MORE CANNERY CROPS URGED BY COMMITTEE

Chamber of Commerce Survey Shows Need of Small Crops.

PLAN TO PACK BEETS

Cultivating of Evergreen Blackberries for Canning Recommended in Report.

The growing of more products which can be used by the local cannery, is recommended in a report filed by the raw products committee of the Chamber of Commerce, supplementing its crop survey adopted several months ago.

At a meeting of the committee yesterday a recommendation was made that the work for 1925 and '26 include a continuation of the crop survey, and also a thorough soil survey and analysis.

The Roseburg cannery is now recognized as an established local market. It affords an opportunity for disposal of a profit of many small crops which will produce a modest income in addition to the regular crops.

An experiment is now being conducted in the canning of table beets, and it is believed that it will be possible in the future for the cannery to handle a large pack of this vegetable. It is also believed that string beans can be canned here successfully.

The committee recommends the cultivation of native evergreen crops. The cannery has been using all the wild blackberries obtainable, and the pickers have made good money. It is believed that the berries can be grown successfully in a cultivated state, as experience in the Yukon country shows that a better quality berry can be grown in the cultivated state.

Strawberries may also be grown at a profit, it is believed, especially if the growers do not attempt to handle an acreage larger than can be covered by family labor. The committee has been inquiring into the handling of barbed berries, but believe that better results are obtainable through the cannery. The growers could take advantage of the fresh market when returns were better than the cannery could offer, and the surplus could be marketed in any manner where the best money could be obtained.

The committee has considerable information of varieties and particulars on markets which they will verify through conferences with various growers, after which they will prepare and file a detailed statement covering their recommendations.

MITCHELL MAY GET ENDORSEMENT FROM AMERICAN LEGION

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 7.—No matter the fate in committee of proposed resolutions regarding Colonel William Mitchell, the army's "finest" critic of the nation's air service, indications were strong today that the subject of adopting an official attitude towards the Colonel would be taken to the floor of the American Legion's seventh national convention for a decisive contest.

The Rev. Joe Moke Longergan, of Illinois, national chaplain of the legion, last night was chosen to take the place of the state's delegate at large, who did not come to the convention.

Chaplain Longergan is known as a man of strong conviction and a powerful orator. He also is known to be a strong supporter of Colonel Mitchell, and in the unusual move by the Oregon representatives some of the delegates professed to see a determined move towards a showdown on the Mitchell matter.

THEATRES

Liberty Theatre: A tremendous fight scene, with the whole police department and the city officials of a great metropolis at the ringside to watch their champion do battle against great odds; high-powered Tincture of Drama; side-splitting comedy and the pathos and heart throbs of real people acting in a real way make "High and Handsome" one of the outstanding pictures of recent months.

Antlers Theatre

The best test of a man's ability as an actor is to have him play something he really is not. That's what Harold Lloyd does in portraying the college boob in his newest comedy feature, "The Freshman," which comes next Wednesday to the Antlers theatre.

Antlers Theatre

A greater opportunity for character development is offered Jack Pickford in his new starring vehicle "Waiting Up the Town" at the Antlers tomorrow than any picture he has appeared in for a long time.
