SIX MEN HURT IN AUTO WRECK SATURDAY NIGHT

Six men were injured and two cars were completely demolished in an automobile accident, which occurred at the junction of the Happy Valley road and the Pacific highway late Saturday night, when cars driven by John Boss of Myrtle Creek and George McKey of Portland, collided head on.

The accident was caused, it is claimed, by a third driver, who has not been located, who cut in too quickly between the cars, striking the rear hub cap on Mr. Boss, and swerving it across the road, out of control. The light Chevrolet, occupied by five men, and the big Reo touring car came together with a terrific impact.

The lighter car was occupied by Mr. McKey, 756 N. East 9th St., Portland, William and Fred Loos, of Talent, James Frisby and John Mitchell of Portland. All of these men were injured more or less seriously.

McKey sustained deep scalp wounds and a cut which may result in the loss of the sight of one eye. William Loos was cut about the face and neck and the teeth were loosened from a blow on the jaw. Fred Loos sustained cuts about the head and face. All three of the men were badly dazed and shocked. They are being cared for at Mercy hospital, Frisby and Mitchell escaped with minor cuts. All of the five men were brought to the Roseburg hospital and treated by Dr. Stewart.

Mr. Boss escaped with minor cuts and bruises. Both cars were completely wrecked, the Chevrolet being a heap of tangled wreckage. The impact was so great that the engines of both cars were torn loose from the frames.

The hit-and-run driver, who was responsible for the accident was not located. People directly behind Mr. Boss made an attempt to get his number, but he flashed his lights on and off and blinded them, speeding up and getting away. He was driving a big, speedy car and was travelling rapidly when he dodged between the cars which he caused to smash. As it required considerable time to get officers on the scene he made a get-away before word could be sent out.

His Gratitude Greater Than His Knowledge

A Filipino boy who had studied English in a Hawaiian night school sent the following letter to a white man who had befriended him and who had made him a present of some pictures and a shirt:

"I received your kind and welcome letter from you, so, I in it, I was very glad to hear from you that you so stated at present in good health and fiscal condition. At the second how glad I am and your sister that you were received of our picture in that brilliant afternoon, and so, by this time we were very pleased that you will keep it so well the same as our bees always talking and caring for you here. And so, even that picture is not very personally playing of your spirit so, be carefully like so as your body. About the shirt is coming to in my hand, I full of joy and a merry heart so that you did not forget of your promise to me, and now, it is very thanking at the moment and you very truly remember and present of this your brother did not know how to forget asking of God at the heaven that he always caring and protecting to you here day and night and far of badly misfortune."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Weapons of Warfare of American Indians

Though some Indians were more proficient at it than others, and the methods of some tribes were more advanced than those of others, there was very little secret about the making of warlike implements, and all the Indians knew how. Flints and similar stones were used not so much because of their hardness as for the reason they could be flaked off and fashioned into desired shapes as arrow, lance, spear or harpoon heads, knives, saws or scrapers. The flint was to be found in open fields, bowler, beads and elsewhere, and the tribes ranged occasionally near the larger supplies to break off with rocks or hammer the quantities and sizes of flint chips desired. These were carried home, to be flaked off and worked into shape with the aid of sharp-pointed implements of bone. The waste and refuse of the process, as well as the tools employed in it, have often been found on the sites of early Indian dwellings. The progress of this primitive industry range in size from tiny arrow tips to ceremonial spear heads more than a foot long.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SPEC WOODS LOSES TO MIDDLEWEIGHT

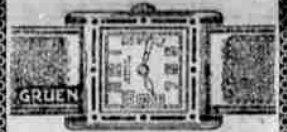

(Associated Press Local Wire.) BEND, Ore., Nov. 15.—Fred Gilbert, middleweight, of Bend, won a decision over Spec Woods of Portland in a ten-round main event here Saturday night. A large proportion of the fans found fault with the verdict of the judges. In the semi-final Chuck Sams of Klamath Falls took a six round referee's decision from Frankie Doyle. Sams played a safe game, changing little. Frenchie Gaspard scored a knockout over Frank Perry in the second round after a blow to the face.

MEDINA INVITES REBEL CHIEF TO ENTER CITY

(Associated Press Local Wire.) BOMBAY, India, Nov. 15.—The fall of Medina, the "prophetic city" in Hedjaz, before the attacks of the Wahabi tribesmen, is imminent, according to advices from authentic sources there. The inhabitants of the city are reported to have invited Ib Saoud, Sultan Nezar and leader of the Wahabi's to enter and receive their submission. (Ib Saoud early this year captured Mecca and took over the control of a considerable part of Arabia.)

COSTLY RELICS OF TUT'S TOMB SOON TO GO TO MUSEUM

(Associated Press Local Wire.) CAIRO, Nov. 15.—The treasures found in the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen soon will be brought to the Rome museum for exhibition. Meanwhile the tomb will be closed to visitors. The evidence thus far adduced through an inspection of the mummy in its coffin of gold, tends to show that it is a male, not yet an adult, and that when death came the person was greatly emaciated. The mummy was not removed from its case, but instead, the wrappings about it were cut through from the mask to the feet. Owing to the fragile condition of the wrappings, the greatest care had to be exercised.

Meeting Tuesday night, Nov. 17, at club rooms in Armory. Armistice Day report and other important matters. Nomination of officers for ensuing year. Entertainment.

show that it is a male, not yet an adult, and that when death came the person was greatly emaciated. The mummy was not removed from its case, but instead, the wrappings about it were cut through from the mask to the feet. Owing to the fragile condition of the wrappings, the greatest care had to be exercised.

During the work a large number of interesting and beautiful objects were brought to view. The ministry of works here says that both forearms of the mummy were loaded with magnificent jewels. Other objects brought to life were amulets and collarettes, a superb gold dagger with a crystal handle, bracelets of intricate workmanship and finger rings of diverse materials. Another dagger also was found and several large inlaid pectorals, bold work ornaments with golden circles.

On the feet of Tut-Ankh-Amen were golden sandals, and each toe and each finger had upon them a golden stail. Only the lower part of the body and the limbs of the pharaoh had been exposed to the view of the workers in the tomb up to last Friday, and the operation is of such a delicate nature that further progress will be slow. As soon as possible, the objects found will be cleaned and restored, after which they will be brought here and placed on exhibition.

Millers Sponsor Railway and Open New Farm Empire

Eight hundred farmers in the wheat country around Seoby, Mont., chipped in $425,000 with the Great Northern railway to build 50 miles of railway and open up a new farming empire twice the size of Rhode Island. The farmers found hauling their grain to market in wagons and motor trucks too costly, so they bought enough railroad stock to insure the building of the $1,250,000 extension. Some of them are seen lined up in the Main Street of Seoby at a conference.
