amplifiers, and broadcasting stations carried the tones throughout the United States.

Struck by a gold hammer in the hands of Mrs. W. Freeland Kendrick, wife of Philadelphia's mayor, the bells announced the beginning of the New Year, and the dawn of Philadelphia's sesquicentennial celebration.

The ceremony attendant on the ringing of the old bell was replete with history pageantry which portrayed the birth of the American nation, whence the bell derived its fame.

Troops clad in Revolutionary era arms took up their posts as sentries and the old night watchman stood guard in Independence Square.

The Grand Union flag of Cambridge, the first emblem of American independence, raised by Gen. George Washington, was run up the flagpole at the rear of the state house.

Keep Order, Portland Rule. PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 31.—Portland prepared to greet the New Year tonight with less rowdiness and noise, but with more private and public celebrations than ever before.

Police were to "give and take a little" in countenancing activities of celebrants, J. T. Mason, police inspector, proclaimed in orders to the force, adding that no rowdiness would be allowed in the city.

Roadhouses and other places of amusement outside the city were to be dry, Sheriff Matt Starwich declared. His full staff would patrol the county during the night, he said.

Thirty Go to Tijuana. SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 31.—Out in the wide open spaces, and in some of the closed ones, where men as a rule are men, many of them turned boys again for a while tonight as the entries in the human race passed the first quarter post of the twentieth century.

If the shades of those intrepid men who wore the west with axe and pick and hoe looked down upon the main thoroughfares and in the hotels and cafes of the larger cities of the coast they saw more fragile weapons wielded. Horns, whistles and rattles were the arms and ammunition of these stalkers of a wilderness of traffic outside and tables and potting ferns within.

Some were cynical enough to say that many picks were used, but the ice did, only.

San Diego reported large caravans of automobile parties went to Tijuana, Mexican resort town across the line from California, and patronized cafes and bars there.

In four months from July 1 to November 1, 920 aliens were admitted here and 1,172 cleared for foreign ports.

In San Francisco during the same period admissions totaled 829 and the number leaving 864.

In the last fiscal year 3,494 Chinese were admitted here, and 181 departed. The total number of alien visitors was 327,427 and 4,887 were departed.

THEATRES

Majestic Theatre Eden Arizona, boasted nothing but Adams when it got its Eve, things began to happen and the town perked up a bit. It made its Eve mayor and backed her with guns and fists. What happened before and during her regime is the basis for the plot of "Daring Days," Universal-Blue Streak Western starring Jesse Sedgwick which is now being screened at the Majestic theatre. Among the players supporting Miss Sedgwick are Edward Hearn, Fred Cole, Zama Zamora, Harry Rattenberry, Henry Todd, Ben Corbett, T. C. Jack and Ted Oliver. "Daring Days" was directed by John B. O'Brien.

Antlers Theatre Many stories and many pictures have dealt with the adventures of the stalwart men who crossed the western plains and mountains in 1849 to seek gold in the Sacramento valley of California. But "The Splendid Road," a First National release which comes to the Antlers theatre Friday and Saturday, is the first film to have for its central character a lone woman pioneer.

The story concerns the romance of a woman who came to the gold country by water from Boston; who, after adopting three motherless children, proceeds to face the rigors of a rough mining life with a determined smile.

Miss Nilsson does heroic work as the lovable woman pioneer. Co-starring with her are Robert Frazer and Lionel Barrymore.

Liberty Theatre For arenic thrills that dwarf by comparison the splendid spectacles of the old Roman coliseum, F. B. O.'s latest melodrama, "The Midnight Flyer," takes the palm. Critics who have seen this vivid story of railroading in the mountains of West Virginia are almost unanimous in admitting that it is one of the most exciting offerings of the season.

From the early trials of the railroaders in the feudal territory where progress is fought tooth and nail by the ignorant mountaineers to the breath-taking finish in which a brave young engineer races his freight locomotive up beside a runaway "Special," leaps to the cab of the latter going seventy miles an hour, and battles the crazed driver, there is not a dull moment in the production.

Two stories by Arthur Guy Empey were cleverly combined by J. Grubb Alexander to make a gripping tale. "The Midnight Flyer," comes to the Liberty theatre next Sunday for its first showing in this community.

Liberty Theatre Miss Jane Murfin, owner of the famous dog actor, Strongheart, and by whose courtesy the dog appeared in Associated Exhibitors' picture "North Star," playing at the Liberty theatre this week, was asked if she felt the dog could understand remarks addressed to him.

"He certainly seems to," was Miss Murfin's opinion. "Many people have asked me if I credited him with a soul and a mind. I hesitate to say definitely whether he really has, although I am strongly inclined to believe that he has. But I do know that he is endowed with instincts stronger than any humans, and that his character and personality are just as individual."

In "North Star" Strongheart is the one loyal friend of a frightened, inexperienced boy whose acquaintances were all parasites and enemies. How he saves the boy from the worst of the parasites, and how he brings the boy's sister and the hero together is told in a thrilling series of scenes.

The roads included are the most important in the country. Secretary Jardine said, and reach directly or indirectly every city of more than 5,000 population. Ten thousand miles of federal aid highways were finished during 1925, with a total expenditure of approximately the same as for the coming fiscal year, he added, with indications that the coming year will be equally successful.
