INCOME TAX IS CHIEF MEASURE BEFORE GRANGE

less in honor of departed members this afternoon. Later, the convention will devote itself to degree work. Tax Measure Dominant The first move in the hydro-electric conflict came when a resolution was introduced asking that the grange hydro-electric bill be introduced and that the grange devote all its efforts to securing signatures for an income tax bill, which was declared more important. This resolution was referred to a committee. On the text book issue one group favored free text books, another proposed state printing or supervising the printing at cost, and another opposed any free text books. Resolutions introduced covered a variety of subjects. One sought a state income tax high enough to provide all revenue for state government without a property tax. Others were: Asking the state highway commission, on completion of the present paving program, to stop paving and begin improving rural roads. Proposing fifty per cent reduction in annual auto license fee. Seeking 100 per cent increase

WHY DEMPSEY "PULLED" WEIGHT FOR WILLARD

(Associated Press Local Wire.) NEW YORK, June 3.—Jack Dempsey gave away 62 pounds to Jess Willard in their titular contest at Toledo, Ohio, July 1, 1919 and their knocked the heavy-weight diadem from the brow of the surprised Kansas "man mountain" in three rounds. Physical condition, they say, enabled the smaller man to fell the tall champion but Jimmy DeForest, who trained Dempsey, chewed away on the stump of a half-burned cigar and smiled as he recalled the incident of that fight. He had kept the "inside" story to himself until now. In one corner of the ring the bulky form of Willard was crouched under a huge umbrella. He looked fat and lanky but his immense proportions impressed the spectators who gasped as they tried to fathom the chances of the ambitious challenger against such a big man as Willard. The weights were announced: Willard 245, Dempsey 182. A roar of amazement swept over the crowd. They couldn't comprehend. They didn't believe. Hadn't Dempsey weighed 201 at a public function in his honor at Toledo, three weeks before the fight? But DeForest knew and his smile increased. His first plan of battle was a success. Willard, with a dumfounded expression, proved that. The sympathy of the crowd was won to the underdog and that was what DeForest wanted. There in the secret of Dempsey's fluctuation in weight as DeForest described it: "There was a nation-wide cry because of the difference in weight. The reformers called it cruelty. The fistie fans themselves didn't care to see such slaugher."

The citizens of Toledo planned a big public dinner for Dempsey and this looked to me to be the psychological moment to stop the crop. I had a new set of scales hauled into the ballroom in plain sight of everybody. I arranged with the scales of weights and measures at Toledo to weigh Dempsey for the benefit of the spectators. "Previously I determined that Dempsey would weigh over 300 for this public weighing. Twenty-four hours before the dinner put the champion on the scales with half a dozen bottles of beer and two dozen bananas and told him to go to work. He ate the fruit, drank the beer and swelled. "Then when the stage was set I yanked him out and put him on the scales. He balanced at 201. The dinner gasped in astonishment for Dempsey had never weighed more than 185 for a fight. The newspaper boys made a great play on this. Immediately the opposition to this uneven fight declined and in a week had vanished forever. "That accounts for the amazement of the spectators when Dempsey's weight was announced at 182 the afternoon of the fight. The psychology of that was one of the biggest factors in Dempsey's favor."

EVANGELIST IS CAPTIVE, TALE TO THE POLICE

(Continued from Page 1.) The attention of police today. According to the attorney, R. A. McKinley of Long Beach, the men have threatened not only to kill Mrs. McKinley, but to do away with him as well if the ransom is not paid. Fearing for his life, McKinley has told police that he cannot assist them in trapping the alleged kidnapers. The lawyer told investigators that the pair came to his office last Monday. After assuring themselves that he was blind and could not see them, they told him that they had the missing evangelist and would deliver her for the $25,000 reward recently offered by Mrs. Minnie Kennedy. Mrs. McKinley's mother, the pair asked McKinley to open negotiations with Mrs. Kennedy. "You can tell the police about this if you wish. I suppose you will," the lawyer quoted the men as saying. McKinley placed the matter before the police and District Attorney Keyes and they in turn communicated with Mrs. Kennedy. The latter, when first told of the ransom demand, declared that it was a hoax, but finally agreed to submit a list of questions, the answers to which the men were to bring from the allegedly captive pastor. The pair failed to keep an appointment to meet McKinley in his office yesterday afternoon, but, according to the lawyer, they did make their appearance about 9:30 last night. After describing them as grumbling because they had to have the questions answered McKinley quoted them as saying: "Well, we'll get the answers pretty quick, but have the dough ready or you know what will happen."

Following is the text of Mrs. Kennedy's notes: "Describe the hammock at our home and state where home was. "Describe our dog and tell what his name was. "Describe the stove in our dining room. "Who was Wallace and what was his relationship to our family. Body Not Found. With both District Attorney Keyes and Captain of Detectives Norman Cline in San Francisco investigation of other angles of the case awaits their return. The search at the bench for Mrs. McPherson's body, on the supposition that she was drowned, also
