

REVENUE FROM FOREST AREAS PATTERSON AIM

Candidate for gubernatorial nomination has strong platform.

PLANS PRACTICAL

Candidacy based on platform of practical and constructive policies for administration.

Administration of the national forest areas in Oregon so that the counties receive a just portion of the net proceeds is one of the issues upon which Senator I. L. Patterson, of Polk county, is basing his candidacy for the republican nomination for governor of Oregon.

"I know and realize," Mr. Patterson says, "that the western portion of our state, and particularly the southwestern counties thereof, have great areas of national forest reserves, and contain within their boundaries large portions of the Oregon and California railroad grant lands, and that congress will undoubtedly be called upon to enact legislation reimbursing these counties for the loss of taxes caused by the removal of these timber lands from the tax rolls of the respective counties, or by permitting these counties to retain the net proceeds from the sale of the timber from these lands.

"Surely the United States government will appreciate the justice of a fair cause and permit our state agencies to retain the net proceeds from the sales of the nationally owned timber lands, and permit these proceeds equitably to be divided between state and county for the proper development of our various public projects.

"The public lands of right are the property of the state, held in trust by the national government for the benefit of the people who are certainly entitled to the net proceeds received by the government.

"The large bodies of such lands in many counties of our state, held by the national government and not subject to taxation, create an almost unbearable situation for the taxpayer and should be corrected by legislation at the earliest possible date.

"It is a most oppressive and unjust policy to expect some of our counties, one half of whose area is within a national forest, to tax its people directly for the development and the improvement of the total area. Should not the federal government assume its just burden? Is anything more reasonable and just?"

"It does not wish us to retain the proceeds from the sale of the timber from these forest lands and does not wish to contribute to the improvement of our highways and waterways, and if it refuses to develop our reclamation projects and still wishes to maintain one half of western Oregon for a national playground, for the benefit of all the people of the United States, at the expense of our own citizens and taxpayers, then we should go to congress and say:

"Gentlemen, as a matter of equity and justice to our people, you should appropriate our claim and, at least, appropriate a sufficient sum of money annually, and allocate it to the respective burdened counties proportionately at a ratio that the value of the forest reserve lands bear to the assessed valuation of lands on the tax rolls within the respective counties, and thereby, in a small way, help carry the burden of government of these heavily bonded counties. Indebtedness has contributed to the wealth of these public domains."

Senator Patterson, by reason of his close contact with the national administration, it is believed, could be of great assistance to the Oregon delegation in congress in bringing about national legislation beneficial to the state in respect to its public lands.

There is nothing sensational in Senator Patterson's platform which is made up of practical and constructive policies intended to protect the investments made in the improvement and development of the state and to proceed with state development in an orderly manner, using business and not political methods in the expenditure of public funds.

SENATOR I. L. PATTERSON, Candidate for Republican Nomination for Governor.

playing a game of chess for forty days and nights at an enormous expense, to see whether the governor or legislature would be put in a hole, the taxpayer paying the usual bill and receiving little for his money."

Senator Patterson is a practical man, a successful farmer and appreciates the farmers' problems. He is an able legislator and an organizer of marked executive ability.

CHICAGO'S SILENT NIGHT VICTORY FOR 'DX' FANS

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Mighty voices of a big city silent for the benefit of its distance hunting listeners—that is the distinction fans of Chicago have won thru the cooperation of its broadcasting stations.

Not only do stations in the city maintain silence, but those within a 25 mile radius stay off the air each Monday night, attaching to this area the honor of being the only large radio center in the country with a real silent night.

Silence came to Chicago thru a "gentlemen's agreement" between owners of broadcasting stations indirectly upon a request by the listeners. It started in the early days of broadcasting and has been maintained only through this understanding. And whenever a transmitter decided that it would oppose the agreement, a loud protest from the listeners brought it into the fold again.

Although its silent night plan at present seems to be operating smoothly, it was not always the case. Stations within the city have ever maintained adherence to the idea, but with the improvement in transmitter and increasing power, radioets began springing up outside the city, close enough to be classed as "locals."

When one or two suburban stations continued to broadcast on Monday nights, very little was heard in opposition. Others came on the air, making it almost impossible for many to gather in the much sought distance. Strenuous opposition, fostered by the Broadcast Listeners associations, last fall developed into a "listeners strike," in which the "strickers" declared they would not tune in one "outlet" station at any time.

The outcome was a victory for the listeners. All of the offending stations, after several parleys, agreed to meet the wishes of their listeners.

Peace has since reigned, with only here and there a cropping out of dissension. The most recent ruffling of the surface was a report that one suburban station after agreeing to remain silent after changing hands, was on the air Monday nights. An additional disturbing report has been that one station within the city would come on at stated intervals on the quiet nights to give the fans reports on how the distance was being received and to announce which of the distance stations had the best programs.

This latter plan has met with opposition, fans declaring that they desire to "use our own receivers to find out how the distance is going."

AT THE ANDERSON MEETINGS

Special Service for High School Students Last Night—Negro Spiritual Music Feature—Children to Be Given Treat Tonight—Meeting for Men to Be Held Sunday Afternoon.

Sunday, 9:45—Evangelist Anderson urges everyone to attend some Bible School. A suggestion has been made that during the days of the Religious Campaign in Roseburg—that additional effort be made to build up the attendance at the Bible schools. If you will be one to attend, it will happen.

Sunday, 11 a. m.—Preaching at different churches. Members of the Evangelical party will attend worship in the various churches.

Sunday, 3 p. m.—MASS MEETING for MEN and BOYS ONLY, at the ARMOY—Theme: "America—Safety First." A red hot message straight from the shoulders and out of the heart of the Evangelist. Prof. Stout will sing. No real American should miss this great meeting.

Sunday, 7:30 p. m.—Union Meeting of all Young People. Various societies will merge their different meetings. Come. Special seats will be reserved at the Armory for all those who attend this meeting.

Sunday, 7:30 p. m.—At the Armory. Anderson will speak on "Roseburg's Greatest Asset." No meetings on Monday. The armory was full of people last night. Also, full of pep. Roseburg high school was there in a body, occupying the central section of the main floor and part of the balcony. The students came with their girls and songs and enthusiasm, and were heartily cheered by the audience. The music was varied and interesting. A negro spiritual "The Hypocrite's Shoe" was sung by the Evangelist Anderson and Prof. Stout, and this was encored. Two high school girls sang a duet, Mrs. Stover rendered one of her excellent cornet solos, and Prof. Stout sang with effect, "What will you do with Jesus?"

Tonight is children's night, and a special program has been prepared under Mrs. Stover, to be rendered by the children. At 3 p. m. Sunday there is to be a meeting at the Armory, and out, finding his text in the 25th Chapter of Genesis, where the account is given of the selling by Esau of his birthright, to his brother Jacob, for a mess of pottage. The Bible is a very human book, as well as a divine book.

Last night Mr. Anderson preached on the subject "Safety and Out," finding his text in the 25th Chapter of Genesis, where the account is given of the selling by Esau of his birthright, to his brother Jacob, for a mess of pottage. The Bible is a very human book, as well as a divine book.

There are rights given by the state and by society, and there are rights given by God. Sin has marred the relationship, and God wants to bring it back to normal in this building. There is not a person in this building tonight whom God has not endowed with a spiritual birthright. There are rights given by the state and by society, and there are rights given by God. Sin has marred the relationship, and God wants to bring it back to normal in this building.

"People sell out for three things. There are people in Roseburg today who are not Christians because they have never given a thought, they have never read the Bible, never listened to the message of the church. They are just giving the church the go-by. They are selling their spiritual birthright; first, for the almighty dollar; and that which the dollar will buy. Whatever the almighty dollar says, they do. There are many people lost to Jesus Christ because they love money more than they love God. Money is a money that causes a great deal of crime. Money will curse a country and curse a home and curse an individual. A man says, 'I don't want my son to have a hard time.' How foolish to think that giving him money is going to give him a good time! Young people, don't sell out your spiritual birthright for the almighty dollar! Thank God there are some people who don't!"

The speaker referred to Will Hayes, head of the motion picture industry, who gave up his official position at Washington to accept $150,000 a year with the movies and who tried to get Patty Arducke back upon the screen. Mr. Anderson scored Hayes for his subservience to the financial side of the movies, and his remarks were received with applause.

"When that man stood up in Hollywood and tried to defend the character of Fatty Arbuckle, he sold out, in my estimation; for the almighty dollar. Your grandfather and your grandmother wouldn't have done it. Thank God that American history reveals that there are those who would not sell out! John R. Mott was offered the ambassadorship to China, but he turned to President Roosevelt and said 'I am sorry, Mr. President, but I have the highest calling that can come to any man, and that is to be a Christian minister. I cannot take the position of ambassador to China.' A great corporation offered him fifty thousand dollars a year, but John R. Mott stood in a circle of the directors and looked those men in the eye, tears rolling down his cheeks, and he said: 'Gentlemen, to think that you have known me in my work in the Young Men's Christian Association these many years, and yet you come to tempt me with such a beggarly offer.'"

And he turned his back on $50,000 a year to remain president of the Y. M. C. A. at $5,000 a year.

FOOD PRODUCTS MERGER NAMED A GIANT TRUST

Department of Justice Asks Injunction to Combat Movement.

MANY ARE INVOLVED

Widely Known Chain Store Organizations Plan to Join in One Big Unit to Market Goods.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The Department of Justice in its second big anti-trust procedure of the week, asked the federal court in New York today for an injunction against another proposed merger of dealers in food products.

The action is against the National Food Products Corporation and nine individuals, and involves some of the most widely known chain store organizations of the country.

The individuals named were H. C. Bohack, C. S. Burdun, L. McBerndt, B. S. Halsey, J. A. McBerndt, Charles B. Crane, Ernest H. Wands, William H. Hall and Ernest J. Halberg.

It was charged in the government's petition for a restraining order under the Clayton act that the National Food Products corporation had acquired through exchange of stock control of the following companies:

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, National Dairy Products corporation, H. C. T. Bohack company, Inc., James Butler Grocery company, United States Stores corporation, David Fender Grocery company, First National Stores, Inc., Abbots Alderney Dairies, Inc., the Borden company, Reid Ice Cream company, United States Dairy Products corporation, and the Detroit Creamery company.

The government asserted that it was the program of the National Food Products corporation to operate as a holding company for the various units it asked that the court compel the corporation to dispose of itself of the stock of competing corporations already acquired and enjoin it from subsequently acquiring or controlling any phase of the subsidiary corporations.

This phase of the government's action is similar to that employed against the Ward Food Products and the Moro states, in which incorporation in a suit filed in Baltimore Monday. The petition asked the action today followed by less than 10 days the advertisements of public financing of the National Food Products corporation.

Demand for seed flax in Oregon is greater than the supply, the experiment station reports. The tariff of 40 cents a bushel of flax seed is protecting the growers against foreign competition. Where freight rates are high there is a big advantage in growing seed flax in preference to the fiber variety.

Experiments with flax seed production in Oregon are being carried on at the Union station and the Moro station. Results at the Union station have been favorable for many years, and the station is now recommending its growth. Results at the Moro station are not yet satisfactory enough to warrant recommendation in that section. Late plantings in previous years have had serious losses from heat canker. With early planting last year much better results were obtained. Corvallis station results correspond with those of the Moro station and many other stations in the north west.

Field peas are a good spring-planted forage crop for both eastern and western Oregon. When planted with alfalfa, barley or oats on some of the cool irrigated projects, field peas do particularly well, the experiment station reports. In the Willamette valley, for those desiring a leguminous forage that may be planted in March, the station recommends field peas and oats. For the coast district on some of the soils too sour for vetch, peas and oats have given good results when planted in March, April or even in early May.

Ladina clover seed growing in some of the eastern Oregon irrigated sections promises to be a good industry for those interested. Ladina clover is the giant form of white clover, that has come here from northern Italy. It is intermediate between white clover and alsike clover, and has the perennial habit of white clover. Experiment station trials have proved it very productive for pasture in the coast district. In the Willamette valley, and in eastern Oregon irrigated sections in Crook, Lake and in Malheur counties. Good seed yields have been secured in both Crook and Lake counties. The seed price is high and the demand good. Results show that it succeeds best on land that is free from white clover and alsike clover.

The meeting last night was very interesting. After the delicious banquet, served in the usual pleasant style maintained by the hotel management, a discussion of club business took place. It was decided to hold a days of '49 show at some date to be set in the near future. The plans for the telegraph shoot were considered and other activities talked of.

A fine address was made by E. F. Averill, state game warden, who spoke on matters pertaining to game preservation, and cooperation in law enforcement. He urged the attendance of sportsmen at the state convention to be held on February 22 and the local club voted to send a delegate to the convention, at which a number of matters of statewide importance will be considered.

ENTIRE CREW TAKEN FROM SINKING CRAFT

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) PORTLAND, Maine, Feb. 13.—All the members of the crew of the German steamship Apis were rescued, when she was abandoned at sea, 1,380 miles east of Cape Race last Friday.

This was learned today with the arrival here of the Dutch steamer Driebergen, which removed the men from the sinking craft. The rescued party numbered 24.

The Driebergen, which is bringing in 5,000 tons of German coal from Rotterdam, was anchored in the lower harbor and will not dock until early next week, but it was learned from the pilot who brought her in that all of the Apis company were saved and that none was injured. The rescue was accomplished between gales while mountainous seas were running and with great danger to the seamen from the Driebergen, which stood by the doomed craft from 1 o'clock at night.

When she left the Apis, a steel hip, was in a sinking condition. The port physician went down to the ship early in the morning and it was expected the examinations of the crews of the two ships would be completed early, so that there might be no delay in bringing ashore those from the Apis.

Look out for coughs and colds. They are unexpected visitors and bad tenants. All cough and cold remedies at Lloyd Crocker's drug store.
