ANTICIPATING CHRISTMAS.

The time has now come for people to begin to think seriously about their Christmas gifts. And not merely to think about them, but to do something about them. The annual rush of the people to buy Christmas presents has very eccentric features.

The supreme court of Pennsylvania yesterday upheld the first degree conviction of a 15-year-old boy sentenced to die for murdering his grandmother. At Newark, N. J., a 20-year-old youth was sentenced to the electric chair for murdering a 6-year-old child whom he kidnaped after killing a taxicab driver.

The idea prevails among some young persons, that anyone can do the work of "clerking" in a store. Hence complaints are made in many places, particularly the larger cities, that the salespeople do not show general intelligence in serving the public.

With turkeys going at forty-two cents at the present writing looks like the consumer might be in the four-bit class before Thanksgiving Day.

WEARY WILLIE.

When the autumn gales grow rougher I feel sorry for the duffer, for the hobo who must suffer, for the man without a boss; it is bad for Weary Willie as he plods the road so hilly, when the nights are long and chilly, and the farmers' dogs are cross.

PRUNE PICKIN'S

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—A young man in Salem has just coughed up a gold pen which he swallowed when a child. May we not expect the lad to have a wider outlet for self-expression now that he is no longer penned up?

The latest suggestions of the "Safety First" league are as follows: First, to have each bootlegger sample his own hooch before making a sale; and second, to substitute asbestos collars for celluloid ones.

Dear Aunt Belinda: My fiancée gorges his soup. What to do? Helpless.

Put down glass in it. Dear Madam: What is the proper thing to do when your wife finds you dining with your stenographer. Embarrassed.

One of those crises and jauntily approaches the fraid, asking her to come over and meet Miss Giggles, whispering to her to be nice to the old man, because she is a big buyer and you hope to get a ten thousand dollar order out of her; this, of course, if wife does not know the stenog. if she does, only a higher power than mine can save you, pray!

Dear Aunt Belinda: I have been going with a young man for four years. He has not proposed yet. How come? Stricken Fawn.

It looks as if he were too smart for you. Try elsewhere.

Dear Aunt Belinda: I am eighteen and engaged to a man seventeen years my senior. My friends object to the match, but he is very rich and has a loving heart. What do you advise? Love Sick.

INJURED MAN IMPROVED. George McKee, of Portland, who was injured in an automobile accident near the Castle place, south of Roseburg a week ago, has recovered sufficiently to leave the hospital. Mr. McKee and four companions were in the car which was wrecked on the highway and he sustained deep scalp wounds and an injury to his eye. His companions were less seriously hurt and left shortly after the accident occurred.

Heat with gas. ENTIRE FAMILIES ENTER CHURCH DURING REVIVAL AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

A large crowd for Monday night attended the revival at the Christian Church. Last evening to hear Kellems sermon on Hell. Tonight he will speak on "Heaven". Some being added to the church every night and interest is increasing right along. The outstanding thing about the revival is the number of "sinner's families" that are coming to be baptized. This is a very encouraging thing.

Humanism.

A new religion is dawning, announces a leading American minister. The present religious unrest, as he sees it, marks the passing of Christianity.

The religion that is to be Christianity's successor, he declares, is even now taking form among us. It is already the really important part of the religion of all church members, and it is the religion of all the decent portion of that 50 percent of our population who are not church members.

This religion is "humanism." It means love, public service and charitable activities, says its exponent. It is more practical, as he sees it, than Christianity. It lays less stress on God and more on humanity.

The great question in the past has been, "where will you spend eternity?" The great question now is, "where and how will you spend the rest of your life on earth?" And more than that, "how will the life of coming generations be favorably affected by your having lived?"

Few people can quarrel with the religious ideal here presented, provided the merely "practical" aspect of it is not allowed to crowd out genuine spiritual development in the individual life. "The life is more than meat, and the body than raiment."

But many will question whether this "new religion" is really so new as its prophets think. Many will suggest that it is the kind of Christianity that Christ intended, and seems new only because it has been practiced so little during these 19 centuries.—Eugene Register.

A Super-University.

Mrs. George Gerlinger, regent of the University of Oregon is reported in the Eugene Guard as warning the Eugene Chamber of Commerce that a movement is underway to unite the university and agricultural college in one institution controlled by a common board of regents. She asserted that such a merger is likely to be attempted at the next session of the legislature which she asserted, friends of the two institutions should block.

We hope the lady is right, for it is a consummation devoutly to be wished, from the taxpayer's viewpoint. Such a merger should eliminate duplication of courses, facilities, and overhead and make for economy and efficiency. It is an absurd and costly extravagance for a small and poor state like Oregon to attempt to support two great rival educational institutions within a few miles of each other. There is as much use for them as for two Topsy's in Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Of course the giant investment of each is considerable, but it would be utilized in the merged institution and found sufficient for years to come. As it is, both institutions have to exercise considerable ingenuity in the creation of new departments and in the addition of educational frills and fables to spend their enormous revenues and give them excuse for fresh appeals for funds.

The agricultural college is a misnomer, for agriculture is merely one course of many taught and far from being the best patronized. The institution is really a school of technology and science and as such will fit in with the art, literary and classic courses of the university. Inasmuch as the university has at present no president and the college, in the person of Dr. Kerr, a president of unusual executive capacity and organizing ability, it is fitting that he be appointed president of both institutions and put in charge of the work of consolidation. No able man could be found for a job than Dr. Kerr and he could have no better monument for posterity than a super-university. Governor Pierce could do nothing as constructive, or more practical in the way of tax-cutting than sponsoring such a movement that would not only win state-wide support, but should be encouraged by both institutions and the communities in which they are located, which will all benefit in the long run.—Salem Journal.

American Atrocities in Morocco

A correspondent of the North American Newspaper Alliance has met in Tangier the American aviators operating with the French army. He had just come from Rif territory, where he had seen the devastation wrought by bombing raids.

The correspondent, found, on comparing dates, that his fellow-Americans had bombed him three times. Furthermore he found they had committed a lot of atrocities that he had seen with his own eyes.

On one raid that he witnessed, the American airmen had killed three women and one child. After that, he says, their aim improved. In one town they killed 150 to 200 people. It was a completely non-combatant place, where the victims were all old men, women and children. He tells a harrowing tale of the dreadful scenes in such towns, with little children wandering through the ruins of their homes looking for their dead mothers, and of the wailing of Arab women for their dead children.

The American fliers, he testifies, are "individually of the highest and best American type." They did not seem to realize what they were doing. When the correspondent told them the result of their war as he had seen it, they were very regretful.

Altogether it is a blessing for them and their country, that those misguided aviators are being disbanded and returning home.—Eugene Register.

BEAUTY CHATS

BEAUTY CHATS BY EDNA BENT FORGES

EYEGLASSES

Many girls write and ask me what kind are a nuisance, but a nuisance they must put up with. The only thing I can suggest is that they try on eyeglasses as they try on hats to see which type suits them best. Indeed, as glasses are worn constantly, they should be tried on with much more care than any hat receives.

The very dark girl will not look well with thick, black rimmed glasses, but her face is already dark enough without adding two large black circles and a bridge piece. Brimless glasses, or if these seem "old maidish" blonde tortoise shell, or amber color shell, will suit her.

The pallid girl will look best with dark tortoise shell, and with a fairly large glass, these emphasize the eyes. Many girls are improved by wearing glasses, so take heart, perhaps you will be one of them. The blonde girl to whom every type of eyeglass is unbecoming, will look best with very pale yellow shell rims, these are less conspicuous.

Now, of course, tortoise shell rims have supplanted gold and the rimless glasses for younger women and for many older ones. Personally, I think them much more becoming perhaps because we've associated gold or steel rimmed eyeglasses with age so long, and the tortoise shell kind have been affected by college girls and by literary people.

You have one great consolation, if you must wear glasses; your eyes will improve so that your whole face must look better and younger. Weak, strained eyes are not pretty, they are bound to make the expression of the face strained and old looking. Besides, so many people wear glasses now that the old feeling about them is going.

Even eye glasses can be attractive. Jonathan F. D.—Try wearing a soft felt hat instead of the stiff derby and see if it does not help along with the massage in improving the health of your scalp. Tomorrow—Your Feet.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES

TOMORROW'S MENU Breakfast: Apple Sauce, Cereal, Boiled Eggs, Coffee, Toast, Luncheon: Celery-Ham Toast, Fruit Salad, Tea: Doughnuts, Dinner: Baked Peppers Stuffed with Left-Over Beef, Baked Sweet Potatoes, Cranberry Pudding, Hard Sauce, Coffee.

Young Reader: "Our parlor is very tiny. Would a tall floor lamp with a large shade be appropriate for it?"

Answer: No, I think I should prefer a "junior" floor lamp (small size) or one of the attractive floor lamps with a parchment shade extended from the cross-piece. Large floor lamps really need space.

Mrs. J. G.: "Could you, or any of the Column Sisters, give me a recipe for Ragged Pickles (in which everything is cut with scissors)?"

Answer: I am not familiar with this kind of pickles, but perhaps some of our readers may be, and will be good enough to write the recipe on a postal and mail to me in care of this paper. Let us hope!

Mary: "Could you give me recipes for Maple Gelatine and Macaroni Souffle?"

Answer: Heat a little vinegar and rub it on, repeating these applications till the linings become clear again. Tomorrow—A Crocheted Shating Cap.

Answer: Maple Gelatine: Beat three eggs yolks and add to them three cups of cold sweet milk. Turn into one cup of maple syrup which has been heated in a sauce pan and let all come to a brisk of granulated gelatine previously softened in one-half cup of cold water, stir a moment, and remove from range, turning the mixture into a bowl. When it cools and begins to cling to the bowl, fold in one-half pint of double cream slightly whipped, beat all together and turn into the mold to finish hardening.

Macaroni Souffle: Break one dozen stale macaronis in small pieces and seal in one cup of sweet milk. Pour the hot mixture gradually onto the beaten yolks of three eggs which you have placed in the upper part of a double boiler, then set the pan into the lower section of the boiler over simmering water and let cook till the mixture thickens slightly. Remove from fire, fold in the stiffly-whipped whites of three eggs, turn all into a buttered baking dish and set this dish in a shallow pan containing a little hot water. Slip both dish and pan into a moderate oven and bake for 20 minutes, before serving.

Bride: What will clean the smudgy window panes of my kerosene range?

Answer: Heat a little vinegar and rub it on, repeating these applications till the linings become clear again.

Tomorrow—A Crocheted Shating Cap.

Do you want an assured cure for leanness? Notice the different things that this unparalleled specific tincture promised to do. They are quite significant.

First, you should have a thorough physical examination by a competent physician to see if there is no "manifest distemper" afflicting you and causing your thinness. If you have, that must be attended to before you can hope to gain. It may be possible that you are chronically poisoned from diseased tonsils, bad teeth, diseased nasal sinuses, or other spots of infection elsewhere in the body. Now we will suppose that you have this done and the doctor said that there is nothing organically wrong with you. Obviously, as the advertisement says, you have got to do something to fortify your stomach, purify your blood, get rid of the fretfulness of your mind and have more rest and easy sleep. You are going to be able to do all these things by increasing your intake of food.

As I told you yesterday, you are not eating enough for your needs, and you are undoubtedly suffering from a degree of acidosis, auto-intoxication and a couple other things.

It may be true that you think you are eating more than your fat sister, but in this matter of eating each person is a law unto himself because no two persons have exactly the same physical makeup or the same activities. Besides, the chances are that you don't eat more than your sister; you do eat nearly so much. You can't tell what she eats between meals.

is a safe wager that you don't eat anything between meals because you don't care about eating. Isn't one of your interests in life Too bad.

Another thing, you cannot tell whether you are eating more or less than someone else, unless you
