EFFECT OF FUSEL OIL OVERRATED, EXPERT DECLARES

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 9.—The statement that wood alcohol and fusel-oil are not so deadly to drink as laymen have been led to believe since prohibition went into effect, was the only outstanding feature this morning in the routine of the trial of "Bill" Hart, Pendleton buckaroo, on trial in federal court on charge of the murder of Matthew Sheeship, a chief of the Umatilla tribe.

Dr. Robert L. Benson of the University of Oregon medical school, who conducted a post mortem on Sheeship, testified that very little trace of alcohol was found in the dead man's stomach. His statement was made in reply to the query of one of the jurors as to whether it might be possible for a man to drink enough poison moonshine to be unable to sit on a horse, and yet give little trace of the presence of wood alcohol in the stomach.

Dr. Benson replied by expressing the opinion that Sheeship had not drunk enough poison moonshine, if any, to cause him to have fallen helpless from his horse. "Wood alcohol would have showed in the alcohol fraction in our test and this was so small that we did not test further to determine what proportion of it might be wood alcohol. Wood alcohol is not so poisonous as some are led to believe it to be and if there had been the quantity you suggest in the man's stomach, it would have been indicated."

He added that fusel oil in liquor is not regarded as a lethal element. Five witnesses were examined this morning and 34 yesterday afternoon.

COLOSSAL DAM IN IDAHO APPROVED BY SECRETARY WORK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Secretary Work has approved the construction of a super-dam at American Falls on the Snake River west of Pocatello, Idaho.

The secretary approved the larger Idaho project in preference to a smaller one after he had been informed that the President and the budget bureau favored an appropriation of $1,600,000 for the dam. The foundation for the dam, already under construction, is designed to permit construction of either of the proposed projects. Construction of larger dam, which will have a capacity of 1,700,000 acre feet of water, was recommended to the interior secretary last night by a delegation of house members headed by Representative Smith, Republican, Idaho.
