S. P. MACHINISTS TRANSFERRED TO PORTLAND SHOPS

Six machinists have been ordered transferred from the local railroad shops to the Portland shops, and will leave soon to take up their duties at Brooklyn. The transfer is made necessary by the fact that the new passenger type of locomotive is being used on through passenger trains, and engines are not changed here as formerly, making less work in the shops here, but more at Portland. The engines change crews here so that there is to be no transfers of train or engine crews for the present. The machinists will take up their new work with full seniority rights.

OREGON RANGE STOCK DID WELL IN MILD WINTER

Overhead too Big to Allow Profitable Returns, Is Report of State Veterinarian.

(Associated Press Local Wire.)
SALEM, Ore., Feb. 27.—A thousand mile trip through eastern and central Oregon shows that the winter just closing has been the most favorable in many years for livestock, says State Veterinarian W. H. Lytle. The overhead, which has been so ruinous in the previous years, has been cut to less than that of any year in the last decade so far as wintering costs are concerned. Reasonably cheap feed and mild weather have been responsible for this reduction.

"The winter has been somewhat short of precipitation and because of this some difficulty may be experienced by sheep owners who range lambs," said Dr. Lytle. "The surface lakes and snow drifts that are usually drawn upon are at present not available; whether or not the early spring rains will be sufficient to supply this necessary water is yet to be seen."
"Wool is of average quality and staple and everything seems fine except the price, which in most years would be regarded as highly favorable, but owing to the increased expense of running range outfits high prices for wool are necessary. The early winter lambing has been highly satisfactory."

"Cattle are looking up. Reports were current in Harney county of $50 a round being offered for cows and calves."
"The state has been notably free from livestock diseases. No sheep scab exists in the state at the present time and no animal plague of any consequence exist in range animals. A malady that has occasioned some horse losses has been diagnosed as infectious anemia."
"Hay is selling for around $40 a ton. The problem that seems to be giving the stock owner trouble at the present time is how to cut down the overhead. Increased taxes, high price labor, forest reserve fees, all drain heavily upon the revenues and there seems to be a general feeling that excessive land holdings are a detriment."

"The horse growers have practically gone out of business, although their industry still carries on because their animals are in a measure self-sustained and in the course of a few years there should be a market demand for horses for breeding foundation purposes."

MILLRACE AT EUGENE TAKES ANOTHER LIFE

County officials were working this afternoon to recover the body. Officials, in a large row boat, were dragging the race, but no trace of the body had been found this afternoon. The stream is very swift at the scene of the accident.

LUMBER PLANT IN LANE COUNTY GOES UNDER HAMMER

EUGENE, Ore., Feb. 27.—Purchase of the entire holdings of the Coast Range Lumber company at Mahab was made today by the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago at sheriff's sale.

The price, including real estate and holdings, was $256,022.95, the amount of the judgment given the bank recently. A second mortgage of $215,000 is held by the Dollar-Portland Lumber company.
T. T. Bennett, Marshfield attorney, represented the plaintiff in the sale. H. Lorber of Portland represented the Dollar-Portland Lumber company, but this organization did not put in a bid.

The sale included about 8,000 acres of timber land, a logging railroad of about eight miles, all mill buildings and machinery, and a large part of the town of Mahab.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 27.—The fresh egg market was well on a lower trend at the close of the week after opening strong last Monday. Today extras and firsts are a cent lower at 27 and 25 cents respectively. Other grades were steady, although receipts were fractionally lower at 23 cents.

Prices are now practically at last week's level, with extras a cent under last Saturday. Members of the Portland dairy exchange have voted to go on a net basis March 8. After considerable investigation of other exchanges they decided to give the prices a try out and if it is not satisfactory they will return eggs are subject to a percent discount and butter 6 per cent.

Butter ruled generally steady throughout the week at current levels and cube prices were unchanged on the local boards at the close. The make now is pretty well balanced with this market's requirements and no change in contemplated in print prices soon.

Live poultry is scarce and the prices are fractionally higher. Light hens are firm at 20 to 21 cents and heavy hens move out promptly at 24 to 26 cents. Milk feed prices are also ranging lower. Scratch feed, mill run and middlings are down $1 a ton along with seed wheat. Harley feed is also of $1 a ton.
