KIWANIANS HOLD A FINE BANQUET

The Rose Room of the Hotel Rose was the scene of a lively gathering last night when the Kiwanians of Roseburg observed Ladies night with a special program, banquet and dance. About eighty were present at the banquet.

During the banquet hour a fine program was presented. The first number was a "bones solo" by Mr. "Shorty" Schneider, one of the endmen of the American Legion Minstrel Revue. His ability as a bone-rather won loud applause and he was forced to give an encore. Bert G. Bates gave a chalk talk which included many of the Kiwanian celebrities. Russell Lindott led the gathering in some peppy songs and later gave a fine talk on his trip to the Vancouver convention. Guy Gordon gave a humorous talk on "How my wife can make me a better Kiwanian." Dr. Shoemaker was the presiding officer at the banquet. Following the meal, Rose Room was cleared and an orchestra composed of Roy Finch, Cora Ward and Oela White played some fine music for the dance.

Mrs. Roy Hartley won first prize last night in the nail-driving contest, her competitors being Mrs. Ted Post and Mrs. Chas. B. Wade.

The Hotel Rose served a fine banquet with the most excellent service and all were loud in their praise of Mr. George Smith's efforts to cater to the Kiwanian organization. The Rose Room was a delightful place for the gathering and the committee is planning many more similar meetings in the future.

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Nov. 5.—The coroner's verdict in the death of Madge Oberholzer was barred as evidence today in the trial of D. C. Stephenson and two aides in connection with the girl's death here.
