

"Have a Camel"

These words are first call to the world's finest smoke

THE choicest tobaccos grown are bought for Camel cigarettes. Millions of dollars are spent every year to insure their uniform quality.

No money is spared in the making of Camels. The tobacco is cured carefully and aged long. The exclusive Camel blend of fine Turkish and Domestic tobaccos is the work of experts. The paper in which Camels are rolled is specially made in France to obtain the best. Nothing is too good or too expensive that will make Camels a better smoke. But not a cent is spent to doll up Camel cigarettes. No fancy tips or gay and wasteful wrappings. We believe that the smokers of America want smoking quality without frills.

Camels simply will not tire your taste or leave a cigaretty after-taste, no matter how liberally you smoke them!

"Have a Camel!" is the password to the quality cigarette, with all the quality in the tobacco.

FLASHES OF LIFE

PARIS—Arms are concealed just as much as legs are revealed in the latest modes as displayed at the Longchamps race track's grand opening. Whatever cloth is saved in the skirt is used in the rest of the frocks.

KANSAS CITY, Kans.—Mrs. Leona Benedict, whose hair is bobbed and who wears a bright dress, is seeking the custody of six children who regard her as un-Christian. They have been wards of the probate court.

NEW YORK—A well known Irishman, who makes a lot of money with tea, is here seeking an old mug because he says America has nothing to put in it. He is Sir Thomas Lipton and he is going to try again for the America's cup. Sir Charles Higham, British publisher, came the same day with a recipe for bottled carbonated tea with a kick in it.

FORT WORTH, Texas.—Colonel Mitchell has been occupying a nice hotel suite reserved for Major General Hinds, who filed charges against him. The colonel was given the rooms when mistaken for the general who, after greeting the colonel, withdrew without saying anything about the hotel's error.

MOTOR BUSES WILL OUST STREETCARS ON SALEM ROUTE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
SALEM, Ore., April 6.—The doom of the street car in Salem is foreshadowed at the city council meeting last night when T. E. Billingsley, superintendent of the street railway lines, applied to the city council for authority to substitute motor buses for street cars on the South Salem-Fairgrounds line. Buses already have been substituted on the 17th street and You Park lines and Billingsley said later he would ask to make the change on the Chomoketa and State street lines, which will do away with street cars entirely in Salem. Asked if the same changes are to be made at Eugene and West Linn, the other two Oregon cities where the Southern Pacific operates street cars, Billingsley replied: "Not right away." Billingsley's application last night was placed in the hands of a special committee.

ROLLER SKATE FAD SOURCE OF WORRY TO COUNCIL

The rights of automobile drivers and of roller skaters came up for considerable discussion before the city council at the meeting last night. Roller skating at night is being practiced by hundreds of children, young folks and adults. This practice, although providing much amusement for participants, subjects skaters to much danger and at the same time is a source of constant worry to drivers of automobiles.

After considerable discussion the council decided that no action could be taken at this time. It was not felt right to bar skaters from the streets, and it was also felt that it would not be right to provide only certain districts for skating.

Several accidents have already occurred, although fortunately no one has as yet been seriously hurt. The council urges parents to impress upon the children the necessity of caution, while at the same time auto drivers are urged to keep their cars under control at all times and help in prevention of accidents.

It is believed that the roller skating fad will soon pass, and that the danger will shortly be eliminated. Until that time comes the council feels that the only course open is to urge upon all the necessity of constant caution and concern for the safety of self and of others.

GUESTS LEAP FOR LIVES FROM NORTH BEND HOTEL FIRE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
MARSHFIELD, Ore., April 6.—The dozen guests at the Hotel Coos Bay at North Bend barely had time to escape with their lives when the building, built some 20 years ago, was destroyed by fire early today. One of the guests received cuts about the eye in making his escape from the second story window. Several firemen were injured. The fire started in the top floor of the two-story frame building and spread so rapidly that the few guests that were in their rooms at that time had to leap from the windows.

The Coos hotel, adjoining the building, was considerably damaged by fire and water. The loss is estimated at about $15,000, with about one-fourth covered by insurance. The hotel was owned by T. T. Bennett of Marshfield.

The names of the injured guests was not obtained. Erick Smith of the North Bend fire department, was blinded by smoke and fell over, injuring his knee.

Roy Brainard injured his foot at the fire.

Temptations Admitted.
General Andrews said that where an employe was suspected of dishonesty he was sometimes discharged for another reason.

"You know you can find many reasons to fire a man," he said. "You could find a reason for firing me before night fall."

"I certainly could," returned Senator Reed.

The general said his men were subject to "great and constant temptations."

"How many of the $75 dismissed for cause have been prosecuted?" asked Reed.

"One hundred and eighty have been convicted." When the dry enforcement officer said it would be "an unpleasant duty" for prohibition agents to have to drink liquor to get evidence, the crowd roared and the general himself smiled broadly.

"It's so poor, most of it, that no man drinks it willingly," he added.

"Unless I am misinformed, they did considerable drinking in the Mayflower hotel case here," said Codman.

"That was a rare instance," returned the witness.

Wheeler Not a Medler.
Replying to Senator Reed, General Andrews said recommendations go to prospective employes come from the W. C. T. U., Anti-Saloon League, ministers and others. The senator kept after the witness for details and finally Andrews said:

"If you refer to Wayne B. Wheeler, he never made any recommendations to me."

"You stopped it, didn't you?"

"He never tried to start it."

Before questioning any witness today the modificationists laid down a preliminary barrage of oratory, which brought in the question of whether a national referendum on the subject would be legal.

Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, a wet leader, quoted the democratic platform of 1924 proposing a national referendum on the League of Nations.

"Then you don't think the democratic national convention could make an error," asked Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri.

"Not in this instance," retorted Senator Edge.

Not Responsible for Any Wildecat's Blunder

A stranger, driving down a lonely road, saw a wildecat dash across the highway in front of him and leap through the open window of a farmhouse. At the same moment he saw the farmer working in a field a short distance away. Whipping up his horse, he excitedly accosted the farmer.

"Is that your house?" he breathlessly inquired.

"Guess it is," drawled the man of the soil.

"Is your wife in the kitchen?"

"Ought to be," said the farmer.

"Then hurry home, man, and see what you can do. I just saw a wildecat leap through the kitchen window."

"That so?" asked the farmer.

"Yes, man; hurry, hurry!"

"Tell me, stranger," insisted the farmer, "was anybody chasing that wildecat?"

"No."

"He went through that window of his own free will and accord?"

"Yes," replied the now thoroughly puzzled stranger.

"Then let him defend himself," concluded the farmer, as he returned contentedly to his task.—Washington Star.

Small Girl Slightly 'Under the Weather'

The Mexican Indian dislikes nothing so much as unnecessary labor. He is disposed to take life as he finds it, and seldom does anything to better his position in the world. An American hunting in the Sierra de Fraebro, stopped at the door of an Indian hut to inquire his way of a woman and a little girl who stood within. The following conversation ensued:

"Good morning, senora."

"A very good morning, at your orders, senora."

"This is the road to Zapacoxtla, is it not?"

"You are quite right, senora."

"And is it very far?"

"On the contrary, it is a little way."

"A thousand thanks for your kindness, senora."

"There is nothing for which to offer me, senora."

"Is the little girl sick, senora?"

"She is a little sick, senora."

"What is the matter with her, senora?"

"She has the smallpox, senora."—Exchange.

Harness for Sled Dogs

The ordinary style of harness used for dogs drawing sleds is made of rawhide straps. It consists of a collar with a strap extending down from the back of the neck to the middle of the back, where it meets a strap which passes from the lower part of the collar between the forelegs and up on each side over the ribs, to be attached to the back strap; at this point it made fast the leading line, which is from three to five feet long, and is attached either directly to the front of the sled or to a single straight leading line fastened to the sled and extending forward to a distance sufficient for the attachment of all the dogs belonging to the team. When the team consists of more than three dogs, they are attached to the main leading line in pairs, with the most intelligent dog in front as a leader.

Knew His Stuff

Mrs. Brady was unable to take little Valle to school for his first day, so the little boy was entrusted to the escort of the older boys, who left him in the line of little beginners at the school building.

Seated at last in the strange room, he was so absorbed in his surroundings that it was hard to keep in mind all the things his mother had told him he must or must not do.

When his teacher asked him, the very first one, "What is your name, please?" he was taken by surprise and rather frightened.

"Mr. Brady," he quavered politely.—Los Angeles Times.

"Art for Art's Sake"

Art for art's sake does not mean that art is more important than morals or is to be pursued to the exclusion of every other interest. It simply means that art is a region free and autonomous. It cannot be bent to ends of moral edification or practical propaganda, without ceasing, warping and cheapening it. It is more than a church steeple can be turned into a stele, and even the most practical farmer would hardly dare to suggest that the church trustee ask the architect to plan a church without a steeple, on the ground that it served no practical purpose.—Llewellyn Jones, in "First Impressions."

Ether and Light Waves

Ether is the medium through which, according to the wave theory, light waves are transmitted through space, etc. It has been assumed that inasmuch as ocean waves are made of water and sound waves are made of air, light waves must be composed of something, and to supply this want in our knowledge a medium called the ether was imagined. Experiments of different kinds have cast doubt on the existence of ether, but the fact of radiation and of other familiar phenomena demand a connecting medium which conveniently is called the "ether."

Old Christmas "Dance"

One beautiful feature of the "Noche de Gallo" in the great cathedral of Seville is a strange mystical dance or "interweaving of steps" by the choir boys, who thus dance before the high altar. This reverent dance is marked by the chanting of the choir boys, who carry tall lighted candles as they cross and recross up and down the wide choir steps. One of the occasions is the celebration of midnight mass on Christmas eve.

ELGAROSE ITEMS.

Rain at last and every one happy. We began to think that "Old Duke" had gone to sleep the last of February and did not wake up until the first of April, or else he had lost his springing can and had to send east to a mail order house for a new one and it had been delayed on the way to Oregon, which explains why March for the first time is shy on rain.

There was a declamation contest at our school, last Thursday evening and a Ceteraria afterwards. The proceeds of the supper to go towards paying for a new phonograph for the school. Mr. Ott of Roseburg brought out a piano and five musicians and gave several fine selections during the program, which was well received by the school and the older folks.

Easter services were held at the

Mr. Hawkins of Elgarose suffered a paralytic stroke last week and has been confined to his bed ever since. However he is somewhat improved at this time, and his many friends hope for his speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Thompson and Miss Virginia and Miss Betty Price of Coles Valley, were visitors in Melrose Easter Sunday.

Among the High School students who were home to spend Easter, were Pauline and Lillian Hansen, Agnes Anderson, Miss Johnson, Rudy Edmonds, Mr. Bloomquist and Walter and Harry Sandquist.

Charles Germond was in our vicinity last week, assessing the property owners. He spent last Thursday night at the home of W. R. Van Ormish, on "Goldblers Knob."
