KIP'S LETTERS TOO EROTIC FOR WOMEN'S EARS

herded out by attendants. Heart and Soul Stuff. The "mystery" letters were about 500 words long and were concerned with events that occurred when Alice and Leonard spent a week at the Hotel Marie Antoinette in New York in 1921. Picking up the second letter, which was by far more erotic than the first, Mr. Davis asked:

"Did you love this girl when you wrote that?"

"Yes," answered Rhinelander. Although he had kept his eyes fixed on the floor during the reading of the lurid passages, he turned squarely on Mr. Davis and answered in a firm voice. His characteristic stammer, however, recurred at intervals when the questions were more than usually intimate.

Finally young Rhinelander said he could see nothing wrong in his actions at the Marie Antoinette, indicating that he did not agree with the shocked attitude that Mr. Davis took on the revelations.

Although at first he denied that these letters were written to lead Alice on, he admitted that in one of the letters, written June 6, he was trying to tempt her. "I had no other outlet to express my emotions except in my letters," he said. "In them I put my heart and soul."

"Did you have any letters using this kind of stuff from Alice?" asked Mr. Davis.

"No," admitted the witness. "Did you intend to make this girl your wife when you wrote these letters to her?"

"I had visions of it." Throughout the cross-examination, Mr. Mills was on his feet constantly making objections to the repetitions of certain questions.

Jury Views Alice's Skin. In the midst of his cross-examination on the letters, Mr. Davis asked that the court be cleared in order that he might show Alice's skin to the jury. Justice Morchauer interposed an objection and it was agreed to retire to the jury room. Alice returned to the courtroom and broke into copious tears as she walked into the jury room.

Those who went into the private room were Leonard, Mr. Davis, Mr. Mills, Mrs. Jones, Justice Morchauer, the court stenographer and the jury. Alice was wrapped up in a heavy coat and was comforted by her mother.

The party returned from the jury room about ten minutes later, Alice remaining inside. Rhinelander resumed the stand and in response to questions, said that her skin appeared the same color as when he had first seen it.

"That's all," said Mr. Davis suddenly, and Rhinelander's ordeal of the past week was finished. He left the stand and adjournment was taken until this afternoon when other witnesses for the plaintiff will testify.

Alice No Vestal. Just before going into the jury room Mr. Davis asked Leonard if Alice had ever admitted to him that she had been intimate with another man before she met her husband. Rhinelander said that she had given this information to him voluntarily.

"Did this girl, who is pictured as chasing you, confess this?" asked Davis.

"Yes." "And yet this girl, who volunteered this thing, deceived you in the summer of 1924 as to her color?"

"You were willing to marry a girl who stayed with you at the Marie Antoinette and confessed that she was an impure girl, but you were not willing that she should have a tinge of colored blood?"

"As to the color, I drew the line." Ejected Women Return. When the afternoon session began young Rhinelander was recalled by Mr. Mills for redirect examination. Alice resumed her place, her head bowed in her coat, seeking to avoid the gaze of the crowd. The court room again was jammed and the women ejected during the reading of "mystery" letters, had returned.

Mr. Davis took the witness for re-cross examination and again brought in the "mystery" letters. Rhinelander said that Alice had been the inspiration for most of the things he had discussed in the missives.

MITCHELL ONCE MORE ON STAND

defense of the Pacific as announced by Colonel Mitchell on September 3 would cost $624,700,000,000 or twice the entire wealth of the United States.

"Your plan," Major Gullion said, addressing the witness, "would require 125,000 submarines to make the defense of the Pacific effective against Japan."

"It would require twice the wealth of the United States and since the United States is wealthier than Japan, don't you think Japan would be embarrassed in effecting such a plan?"

Opinion vs. Fact. Asked about his statement that the navy expended from $40,000,000 to $80,000,000 for its "Pacific parade," Colonel Mitchell said he had obtained this information from "discussions with other officers."

Major Gullion said the official reports of the navy showed the costs were less than $550,000. Colonel Mitchell then said his statement of September 5 was not intended to be a "statement of facts," but a "statement of opinion."

In arguing an objection raised by the defense counsel, Major Gullion said Colonel Mitchell had "tacked honorable officers of the army and navy; had maligned their motives and had attributed to them unworthy ends."

On the argument over whether Major Gullion should be allowed to cross examine Colonel Mitchell on a statement he made to the house military committee last January, the court, overruling the prosecution, held such examination was not permissible.

Colonel Mitchell testified that he examined the PN-9, No. 1 before it undertook to fly to Hawaii and "felt sure at the time that the ship could not make the trip."

Asked if he believed himself a better judge of arrangements for the Hawaiian flight than the man who made them—Captain Stanford H. Moses of the navy—the witness answered affirmatively.

Col. Bane Subpoenaed. MONTFREY, Cal., Nov. 23.—Colonel Thurman Harrison Bane, U. S. A., retired, departed for Washington last night in response to a radio message directing him to appear as a witness in the court-martial of Colonel William Mitchell. The message, signed by Colonel Moreland, trial judge advocate of the court martial, said that Colonel Bane was expected to testify regarding supposed interference with the engineering division of the army by Colonel Mitchell, while Colonel Bane was commanding McCook Field, Dayton, Ohio.

Colonel Bane retired on December 17, 1922 after Colonel Mitchell is supposed to have demanded that the government use an airplane known as the Thomas Moore type.

This is the Washer of 1935

IN DESIGN, the Maytag Gyrafoam Washer is actually 10 years ahead of the accepted standard of present-day washing methods. Note its trim size—think how convenient and easily manageable such compactness is. Requires only 25 inches floor space; snug in a corner, out of the way, when not in use.

IN FEATURES, the Maytag Gyrafoam Washer is actually 10 years ahead of the accepted standard of the present-day washing methods. Just one of its 9 world-leadership features is ample reason for a woman's needing the Maytag. Yet there are nine outstanding features.

IN HELPFULNESS, the Maytag Gyrafoam Washer is actually 10 years ahead of the accepted standard of present-day washing methods. Washes a tub of clothes in 3 to 7 minutes—or 50 lbs. an hour—actually twice as much as other good washers. It is easier on filmy fabrics than hand-rubbing; more thorough on hefty materials than scrub-board methods—and infinitely better from a clothes-wear standpoint. And—note this especially—no hand-rubbing is necessary! This is all due to the miraculous Gyrafoam principle—the most advanced departure from other washing methods.

Know how true all this is! Wash with the Maytag right in your own home next washday—without any obligation. Then—and only then—will you know the joy of a Maytag washday—the shortest washday ever known. Phone for a washer.
