NATIVES TO TAHITI CARRY AILMENTS TO A NEW HEALER

PAPEETE, Tahiti, Jan. 27.—(A. P.)—When old Tural, greatest of native healers of Tahiti, died seven years ago he left a prediction that after him would arise a healer who would be his superior. Now the native populace is flocking to Tural's successor.

Tales of the "Miracle Man's" marvelous cures are in circulation and although the natives of Tahiti are civilized and ordinarily highly sophisticated, they are abandoning European physicians and transferring their faith to the new healer.

Hundreds are taking their ailments to him daily.

No claimant of curative powers had the reputation or commanded the faith of the natives in a manner equalling Tural. But his prophecy of a successor is now aiding the man enjoying popular acclaim.
