ROSEBURG, OREGON, TUESDAY, NOV. 17, 1925.

OFFERS SUPERIOR ADVANTAGES FOR WILD GAME.

Announcement that the state game authorities, at the request of local sportsmen, are soon to replenish the supply of Chinese pheasants in this county is welcome recognition of the superior advantages which Douglas county offers for the propagation of wild game.

Whatever new enterprises the woman of the future takes up in order to secure broader opportunities for her family, she will never find it pays to neglect her children.

James F. Trent, McMinnville farmer, has been sentenced to seven years in the state penitentiary for killing one man and filling another's hide with bird shot, all due to the fact that the convicted man thought the two men were purchasing watermelons from his patch.

Now we have it from authority that bootleg hooch contains enough formaldehyde to "pickle" the imbiber—if he sticks to his favorite drink for any duration of time.

Firebugs at Yoncalla seem determined to wipe that fine little city off the map. An early roundup of the perpetrators—with adequate punishment for their unlawful activities—is the only safeguard against future deprivations of this kind.

These warm, gentle showers are great lubricators for a regular Oregonian.

AMERICA NOT READY TO ABOLISH SUBMARINES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The policy as to submarines laid down by the Washington government at the time of arms conference here, remains unchanged, although President Coolidge is prepared to listen with an open mind to suggestions for further restrictions of that class of armament.

Renewal in England of the British proposal for abolition of submarines resulted in the assertion at the White House today that the American policy had not been altered. The original American suggestion to the Washington conference proposed merely to limit submarine tonnage as well as that of all other types of naval craft.

DR. STEWART TALKS TO STUDENT BODY ON EDUCATION WEEK

Education Week opened at the high school Monday morning with an interesting address to the student body by Dr. E. B. Stewart, state commander of the American Legion. Dr. Stewart enumerated reasons why the American Legion is interested in education. One of the chief reasons is that the legion feels that education is the best insurance policy the United States can have.

Many problems of today are due to the failure to properly teach and instruct the immigrants, who fall to assimilate the national principles and ideals. One successful way of coping with this situation is the establishment of night schools for foreigners. Another way to promote education, as brought out by Dr. Stewart, is to get the voters to realize the importance of their franchise.

More funds are needed for educational purposes, according to the speaker, and in the future it is to be hoped that less money shall be spent in preparing for war and more for education.

The high school made a further observance of the week by holding night classes last night. Three of the regular afternoon periods were held last night and the parents attended the classes with their children, seeing the school in actual operation. The same plan will be followed in the grade schools to-night. The high school P. T. A. will meet tonight and a debate on an educational topic will be presented by high school debaters.

Don't forget the dances now being conducted by the Swanee Sorenaders at the Maccabee hall are clean, respectable, and are patronized by the best people in the city. Any misconduct will not be tolerated.

comprehensive program for Douglas County agriculture.

Assisting each committee in its work will be the various specialists from the Oregon Agricultural College Extension Service. C. L. Long will aid the committee on horticulture, while C. J. Hurd will meet with the special committee on prunes. Other members of the O. A. C. Extension Service who will participate in the conference include A. G. B. Bouquet, vegetable crops; N. C. Jamison, dairying; Prof. G. R. Hyalop, farm crops; C. E. Cosby, poultry; Mrs. Jessie D. McComb and Miss Esther B. Cooley, home economics; and H. A. Lindgren, livestock.

The conference here is the 16th held thus far in the state in as many counties and is an outgrowth of the State Economic Conference held at Corvallis two years ago. Wherever they have been held they have been pronounced one of the most valuable agricultural events ever held. The various committee chairmen expect this conference to be equally valuable.

Of particular interest to the women will be the work of the home economics group under the leadership of Mrs. Henry Lander. This group will make a study of farm homes and suggest economical means for their improvement.

The hard wood floor at the Maccabee hall is being sanded and otherwise being placed in first class condition for the mid-week dance Wednesday night. The Swanee Sorenaders are going to furnish the music.

BEAUTY CHATS

HATS AND HEADS

Do your hats fit your head? Don't say "nonense" because not more than half the hats sold fit the wearer's head, and not more than a tenth their expense!

The soft felts so popular this season have the great advantage of adapting themselves to the head, thus sparing headaches and reducing the strain on the hair. A badly fitting hat is very hard on the hair, a hot or a heavy hat should never be worn, but of course you know that. But the new felts are light, soft, stretchable, and not heating. Let us hope they continue being smart for some time.

A hat even the least bit too tight stops the free circulation of blood through the scalp, damaging the hair and giving a strained expression to the wearer's face, even when it doesn't cause a bad headache. A loose hat, though padded ever so thickly with inside bands, looks badly because its crown is so much thicker than the woman's head, and the brim does not make a pretty line around the face. Don't buy hats that don't fit; however pretty as hats they're not suited when you wear them.

If possible, buy hats stuffed with canvas rather than wire, for these will adapt themselves to the oddities of your head like a felt, the wire must always keep its own shape. As skulls are never alike, and have lumps and dents in all sorts of different places, and as we haven't much head padding these days, the softness of the hat is more important than ever.

By the way, all hats must be long enough in back to cover your hair. Wisps and stubs of hair spoil one's whole appearance from the back.

Jessie F. D.—It will help much to keep your nails from looking blood-less, if you use the buffer on them vigorously every time you have occasion to wash your hands or when you give your nails their regular attention. A little rouge added to your cream and rubbed into the nails will help some by giving a harmless though artificial coloring.

Do your hats fit? Mrs. May T. B.—Liver spots are stubborn but they will bleach off in time. Try cucumber slices as a bleach, and improve your digestion so that the liver will function properly.

stream till tender. Make a sirup with sugar (five pounds) to a medium-size steamer of pears. When the pears are tender, put them in this sirup and cook about 20 minutes, then remove them and cook the sirup down till thick—as for preserving. Place the pears in cans and pour the hot sirup over them. Seal.

Answer: It was kind of you to send us your way of curing these pears. I am sure that Mrs. C. S. C. will be glad to have this recipe.

Troubled Bride: "I live in a section of the country where I must wash my clothes in water which is strongly impregnated with iron. It sometimes stains the clothes. What can be done?"

Answer: Add one heaping tablespoon of washing soda to every gallon of the wash water. Dissolve this soda in a small quantity of boiling water first, then mix thoroughly with the wash water and let stand four or five days, after which carefully drain off or dip out the sediment. This is a good deal of nuisance, yet the only way I know of around the trouble.

Mrs. S.: "How can I prevent pitch of black juice from running down the stove pipe onto the stove and floor? First I thought this juice came from rain into the chimney, but now as soon as the stove is hot it begins to drip—rain or shine. I burn wood. My old range with a six-inch stovepipe did not give me this trouble, but my new one (five-inch stovepipe) does. Perhaps some other reader can advise me."

Answer: Let us hope we shall hear from some other woman who has had this trouble and found a solution.

Tomorrow—Planning for Thanksgiving.

Diet and Health

THE ADJUSTMENTS OF ADOLESCENCE.

At about the age of 14 has your boy, your darling boy, who used to be such a little gentleman, suddenly become gruff and inconsiderate? Has your darling boy, who used to throw his arm around you and be so demonstrative in his affections, suddenly become cold and scoffing at sentiment, and does he show evidence of a distaste for your kisses? Does he want more than ever to manage his own affairs; and to seek companionships and adventures away from home?

she is normal she will show signs of them.

Then praise God and sing hosannas, Oh ye fathers and mothers! Be not unhappy and worried, but exult in your hearts, for your darling boy is showing that he has a healthy mental and physical development. Weep not when he is rude to you. Worry not when he quarrels with the other children of the family and is intolerant with them. He is but showing the healthy evidences of his developing manhood! He is going into his stage of adolescence and he is giving the normal manifestations of that period. He is establishing himself as an individual in his own right. He is emancipating himself from the home.

And according to the studies of Dr. Frankwood E. Williams, Medical Director of the National Committee of Mental Hygiene, and other psychologists, this emancipation from the home is one of the two most important things in the life of the adolescent. (It'll come to the second later on.)

Now is the time when the boy and girl needs the gentlest guiding, the most tactful handling. Instead of reproaches and punishment, there should be encouragement, and at the same time a large amount of indifference to his or her apparent lapses. The former cuddling and scolding for the boy and this girl should be largely withheld, for they will have notice of that; it is, at home. And it is well.

And that brings me to the other thing that mental specialists emphasize as of vital importance during his adolescent period. And this thing is dependent, as I said, upon the normal emancipation from the home. It is the establishment of the normal reaction toward the opposite sex; in other words, the establishment of the normal sexuality. To keep the boy
