hold down one of the halfback positions, while Jimmy Dixon, triple-threat man, has first call on the other one. Young is starting at full back, with Griffin and Brown alternating. The backfield, aided by a strong line, made some bad hours for Pacific coast conference teams and swept Pennsylvania to defeat in the post-season game here New Year's day.

California will meet Washington, always a strong rival, November 14 at Berkeley. The "big game" with Stanford will be played in the latter's stadium a week later. This officially ends the season, and no post-season encounters have been booked.

QUITS SHIPPING BOARD AS PROTEST AGAINST PALMER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The shipping board had to take "sharp issue" with President Coolidge or ignore their obligations under their oath of office, Frederick I. Thompson, who has resigned as commissioner, declared today.

Action was necessary, he said, to correct "the chaos" resulting from the selection, at the insistence of Mr. Coolidge, of Leigh C. Palmer, as president of the Fleet corporation with wide powers.

Mr. Thompson submitted his resignation to Mr. Coolidge Saturday, explaining that he was protesting what he said was an evidenced move to abolish the shipping board and do away with the regional representation.

GRID STAR PLAYS WHOLE GAME WITH BROKEN RIB

MISSOULA, Mont., Oct. 5.—Bill Kelley, University of Montana quarterback and all coast conference back in 1924, suffered a broken rib in the first period of the game between the Grizzlies and Washington state college here Saturday. It was revealed after the game, Kelley played the entire game, carrying the ball on his share of the plays, without reporting the injury.
