ed out by the Department of Agriculture in cooperation with farm leaders would be introduced in the house and senate, perhaps before Christmas recess and rushed to passage early in the year.

Coal Strike Comment.

Demand that President Coolidge take some action in the emergency resulting from the anthracite strike, was made in the house today by Representative Black, democrat of New York.

Consider War Debts.

Action on the war debt funding settlement, negotiated during the summer, including those with Italy and Belgium was postponed today by the house ways and means committee, pending a hearing.

The committee, which must approve the agreements before they are submitted to the house, called upon Secretary Mellon to submit certain data and then recessed on January 4, when action is given to the members of the debt commission will be heard.

While this step was an unusual one, members insisted it was not indicative of opposition to the settlements.

In the senate also the settlements have encountered an indefinite delay.

Rubber Price Probe Asked.

A resolution calling for an investigation of alleged manipulation of crude rubber prices by British colonial governments was given preferred status today on the legislative program of the house.

The resolution was introduced yesterday by Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the Republican floor leader, who action is giving it priority was taken by the rules committee. It would direct the house commerce committee to conduct an investigation "of the means and methods of control of production and exportation of crude rubber, coffee, sisal, quicksilver, potash, nitrates and other such raw materials," and the effect of such control upon United States commerce both as to supply and price.

Action by the rules committee was unanimous and sponsors of the resolution said it would be pushed through the house in short order when it was brought up for a vote.

NEWS GLEANINGS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Prince Christian of Hesse dined with King George and Queen Mary recently, thus giving the answer to the question which has been raised often since the war, as to who would be the first individual of German origin to be entertained at Buckingham Palace after the close of hostilities.

Prince Christian came to London to attend the funeral of Queen Mother Alexandra, "Aunt Alex," he called her.

Early in the war he attracted public notice by writing an open letter to Kaiser Wilhelm at the beginning of the submarine campaign and resigning his commission in the German navy as a protest. Even before that incident, however, the ruling family of Hesse was not exactly on what could be considered good terms with the Hohenzollerns.

Prince Christian is preparing to return soon to Cannes, where he has a beautiful home and spends much of his time.

Women have invaded the calling of bell-ringing in England to a considerable extent and in London women have a bell ringers' guild of their own.

Miss F. I. Hairs, secretary of the guild, helps to ring the bells of St. Margaret's, Westminster, for weddings and is the only woman employed there.

The bell ringing at St. Clement Dances, in the Strand, for the Queen Alexandra, ten women worked vigorously for 45 minutes. The heaviest bell, the tenor, which weighs 23 tons, was handled by Miss R. Hawkworth, 19 years old, the youngest members of the guild.

"A strong man, who does not understand bell ringing would probably hang himself, if he tried to handle the rope of his great church bell," said Mrs. Hairs. "It is all a matter of knack and practice. One must pull the rope the right time to keep the bell swinging properly."

One hundred and one professional pantomimes are in rehearsal in England for the Christmas season. This is discouraging to the Croaker who have contended that the days of the pantomime are over.

Plays which are not very successful in the larger English cities are preparing to make way for pantomimes to amuse children and grown-ups alike, during the holiday season.

So great is the demand for pantomime actors that the regular stage cannot supply more than the principals. Minor roles are acted by amateur performers, many of whom have had years of experience. Unemployed moving picture actors and street vendors and even charwomen are called in for some of the parts.

Americans who see Sir Austen Chamberlain in parliament are impressed with the resemblance he bears to the late Woodrow Wilson in the days when the late president was making his first campaign for the presidency.

When Sir Austen is not wearing his monocle, his slender face has a striking likeness to that of Mr. Wilson in his earlier political career.

Sir Austen is about the size and height and figure as the late president and carries himself with much the same quiet dignity. There is also similarity in their method of public speech-making. Sir Austen is deliberate and slow in his speech. He uses few gestures but employs his right hand in emphasizing points much after the manner of Mr. Wilson.

However, the resemblance is confined almost entirely to personal appearance, manner and bearing. Sir Austen's voice is wholly unlike that of Mr. Wilson.

George Bernard Shaw hates the movies and will not allow any of his plays to be filmed. He was horrified upon attending a production of his "Saint Joan" at the Palace Theatre, Manchester, to see a moving picture advertisement flashed on the curtain during one of the intermissions.

Shaw immediately sent one of his famous postcards to the house management, saying he would be expected to pay 15% of the revenue derived from this advertisement in addition to the royalty on the play. Shaw's share was eighteen shillings for the week's display of the advertisement. But Allen Young, the manager of the

EUGENE WOMAN IS BADLY INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

(Associated Press Local Wire.)

MERCED, Cal., Dec. 19.—Mrs. W. C. Yoran, of Eugene, Ore., who suffered a broken pelvic bone and serious internal injuries in an automobile accident near Merced yesterday, will undergo a second operation at the Mercy Hospital here this afternoon. Her condition is critical and physicians advance small hopes for her recovery.

Her husband, who was driving the car which skidded on wet pavement and turned over, was only slightly hurt. The couple were enroute to Pasadena to visit relatives.

STATE FLAX PLANT UNDER JURY PROBE

SALEM, Ore., Dec. 19.—The Marion county grand jury this afternoon began an investigation of the state flax industry at the pentennial.

This investigation comes as something of a surprise, since it was not shown that such a probe was pending, and it whose request the investigation is being made could not be learned. It is understood, however, that a minute scrutiny of the book records of the industry will be made to ascertain what business methods are being used by the state in promoting the flax enterprise. Another phase of the investigation, it is believed, may grow out of criticism made by a number of farmers during the incumbency of Robert Crawford as superintendent of the flax industry to the effect that poor seed was furnished by the state, resulting in the curtailed crop of the last season.

Crawford was a few weeks ago removed from the post of superintendent by Governor Pierce and J. J. Quinlan took his place. Further the mechanical methods used by the state in handling the flax at the prison may be looked into.
