PERIQUE TOBACCO GROWING A PECULIARLY LOUISIANA CROP

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 26.—In the parish of St. James, a short way from New Orleans, is a historic and picturesque industry, infrequently in comparison with many of the other bountiful agricultural crops of the state, but which is peculiarly Louisiana. This is the Perique tobacco industry, alone in the world.

First grown many years ago by an Acadian whose name the tobacco now bears, its cultivation has been kept up continuously ever since by direct lineal descendants of the original M. Perique. Cultivation is confined to a very small area on the banks of the Mississippi, where a favorable combination of soil and climate is particularly adapted to its growth.

This tobacco, which finds its chief use as a seasoning for mixtures, is exceedingly strong, with a distinct flavor and aroma. Not many more than 500 acres are given over to its growth.

Perique is raised in much the same manner as any other sun tobacco, the land being properly plowed over and the rows set about five feet apart. The seed is sown early in January and re-planted in March or April. The harvesting is done in July. The tobacco then is hung in the sheds to dry, stripped and placed in presses until the following March or April when it is ready for the market.

Perique, like wine, improves with age. The yield is about 500 pounds to the acre and its price fluctuates with the demands of the market. Roseburg's new ballroom, The Oriental Gardens, will open Wednesday, Jan. 6, here.

SUBSTITUTES FOR ENGLISH TENNIS TERMS CRITICIZED

PARIS, Dec. 26.—"Lob," "smash," and "drive," as applied to tennis are three words the translation of which into French has stumped the French sporting writers in a campaign to eliminate the English vocabulary from their articles on sport events.

The best they have been able to find is "chandel" for lob, "coup de longueur" for drive and "cette crease" for smash.

Jean Samazeuilh, former champion of France at tennis, takes exception to the accuracy and practicability of the translation and in an article in a sports weekly, asks the players to ignore the scribbles, and especially to execute the shots well on the courts, let the writers call them what they wish.

PINCHED POCKETBOOK CAUSES VIENNA TO SHIFT MEAL HOURS

VIENNA, Dec. 28.—A pinched pocketbook is responsible for a rearrangement of the habits of the best society people in Vienna, as far as meals are concerned. Families are trying to enjoy life as much as possible on a small income and in order to take in dances and music, have abolished the set evening dinner.

Instead, tea is now taken an hour later, generally at six o'clock, so that sons and daughters working in the city can participate. Circles of friends take this meal at each others flats in turn, and there is dancing to wireless or the gramophone until nine. This is followed by a "hot sausage" meal with which horse-radish is served together with any sandwiches left over from tea.

The new custom is considered not only economical, but tends to keep society in better condition physically, ladies preserving the slimmest so necessary for present-day fashions.

McMahon of the state traffic department. The officers claim that Sparks was driving at a fast speed in a dense fog. The defendant denies the charge of reckless driving and demanded a jury trial, the case being heard this afternoon. He acted as his own attorney.

SOCIAL TEMPEST DISTURBS ELITE OF U. S. CAPITAL

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—Two rival society leaders of Washington are giving New Year's Eve balls tonight and the capital smart set is faced with an embarrassing situation.

Having invitations to both affairs and warned by friends of the two hostesses, that attendance at the other's ball will affect their future social ratings, members of society are wondering what to do.

The customary compromise, that of attending both, has been denied, the hostesses being quoted to the effect that those who dance at one ball will not be welcomed at the other.

The rivals are Mrs. George T. Marrye, wife of the former American ambassador to Russia, and Mrs. Joseph Leiter, wife of the Chicago millionaire, both prominent here for years.

It was learned that Mrs. Marrye was the first to announce a ball, which is to be complimented her daughter, Helen, and her fiancé, Lieutenant William D. Thomas, of the naval air service. Mrs. Leiter was said not to have received an invitation and a few days later she arranged her own party.

Mrs. Leiter was quoted by her friends as saying that Mrs. Marrye had no right to New Year's Eve for her ball. To that Mrs. Marrye is said to have asked whether Mrs. Leiter was to be permitted to dominate Washington society.

OREGON CONVICTS LOSE COURT ROUND

King to save Elsworth Kelley and James Willos from the hangman's noose, and refused to take cognizance of a similar motion in the case of Tom Murray. Refusal to hear the plea in Murray's case was based on the ground that his case is now before the supreme court. It is understood that the state will resist the motion for arrest of judgment before the supreme court on the ground that such a motion must be filed within one day. In addition the state will resist the contentions on their merits if necessary.

WITH DEATH GOES MARKET VALUE OF MOVIE STARDOM

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 26.—Why the public will pay money to read a dead man's books, see a dead man's plays or hear a dead man's music, and yet invariably will spurn the acting of a film star who has died, is a question which perplexes motion picture producers.

Particularly puzzling it is when it is considered that the average film fan never sees the living body of his favorite actor, but only the reflection of that body upon the screen. Yet when a screen celebrity is buried, his other self upon the film is buried too, just as effectively, it seems, as if the actor and his celluloid counterpart had been boxed in the same coffin.

When John Bunny, the popular comedian of early movie days, died during the height of his fame it was accepted as a foregone conclusion by officials of Vitagraph, the company which had featured him in scores of productions, that his motion picture immortality was assured. His death they thought was an opportunity to demonstrate a great movie miracle—the power that is in the films to make a man live on beyond the grave, as real as lifelike to his audiences as if he never had died.

But the public dropped John Bunny with emphatic suddenness. His company filmed Bunny's pictures were a drug on the market. He was dead; the papers had said so; and film fans declined to pay money to see the shadow of a man scarcely any of them had ever seen in the flesh. His pictures died with him.

When Sidney Drew died an attempt was made to continue showing the delightful comedies of married life in which he and Mrs. Drew had risen to popularity. The attempt failed.

Similar were the experiences with Harold Lockwood, Olive Thomas, Jack Pickford's wife, and Wallace Reid—invariably the public rejecting films which had

CALIFORNIA ASKS PIERCE TO DELIVER ALLEGED CROOK

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 31.—Governor Richardson today issued a requisition on the governor of Oregon for the extradition of Harvey F. Ross under arrest in Portland and wanted in San Diego for passing worthless checks. Ross is alleged to have swindled hotel men and others by first winning their confidence with a display of great quantities of currency and then allowing them to cash checks of large denominations for him. He posed as a carelessly wealthy Texan.

HIGH BIDDING FOR FOOT-BALL COACHES IS RAPPED

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Declaring that "a serious threat of tingling collegiate football with professionalism is evident from the over-enthusiasm on the necessity of winning," Brigadier General Palmer E. Pierce, president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, today attacked the practice of competitive bidding for coaches' services.

He referred without names to the negotiations between Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach, and Columbia university and in another instance apparently to the engagement of Captain J. J. McEwan of the army to coach the University of Oregon.
