TOURISTS GOING INTO CANADA SHOULD HAVE DOMINION FLAG

It is not ethical to carry the flag of one's nation on a car without carrying the flag of the realm visited. This was imposed on the Oregon State Motor Association, by a letter received recently from the British Columbia, with offices at Vancouver, B. C.

According to the letter, received from the recording secretary, a great number of cars visited Canada on Memorial day, displaying the United States flag, without flying the flag of the Maple Leaf Dominion. This breach of international ethics by motorists is called to the attention of the Oregon State Motor Association in the hope that that organization through its contact with motorists may assist in rectifying the situation. Such information is considered timely in advance of the traffic that will be crossing the international boundary on the Fourth of July, displaying flags.

The letter states, "In July last this organization wrote your body requesting that foreign automobiles entering this Province from the United States of America, carrying a flag of their country, also carry a British flag of the same size."

"Although your association assisted us by way of publicity to the motorist, we note that several American auto tourists especially on Decoration Day arrived in this city, carrying American flags without a British flag."

"No doubt the tourists have forgotten this request or they have not been apprised of it. We would, therefore, ask that further publicity be given so that flags of both countries will be carried on the cars. Perhaps, if notices were incorporated in one of your Bulletins before the real tourist rush commences, recognition will be received and both flags will be seen on the cars."

"The request of the patriotic body of Native Sons of B. C., is a courtesy that should be recognized by tourists from the United States, as far as possible," it is said by association officers.

As a matter of cooperation with the British Columbia organizations interested in such matters, it has been suggested that suitable supplies of British and American flags be carried at the boundary, that tourists may avail themselves of the opportunity to secure proper flags when crossing the line.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 21.—Shipments of copper show improvement over the year of 1925, during which time 15,934 tons moved through the Port of Portland to the Atlantic seaboard. During the first five months of 1926, a total of 7,017 tons moved with additional cargo being assembled.

PROF. CASEY TO JOIN STAFF OF AMERICAN BOY

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, June 20. — (Special) — Ralph D. Casey, associate professor of journalism, yesterday accepted for a six weeks period the post of an assistant editor of The American Boy, national magazine published in Detroit. He will leave for the Midwest at the close of the summer session, as he has engaged to teach journalism at Eugene from June 21 to August 1, and will be on the American Boy staff from the latter date until September 15.

The editor of The American Boy, George F. Pierrot, desired Professor Casey to join his staff publication throughout the summer. The Oregon man declined this offer. Mr. Pierrot then telegraphed an urgent request for Professor Casey to join his staff for at least part of the summer. Professor Casey is former associate editor of The Pacific Review, published a few years ago in Seattle, and for two years was editor-in-chief of the University of Washington. He has had considerable editorial experience at the University of Oregon.

WAY FOUND TO COMBAT ANTS AND MOSQUITOES

Ants and mosquitoes are two household pests that become troublesome even in some parts of Oregon this time of year as reports to the experiment station show. Control of the former may be an individual matter, while for the latter community effort is often necessary.

The best way to combat ants is to find their nests if possible and then fumigate them with carbon disulfide or kerosene. About two tablespoonful of carbon disulfide poured directly into the entrance of the colony and then the earth is pressed firmly around the entrance to hold the fumes inside.

When the nest cannot be located, ant poison made by mixing three grains of tartar emetic with about four tablespoonfuls of a sugar syrup is very effective in controlling these pests. This is smeared on bits of wood and china and placed about the premises and the ways where the ants frequent. As it is easy to get this poison strong it is advisable to have the druggist weigh out the tartar emetic in three grain samples for you. This material is only very slightly poisonous so it is not dangerous to use about food supplies.

Methods of destroying mosquito larvae fall under three classes: the drainage of bodies of water likely to contain eggs and wigglers, the application of oil to bodies of water that cannot be drained, and the introduction of fish into ponds that cannot be drained or oiled. Such measures usually demand a local or community project. However, a concentrated rain barrel, small puddles of water, or even tin cans may serve as breeding places for enough mosquitoes to cause dis-
