A tire that keeps its good looks to the very end of its long service life

SOME tires that look well on the show room floor begin to look shabby after a few miles of service.

The U. S. Royal Balloon not only compares favorably in appearance with any tire when new.

The important thing to note is that it holds its good looks.

Finger marks, grease and mud stains do not show on its handsome all black body.

And the flat "Low-Pressure Tread" wears slowly and evenly.

Because the weight is properly distributed over the entire tread surface, the uneven, disfiguring wear that soon gives a ragged appearance to round treaded balloon tires does not occur.

This and the patented Latex-treated Web Cord construction of the carcass permit the U. S. Royal Balloon to be run at proper cushioning pressure.

There is no need to over-inflate to save the tires.

Thus, appearance, long mileage, comfort and car protection are all provided for.

The man who is riding on U. S. Royal Balloons is enjoying the advantages of "the balloon tire principle at its best."

ESCAPE STORY TOLD AGAIN AT CONVICT TRIAL

As their leader.

"As the deputy warden reported it to me, Murray told him that the convicts planned to make the break on a Sunday morning. They were going to release the warden in the chapel as he went in for his regular Sunday morning interview with prisoners, put a knife to his neck and under the threat of killing him force the chapel guards to open the doors of the 'cage' leading into the turnkey's office. There they planned to take guns from the Arsenal and force their way out of the prison."

"Kelley, Willos, Bert 'Oregon' Jones and Frank Pullen, were some of the other convicts whom Murray told the deputy warden were implicated in the plot."

Escape Story Retold.
Most of the evidence so far presented by the state has been identical to that which was brought out in the Murray trial, for Willos and Kelley are being tried now as accomplices in the murder of Sweeney and not on the separate indictment which charges them with the killing of Holman.

Peter J. White, one of the guards who was in the turnkey's office at the time Murray and Jones entered and demanded the keys to the Arsenal testified that when he escaped from the office, he started on the run for the front gate. There, he said, he met Guard Wharton, who was trying to get in. He said that Wharton called his attention to Willos and Kelley who were then coming down the rope from the roof and that he (White) rushed over to the bottom of the rope and commanded the two convicts to stand still and put up their hands.

Crowd Gets Laugh.
"Kelley got his hands up all right," said White, "but Willos said 'who the hell are you?' and started south toward tower seven."

"I told him I was Pete White, and just then Guard McKinley came out of the barber shop and Willos stopped and put his hands up."

Asked if either Kelley or Willos said anything, while they were standing there, White replied: "Yes, Kelley said, 'Pete, I did not think it would be as bad as this.'"

White said that the shooting was going on them and that almost immediately Jones appeared around the corner of the building, covered him with a rifle and said to White:

los and Kelley:
"Go into the arsenal and get your guns. It's open."
White said that Jones said to him:

"D--did you open that gate?"
"How the hell can I when I'm locked in here myself," White said, he replied.

A murmur of laughter swept over the room and the court had to rap for order.

OUTLOOK GOOD FOR BIG PARADE ON ARMISTICE DAY

The Armistice Day parade on November 11 is to be one of the best ever given, judging from present indications, according to E. A. Britton, chairman of the committee. The Umpqua Chiefs and Squaws have already promised to participate, while nearly all of the automobile dealers of the city have announced that they will make entries. All automobile dealers and agencies are invited, and all industrial and fraternal organizations are also urged to participate. Schools and civic clubs are likewise to march. Loving cups and plaques will be offered as prizes. It was thought best by the committee to present these lasting tokens rather than cash prizes.

THEATRES

Antlers Theatre
Douglas Fairbanks has never before produced a picture which offered him the latitude and scope of expression that is given in his new United Artists Corporation vehicle, "Don Q. Son of Zorro," scheduled for showing at the Antlers theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

To begin with, this feature is replete with all the romantic dash and go of earlier productions, coupled with an unusual opportunity for historic work, due not only to the highly melodramatic nature of the story, but also to the fact that the star is called upon to carry a difficult dual role--difficult because he depicts youth as well as age. He will be seen as Zorro, a sedate Zorro, mellow and philosophical with the passing of years but a fighter for all of that, his grim determination spelling indomitable--courage. As the son, Don Q, he will reflect the dashing devil-may-care spirit which made his Zorro interpretation famous.

Added to the opportunities for excellent acting are the hair-raising stunts which have always kept Fairbanks fans in a flutter between their seats and the ceiling, theoretically speaking. Doug performs feats in this picture that will seem incredible.

Liberty Theatre
Charlie McGray who plays the great comedy character, "Holy Joe," an itinerant evangelist, in "Percy," Charles Ray's new Pathe picture produced by Thomas H. Ince, made his first public appearance at the age of eleven, with Crocker's Horse Show. He was chambermaid to a Shetland pony. A good deal of water has gone over the dam since then and the Ray picture finds Murray chaperoning a bit is popularly known in the Pike's Peak region as a "Rocky Mountain Canary." Asked what he called his burro, Murray replied that he had christened him after the Imperial Valley manner, with a long string of names, but that they couldn't be told in the presence of Miss Bedford and other ladies of the cast.

"Percy" is said to be a delightful mixture of comedy, romance and good dramatic action. It is the attraction at the Liberty theatre.

Antlers Theatre
Seamen and passengers sailing off New York harbor were given the thrill of their lives recently. They saw a big steamer afire at sea; several hundred passengers scrambling frantically for the lifeboats; a fight between a man and a leopard for the possession of one of the lifeboats; and, as a climax, saw the big liner suddenly blow up and sink.

The vessel was the former U. S. shipping board steamer Corvallis.

Why Quaker Oats "stands by" you through the morning ending premature fatigue

Do you feel tired, nervous, hungry, hours before lunch?

Don't jump to the conclusion of poor health. Almost 90% of the time you'll find it's premature fatigue, brought on largely by an ill-balanced breakfast ration. Thousands have "draggy" mornings for that reason.

To feel right, you must have well-balanced, complete food. You can't deceive nature into accepting breakfasts that lack even a single element toward correct food balance.

That is why Quaker Oats is so widely urged today. It is almost a perfectly balanced dish.

Contains 16% protein, food's great tissue builder; 58% carbohydrate, the great energy element; is rich in minerals, and in vitamins. Supplies the "bulk" your diet needs to make laxatives seldom necessary.

Few foods have its remarkable "balance." That is why it stands by you through the morning.

2 Kinds The Quaker Oats you have always known and Quick Quaker Oats-- Cooks in 3 to 5 minutes.

The occasion was the filming of thrill scenes in "The Half Way Girl," Earl Hudson's latest First National production, which comes to the Antlers tonight with Doris Kenyon, Lloyd Hughes and Hobart Bosworth in the featured roles.

The Corvallis was 284 feet long, displaced 4,220 tons, and formerly carried freight and passengers between New York and Europe. The big scene of the picture occurs when a cargo of benzine explodes in the hold and the ship goes down far out at sea.

Tugboats were stationed nearby to pick up the lifeboats and rescue actors and actresses who were in distress as the result of this realistic bit of picture making.
