Is there Oil in Oregon?

HEAR

Dr. David Eugene Olson

On This Great Subject at

THE ARMORY, ROSEBURG

Tuesday Evening at 7:30 Sharp

Dr. Olson has visited practically all of the oil and gas fields in America, Mexico and Canada and has studied geology from every standpoint. He is one of the best posted men on the oil possibilities in Oregon. It will pay you to come to hear this great lecture. At this meeting he will give out the first reliable geological reports which has cost him more than $240,000.00 to obtain. These reports will be given out free to all who are present at this meeting.

All who have heard Dr. Olson say that he is one of the best speakers they have ever heard. You will be well paid for leaving all and come.

OBJECTION VOICED TO GOVERNMENT HUNTER PLAN

Editor News-Review:

In reading the News-Review of Friday, Dec. 11, I see that some of the taxpayers league and sportsmen are asking the county court to appropriate $750 to aid in the hiring of a government hunter for Douglas county to put out poison to kill the coyotes and cougar so as to protect the sheep, goats and deer. If the county court wants to put the sheep men out of business they can do so by hiring a government hunter to put out poison. They will kill all of the fur bearing animals such as coon, skunk, mink, marten, cats and some of the cougar, very few coyotes, but all of the dogs in the county. When they put the dogs out of this county the sheep business is gone. A coyote is very hard to poison for the reason that he seldom goes back and eats on a sheep. The second time he kills another sheep. He wants the fresh blood. If you have ever looked a sheep over when a coyote has killed it you will find that he has taken all of the blood out of that sheep, and eight out of ten he doesn't eat one at all. I have had as high as sixteen lambs killed in one night and only one of them was eaten on. The rest of them were bitten in the throat and the blood taken from the jugular vein. It is different here than it is in eastern Oregon. Our sheep run in pastures all of the time, where there are sheep are herded in the day time and corralled at night.

The poison system was tried out in the Days Creek section and they have as many or more coyotes than any other place in the county. When the coyotes or cougar get to killing sheep the owner goes after the man with the dogs. But no man is going to take his dogs where he knows there is poison. The coyotes could be hunted if poison was not used.

There is several hundred dollars worth of fur taken off the small animals in this county each year, and that would be a total loss if poison were used.

No, brother sportsmen, I can't help but think that you have the wrong idea. In my opinion the only way to keep the varmints down is to put sufficient bounty on them to pay to hunt them. That way you would have from fifty to one hundred hunters instead of one. My idea to raise this money would be to put a tax on five cents per head on all sheep and goats in the county, which according to our tax rolls, would raise about $5,000. Put that with the $3,000 that is appropriated by the county court and it would give enough to pay for all coyotes caught in this county. I believe that within three years we would see a big difference. This tax should be assessed by the assessor and in this way the fellow that gets the protection would be paying his part. I do not believe that the sportsmen who are asking for the poison system fully realize what it means or they would not be doing so, because no true sportsman, and we have lots of them, want to see all of the small fur bearing animals killed off at a complete loss, and we won't get the coyotes that way.

If I were fixing the bounties on these varmints I would make them $5 on bob cats, $25 each on wolf and cougar, to match the $25 paid by the game commission which would make $50, and $25 on coyotes. I believe we would get results. Last season Irvin Rice of Oakland, and the fellows that hunted with him, caught 49 coyotes, and to my opinion that is more than would be poisoned in the whole county by a government hunter. It is true that the varmints have increased in the last few years, but the bounty was taken off part of the time and the bounty of coyotes is only $10 now. Most of the fellows that have dogs have been keeping the coyotes off their own sheep but have not been hunting anywhere else. It costs a lot of money to keep a bunch of dogs and run them some place else for nothing.

I believe that at least 90 per cent of the sheep men of this county will fight the poison system.

CAMAS VALLEY NEWS

Miss Ruth Bell, the primary teacher, is quite sick with neuritis. She is in the hospital at Roseburg. We are hoping she will be back for school Monday.

Esther Brown has missed a number of days of school on account of sickness. She is now improving and will be back with us Monday.

Dr. M. M. Reed, a resident of Edenbower, the M. E. pastor of Camas Valley, preached at the school house December 13.

A program will be held in the primary and intermediate rooms December 18, P. M., followed by a Christmas tree.

Mr. J. B. Stobie and Mr. J. H. Parrott each recently purchased a J. B. Colt carbide lighting plant.

The school board hired Mr. Albert Richter to haul gravel from Ten Mile and put under the giant stride and swings. This is a great improvement, as the ground was wet and muddy and the children constantly had wet feet.

FISH COMMISSION FACING SUITS TO TEST OREGON LAW

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

SALEM, Ore. Dec. 14—A new question relative to commercial fishing in Oregon is up for legal settlement in the case of J. W. Leclair against the fish commission, which will be heard at Marshfield next Friday, with W. S. Moore, assistant attorney general representing the state. Leclair's right to fish in New River, Coos county, is involved. There is no order of the commission or no special statute affecting the waters of New River in Coos county, although there is authority closing New River and New Lake in Curry county. Leclair brought suit to enjoin the master fish warden and his deputy from interfering with his operation of a gill net in New River in Coos county. The fish commission demurred, contending that an act of 1921 prohibiting commercial fishing in any waters over which the state has jurisdiction, except as otherwise provided by law, would apply against Leclair's operations in Coos county. The commission contends that since there have been no statutes enacted opening these waters to commercial fishing they are controlled by the general statute.

At Tillamook on Wednesday of this week will be heard the case of Tom Price against the fish commission and master fish warden, in which Price is attempting to have declared void an order from the commission closing to commercial fishing the waters of various streams tributary to Tillamook Bay on and after October 10, 1925, for an indefinite period. He contends that the commission is without jurisdiction and was attempting to enact legislation.

On the same day at Tillamook will be heard the case of John A. Nielson against the fish commission, an attack against an order closing Hoquarton slough to commercial fishing. A demurrer by the commission was sustained by Judge Bagley and an amended complaint has been filed.

EXPERIMENTAL FARM FOR O. A. C. NEAR HOOD RIVER

SALEM, Ore., Dec. 14—Through the attorney general's office a lease has been executed between Hood River county and the Caldwell-Dunham Investment Company whereby the county is to acquire a tract of land on the outskirts of Hood River for an experimental farm to be operated by Oregon Agricultural College.

The legislature of 1925 appropriated $12,000 annually for the maintenance of the farm, but no part of this money can be used for purchase of grounds or buildings. The land is valued at $25,000-225, and the county did not have the money to pay for it without incurring an indebtedness in excess of the $5,000 allowed by the constitution. To get around this difficulty the attorney-general's office made the arrangement for a lease agreement, whereby the county will appropriate a payment each year for five years and at the end of that period the county will acquire title.

DONOUGH SUCCEEDS EAKIN.

Home Candy Making

THERE are few homes where the young people do not delight to make their own Christmas candies. Here are a few simple recipes that even the beginner will find easy to make.

Peanut Brittle.—Take two cupfuls of granulated sugar, put into a smooth iron frying pan and set over the heat. Stir constantly while it is melting and when golden pour over a cupful of shelled peanuts which have been placed in a buttered dripping pan. Cool and break into pieces. For variety just before taking from the heat add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of soda, stir well then pour over the nuts. This is a peanut brittle which is not so hard and is liked better by many on that account.

College Cream.—Boil together one pound of brown sugar and one cupful of water until it hardens in water. Beat the white of an egg very stiff and pour the hot sugar over it, beating all the time; when it begins to be creamy add a half-cupful or more of broken nut meats.

Chocolate Caramels.—Put two and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter into a kettle; when melted add two cupfuls of molasses, one cupful of brown sugar and one-half cupful of milk. Stir until the sugar is dissolved and when the boiling point is reached add three squares of chocolate, stir constantly until the chocolate is melted. Boil until a firm ball can be gathered with the fingers from a drop put into cold water. Add vanilla and turn into buttered pans to cool. Mark in squares before it is too hard.

Glace.—This is a glace which may be used for dipping fruit or nuts. Boil two cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of water and one-eighth of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar to 200 degrees Fahr. without stirring. Check the heat by placing the saucepan in cold water. Then immediately place it in a pan of boiling water to keep the glace in condition for dipping.

certain that the student body will heartily approve our choice."

Because this is examination week, the regular procedure of first having the athletic committee sift through the names of prospective coaches and select one to go to the executive council and then have the council finally vote on him and employ him, if satisfactory to that body, was done away with and instead the athletic and executive bodies met together. The meeting was called early this morning, Malcolm explained, as that was the only time he could get all the members of both committees to attend. The appointment was a complete surprise to the students and members of the faculty who thought that the selection of a coach would be held over until after the holidays because of the examinations.

Liberty Theatre.

With Silver King shining alternately in the role of an outlaw bucker, a devoted horse, and an understudy for a freight engine, "All Around Frying Pan," featuring Fred Thomson, which is now showing at the Liberty Theatre provides the wonder horse of this popular star with perhaps more opportunity than he has ever had before to be a spectacular entertainer. Thomson fans have been delighted with the latest production of their favorite at every screening; and those who do not go to see it today will miss literally two shows in one. The far-famed Alturas Round-up, one of the great cowboy classics of the west, is a sort of show within a show.

Majestic Theatre.

"Thunder Mountain," a thrilling and dramatic story of the Kentucky hills, comes to the Majestic Theatre, tonight.

Lovely Madge Bellamy has the leading faminine role in the production, appearing as Azalea, a little orphan, who runs away from the cruel owner of a shoddy little two-ring circus to what appears to be the lesser of two evils, life among the crude mountaineers.

Leslie Fenton, a newcomer to the screen, plays opposite her in the role of Sam Martin, a mountain lad, who develops from the worst boy on Thunder Mountain into an idealistic chap whose ambition is to educate his people.

Antlers Theatre.

A cat can look at a queen.

And an American can make love to a princess, despite conventional barriers and royal objections.

That is conclusively demonstrated in "Graustark," starring Norma Talmadge, which Joseph M. Schenck has produced from the George Barr McCutcheon novel for First National. The romantic story of love and intrigue in a mythical kingdom in southern Europe has been moderated to the ideas of the new generation. It opened yesterday at the Antlers Theatre.

When a dashing young American loses his heart to a princess who happens to be touring this country and then follows her to her plottorn kingdom, adventures and perils are bound to follow. Add an evil prince who wants to do away with the crusading foreigner and marry the royal beauty himself. And around this situation with kings, ambassadors, conspirators, old-world dungeons, and regiments of picturesque soldiers,
