SLAYS ALLEGED WRECKER OF HOME

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
ABERDEEN, Wash., Oct. 26.—Joseph Edward Davidson, a logger, today shot and fatally wounded Jean Bean for what he said was intimacy with his 15-year-old wife. Following the shooting, which took place at the boom house of the Grays Harbor Commercial company, at Cosmopolis, Davidson came to Aberdeen, submitted to arrest and gave a detailed statement of the shooting.

LUNATIC RECAPTURED.

MEDFORD, Ore., Oct. 26.—Cyril Slegrist, 23, an escape from the state insane asylum at Salem, committed from Marshfield, was taken in custody by Sheriff's deputies yesterday, three miles above Bybee Springs, where he had taken possession of a cabin used by W. J. and James Oden, as riding headquarters in rounding up stock.

MARSHALL N. DANA ASKED TO RUN FOR UNITED STATES SENATE

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 26.—A committee headed by Paul T. Shaw today presented Marshall N. Dana with a petition with 200 signatures, asking Dana to run for the United States Senate. Dana replied that while he appreciated the committee's request, he felt that he must "ask such evidence of the public desire for my service in public office, as would satisfy my most hostile critic that the proposal is truly spontaneous and genuinely state-wide."

"SANDY"

By ELENORE MEMERIN

THE STORY SO FAR!

Sandy McNeil is forced by her parents into a loveless marriage to Ben Murillo, a rich Italian. Following the ceremony in her Spanish ancestral home in Santa Barbara, she flees into the garden for a final secret meeting with Timmy, a childhood sweetheart. Judith Moore, her cousin, a San Francisco stenographer in love Douglas Keith, a student, finds her and warns her of a search being made by her parents. Sandy tells Judith she cannot go with Murillo, but she does accompany him to their honeymoon retreat, later escaping over a balcony.

GO ON WITH THE STORY!

CHAPTER 8

She sat on a little stone bench, her hands tightly clasped. She said with white drawn mouth: "I'm crazy—just crazy."
It was so still here—so still and mysterious. She walked in garden, bathed in this dim, undulating light with a perfume and warmth touching over the flowers might have been the remotest spot on the earth and she its only inhabitant.

Sandy felt like this—pushed away—alone and forgotten. The beating of her heart pressed her with faintness and heat. For a long time she sat motionless, staring at the shrubs and at a bed of stocks that were so fragrant and so delicately colored in pink and lavender.

Suddenly she said quietly: "I'll have to go back—in the end I'll have to go back." In all her life she had never felt such utter, appalling quiet.

Back then in the room Murillo was waiting. He had turned out the drink. Then he had turned, found her gone. He was probably stepping out on the balcony—expecting her at once. He would be a little indignant. He had a right to be. He was her husband.

She said this to herself. "Husband—yes—he was her husband. She was married to him. She had stood up before a whole church full of people and taken him for her mate. She had known what she was doing.

Why then was she so alarmed? Why did she run out here in this foolish way?
She put these questions to herself accusingly. And she began to walk rapidly between the shrubs. She said repeatedly: "I went into it—I went into it—I'm not afraid! What have I to fear?"

The whole drama of her courtship flashed before her. She'd married him again—she'd have to—she wasn't trying to get out of it. Images of herself, and her insolent gaiety came with a taunt. The way she had shrugged so breezily, telling the world: "I'll get by! Nobody's going to hitch-hat me, my dears! I can handle little Benny Venuto! What, ho, a husband!"

These images heightened her agitation. They filled her with a burning resentment against herself—everything was altered—she had lost her footing. The tears rushed to her eyes. Oh, why hadn't someone told her she was going to feel like this? Why hadn't she known? She felt betrayed—abandoned and betrayed.

She tried desperately to toss back her head—steady herself to go breathing into the room, laugh at Murillo, flaunt past him. But she leaned against a tree facing herself distractedly—herself and her future. She was married to Ben Murillo. She was out here alone with him. She didn't love him. She didn't love him. She was afraid of him. She didn't want him near. She didn't want his lips on her mouth. There was no escape.

He faced her with eyes half closed, not in a dream now, but with annoyance. "Why did you do this, Sandy? I've been walking around this foot place half an hour."
"Oh, 'twas warm inside—the walls coming together—love the night air."
"A rather peculiar thing to do at 1 o'clock in the morning."
She gave a high, unnatural laugh. "Peculiar, my dear! I do peculiar things. It's a way I have." She stared at his thin, sallow face as though she had never seen it before. She thought, with a panic, with a hot, fainting panic: "God! Oh, good God!"

He took her arm firmly, pressed her hand between his little hurried gasp. "Look, Ben—lovely—" and pointed to the moon, that now swung dreamily in a golden mist over the bare, quiet hills. All beauty—all high, happy things like that floating away in a golden mist.

McDONOUGH, WITH BAD MOTOR, WINS 250-MILE EVENT

BALTIMORE SPEEDWAY, Laurel, Md., Oct. 26.—Bob McDonough, youthful speed champion, nursed a balky motor through 25 laps of today's 250-mile motor classic, to lead Peter DePaolo home through a scant margin of a lap.
After leading by almost two full laps through 150 miles of the grid, McDonough's motor began to fall in the final stages. Only desperate maneuvering brought him home in the lead. Tommy Milton took third money, several laps behind the leaders.
McDonough's time for the 250 miles was one hour 59 minutes and 27.1 seconds.
Ralph Hepburn finished fourth, ahead of Earl Cooper, fifth, and Shafter last. The remainder of the field of 16 dropped out because of mechanical troubles.

STENOGRAPHER DEAD UNDER SUSPICIOUS CONDITIONS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Mary Lyons, a stenographer, said to have come here from Wilmington, Del., was found dead last night in an unoccupied room in a Connecticut avenue office building, and Ernest Brewer, described by the police as of Indian blood, is being held pending an investigation. Brewer, the police said, is a former resident of Tacoma, Wash.

Brewer told the police that he went to the building with the young woman and she became ill there. He procured ammonia to revive her, but she declined to take it. Later he told an acquaintance about the situation and the two returned to the building to find the young woman dead. An autopsy has been ordered.

FUNERAL OF STUDENT OF U. OF O. SEQUEL TO GAME

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 26.—The body of Alfred Peyton Goss, Jr., University of Oregon student, who fell to his death from the top of the Multnomah field grandstand just before the Oregon-California game Saturday, is to be borne to its final resting place in Riverview cemetery this afternoon by fellow students.

The funeral services were held at Westminster Presbyterian church of which he was a member. Thirty-five members of his fraternity, Beta Theta Pi, attended the services and sang.

TWO AGGIE STARS BADLY INJURED IN STANFORD BATTLE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
CORVALLIS, Ore., Oct. 27.—Wes Schuler, mainstay of the Oregon Agricultural college backfield, and Bill Fullback in the pony combination, are out of the game for an indefinite period as the result of injuries suffered in the Stanford game last Saturday. For awhile yesterday it was feared Schuler's leg was fractured, but an X-ray revealed a torn ligament. He may be back in the lineup for the Montana game next Saturday. Bell's injury is more serious and is expected to keep him out for most if not all of the season.
Postmortems on the Stanford game since the return of the squad revealed that the Aggies had a powerful and smart offensive, but it was pointed out that they lacked a hard game preceding the Stanford clash to add finish to the team work.

GEE, I THINK THIS OLE ARITHMETIC LESSON IS FIERCE 'Y DAY—SPECIALLY THIS PROBLEM ABOUT IF A MAN CAN WALK AROUND A CITY BLOCK, TWO HUNDRED FEET SQUARE IN FOUR MINUTS, HOW LONG'LL IT TAKE HIM TO WALK TWO MILES?

Arithmetic Holds No Terrors for Him.

I COULDN'T GET THAT ONE EITHER—FIRST I PUT DOWN SIX HOURS, BUT THAT DON'T SEEM RIGHT—LET'S WORK IT OUT TOGETHER, SPIDER?

I CAN GET THE ANSWER TO THAT PART ABOUT THE CITY BLOCK—THAT'S EIGHT HUNDRED FEET—HE CAN WALK IT IN FOUR MINUTS, BUT I CAN'T FIGGER OUT HOW LONG IT'LL TAKE HIM TO WALK TWO MILES.

HEY, TUBBY, WHERE'RE YOU GOIN'?

I'M GONNA WALK IT AN FIND OUT
