TOM MURRAY IS SENTENCED TO GALLOWS

titude of composure he has shown throughout while conferring with King relative to the statement he was to make.

Judge King announced this morning that he had abandoned the idea of filing a motion for a new trial, but that an appeal would be taken. The court has allowed him until December 5 to file a bill of exceptions on appeal.

Trial of Pals In Progress.

Immediately after Murray had been sentenced, the court resumed consideration of the case of Ellsworth Kelley and James Willos, Murray's companions in the break, who are also being tried for the murder of Guard Sweeney on the ground that they were parties to the conspiracy which resulted in the murder of the guard. By order of the court the jury in the trial of Willos and Kelley, who are being tried jointly, was taken to the prison to view the scene of the escape, where they spent the remainder of the morning.

Allen Carson, special assistant prosecutor, will open with a statement of the state's case immediately after the noon recess. It is anticipated that the first testimony of witnesses will be heard late in the afternoon.

Three women and nine men comprise the jury as finally accepted late Saturday afternoon. They are:

Arch Jerman, farmer; Charles L. Parmenter, carpenter; John W. Gamble, fruit man; L. W. Durant, street commisioner, Woodburn; Alfred B. W. Hughes, farmer; Thomas C. White, laborer; James W. Bellamy, retired farmer; Charles Griggs groceryman; John C. McFarlane, retired contractor; Louise M. Hager, Nellie B. Simpson and Helen H. Tate, housewives.

King's Appeal Basis.

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 19.—The first intimation of the grounds upon which he will appeal the conviction of Tom Murray, was given by Will R. King, counsel for the defense, in his opening statement to the jury in the trial of James Willos and Ellsworth Kelley, companions of Murray in the prison break.

As in the Murray trial King declared that Kelley and Willos acted in self defense in seeking to escape from persecution in the prison that threatened their lives.

In the Murray trial, the court ruled out the plea of self defense on the ground that there was no showing in the evidence to justify it, and that inasmuch as an attempt to escape from prison is a statutory crime in Oregon, a defense based upon such a plea was not admissible.

Throughout the trials Judge King has contended that the legislature in making prison escapes felonies did not contemplate that it should be construed to deprive any one, even a convict confined in prison, of their constitutional right to defend his own life. Judge King contends that such a statute is unconstitutional, although admitting a lack of precedent to support his contention.

By reason of confinement in the "bull pen" of the prison and the constant menace of being confined there without cause or justification and because of the presence of a guard over the bull pen who "has a mania for killing, and who has fired without provocation at convicts confined to the cells in the bullpen indiscriminately," the convicts were justified in seeking to make their escape, even at the expense of taking human life if they were resisted, King told the jury.

Judge King's ground for appeal, thus indicated, is that the court erred in depriving Murray of his constitutional right of self defense.

Lyle J. Page, prosecutor, in opening the case for the state this afternoon, asked that the death penalty be imposed on Willos and Kelley under the statute making a capital offense of participation in a criminal conspiracy resulting in murder. Kelley and Willos, Page declared, are equally as guilty of the murder of Guard Sweeney as was Murray, although neither of them actually fired the shot which resulted in his death.

The claim that the conspiracy to escape did not contemplate any killing, that Willos and Kelley joined in it in the belief that there would be no killing, and that there was nothing to indicate that either of the defendants took any part in the shooting was also advanced by Judge King.

The state in stating its case charged Kelley with the murder of James Milton Holman.

The defense contended that Holman was killed by Bert "Oregon" Jones, either accidentally or by design ,that when Jones jumped over the wall to a spot near where Holman was sitting wounded against the wall the shotgun that Jones carried swung around and was discharged striking Holman in the head.

The defense stated that it expected to prove that Willos and Kelley were suffering from a form of insanity brought on by their alleged persecution.

Judge King contended that Kelley at no time during the break had any arms and that he fired no shots and that Willos fired only in a haphazard manner at nothing in particular in the excitement of the break.

AGGIES TRAIN HARD FOR STANFORD GAME

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

CORVALLIS, Ore., Oct. 19.—Though his first string showed good scoring power against Whitman Saturday, Coach Schissler, at Oregon Agricultural College, football team, is far from satisfied with the scoring of his reserves and the "pony backfield" which was held scoreless by the missionaries in the second quarter.

Hard pace is due to be the order for the first three days of this week to perfect the plays to be used against Stanford next Saturday. These were not needed against Whitman, hence were not shown to the scouts. The Aggies are going south to win, they say, not merely to make a strong showing. This attitude was not gained from the lopsided victory in Portland, but from their general feeling of strength and team play developed last year.

MISSIONARY CONVENTION

Mrs. J. R. McCracken, president of the southern district of Oregon, desires the stressing of evangelism at our missionary convention which convenes at Roseburg, Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 20 and 21, and urges the holding of a morning watch service at 9:00 o'clock Tuesday morning, a half hour before the program proper begins.

All members and friends are earnestly requested to be present at this service.

LEGION TO HAVE GOOD TEAM FOR ARMISTICE GAME

Judging from the turnout yesterday the American Legion post of this city will have a strong football team to meet the Eugene All-Stars on Armistice Day. Although there were only a few linemen out, there was a heavy, fast backfield. Other positions on the team will be filled by old-timers in the game and Harry McCabe, manager, predicts a husky eleven.

REDUCE SURTAX TO 20 PER CENT MELLON'S IDEA

taxes are collected, inequally exists. We should not tax too heavily the producers to pay the security holders. It is for this reason that we have sought a balance between debt reduction and tax reduction."

The normal rate of surtax would be fixed under the secretary's suggestions at one and one-half per cent instead of two per cent on incomes up to $4,000; at 3 per cent instead of four per cent on incomes of $4,000 to $8,000 and at five per cent instead of six per cent on incomes in excess of $8,000.

This program was outlined by Mr. Mellon in response to questions by Representative Garner of Texas, the ranking democrat on the committee. In a long prepared statement previously submitted, the treasury secretary had made no specific recommendations for reduction of rates on the smaller incomes, but had suggested a total tax cut of $250,000,000 to $300,000,000.

Replying to questions from the republican side, Under Secretary Winston, speaking for Mr. Mellon, said the earned income provision—a reduction of one fourth of the total tax paid on incomes of $5,000 or less—should remain unchanged.

Mr. Mellon said the treasury would have no serious objections to increasing the corporation tax from 12½ per cent to 14 per cent and abolishing the capital stock tax of half per cent. He did not favor it, however.

In reply to another question, Mr. Mellon said it was his personal opinion that a maximum surtax rate of 15 per cent would produce as much revenue as a twenty per cent rate.

Lower Rate Aids Business.

Discussing the suggestion for a maximum of 20 per cent, Mr. Mellon asserted there had been a stimulation to business every time the surtax rates had been reduced. In those instances, he said, there had been an evident increase in tax sources and the increased incomes "have made up a great part, if not all, of the loss in revenue from the higher incomes."

"In 1922," the secretary continued, "with the maximum normal and surtaxes of 73 per cent, the total income collections, personal and corporate, were $1,501,000,000. In 1923 under the 1921 act, with maximum surtax and normal taxes of 58 per cent, the collections were $1,825,000,000. In 1924, with the 25 per cent credit, but before the effect of the reduction of surtaxes could be reflected in taxable income, the collections were $1,806,000,000. In 1925 the first year influenced by the 1924 act, it is estimated that the collections will be $1,833,000,000. In other words, in spite of the very sweeping reductions carried by the 1924 act in the lower brackets and the comparatively less reduction in the upper brackets, we will collect in 1925 more money at lower rates than we collected in 1923 at higher rates.

A CROWDED TENT GREETS EVANGELIST.

The big tent on Rose street was filled to capacity last night, as Evangelist Alice Wilson Parham opened a second series of revival services here. As the Evangelist entered the tent there was a burst of applause that lasted some time and every one expressed their appreciation of Mrs. Parham's being here again. She stated that two weeks was as long as she could possibly stay, as following this revival she was going to Eugene, where the people there are renting the armory, seating approximately 4000 people, for a big revival.

It was announced that there would be services each evening, starting at 7:30, and that the subject tonight would be "Two Pennies", and Tuesday evening an illustrated sermon — "Two Houses". The Evangelist stated that there would be a number of illustrated sermons following. "Repent" was the subject last night. She invites everyone to attend the services every night. A hearty welcome will await each one.

NEW COPCO 6% PREFERRED STOCK
Price $92.00, Yield 6.52%
A forthcoming issue of 6% Preferred Stock of The California Oregon Power Company is announced at this time, for the convenience of prospective investors.
Continuing the regular policy of making this investment easy to purchase, the Company will accept subscriptions not only for cash but also on time payments of $5 per share per month. Monthly payments will earn interest at the rate of 6% until the purchase is completed.

A Record of Development and Progress
The consistent progress made by this Company during the past few years, together with the growing appreciation of the stability and value of hydro-electric power securities throughout the country, has resulted in an active and steady demand for such investments.
Copco Preferred Stock has accordingly risen steadily in price, in keeping with its increased worth and the expansion of production facilities.
First offered to the public in 1922 at $92 per share, the 7% Preferred Stock is now quoted at more than $100 per share. All of the Company's 7% Preferred Stock has now been sold.

A New Issue, at a New Price
These favorable conditions are fundamental and permanent. The Company sees no reason to believe that a high dividend rate will again be necessary to attract ample capital for the development of this rapidly growing property in an expanding and prosperous territory.
The Preferred Stock about to be issued will therefore carry a dividend of Six Per Cent, and will yield a return of 6.52% on its initial price of $92 per share.
Copco Preferred Stock is non-callable—an important advantage much sought by investors in this period of advancing prices of desirable securities.
