There never was a smoke so pleasing as Camel

IN LIFE'S supreme moments no cigarette can compare with Camel. No other cigarette ever was made so good, for Camel excellence is the result of skill. Skill in finding the world's choicest tobaccos—in blending, as only the world's largest organization of experts can.

From the beginning Camel took its stand on the quality platform, and nothing could ever induce its makers to change Camel tobaccos. No expense is spared, no care is too great to make Camel the world's most satisfying smoke, regardless of price.

In popularity with smokers, no cigarette made can touch Camels.

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Camel quality has been rewarded with the greatest demand, the largest sales any cigarette ever enjoyed. Since smoking began, there was never such a growing preference as for Camels. Camel rewards its friends with enjoyment that never ends, for Camels never tire the taste, simply never leave a cigarette after-taste.

If you have never tried Camels, if you do not know how good, how satisfying a cigarette can be, we invite you to try them now for the utmost in smoking pleasure. Have the best that's made—we invite you—

Have a Camel!

on Unfair Jury Trial

"A mockery and a snare." With this well-known phrase two famous names are closely connected, those of the Irish "Liberator," Daniel O'Connell, and Lord Chief Justice Denman. Most people know that O'Connell started the agitation which ended in the Irish Free State.

O'Connell had been the chief agent in stirring up the Irish people to demand the repeal of the union. For this he was brought to trial by Sir Robert Peel's government, and a jury found him guilty. The case was eventually carried to the house of lords, and it was at this juncture that the paths of these two great men crossed.

Denman was a little younger than O'Connell, and was at that time the greatest lawyer in the land. He was a fine orator, and eventually became lord chief justice.

Lord Denman presided over the house of lords tribunal in the famous case of "O'Connell and Others vs. the Queen" in 1844, and in giving judgment which reversed the earlier one and released O'Connell, he said: "If it is possible that such a practice as that which has taken place in the present instance should be allowed to pass without a remedy (and no other remedy has been suggested), trial by jury, instead of being a security to persons who are accused, will be a delusion, a mockery and a snare."

Fish God Worshipped in Hawaiian Islands

On the Makapu flats near Honolulu is the abode of the fish gods. Here are the Pyramid rocks of black lava, and the fish gods are blocks of black lava roughly hewn, about two feet high, standing upright upon a rock platform.

The ancient Hawaiian fishermen formed a distinct community of their own and had peculiar beliefs and customs. Their small temples used to stand on almost every rocky promontory along the coast of Oahu—mere rude piles of coral blocks, and not a pretentious stone structure like the usual Hawaiian "heiau," or temple.

The fish gods are called "Au Maku," and the chief fish god is "Kaula." He was worshipped at an altar, or "heiau," offerings and sacrifices were brought to him for abundant catches. Alai, the son of Kaula, was the one who first revealed the location of the deep-sea fishing grounds to the fishermen. Undoubtedly the same beliefs prevailed among the Polynesians, as is seen every day in the dance of the waves in Pili, which is the survival of an ancient ceremonial dance of the fishermen, held at times of festivals and sacrifices to the fish gods.

Friendly Tip

Cliff was trying to direct Host Gibson when some visitors came on the set and one young lady, who evidently was used to being catered to, engaged the director in conversation without the slightest regard for the fact that she was holding up production.

She had never asked, she said, but she just knew she could because she was very imaginative. "Why," she exclaimed, "I have often pictured myself as a mermaid!"

"I'm afraid that would be fatal," said Cliff politely.

"Why?" "Well, my dear," said Cliff sarcastically, "your mouth is open so constantly, I'm sure you'd drown." —Los Angeles Times.

Optimist

In the southern California colleges the two R's are much more popular than the three R's—that is, bridge and basketball. Thus it happened that Elizabeth Mapple and Gladys Lee found themselves partners, doubling in no-trumps, and all of those kooky things.

Gladys, trying to figure out a new charleston step, unwittingly placed a king on her opponent's ace. "Gee whizz!" exclaimed Elizabeth. "You know a king can't beat an ace!"

"I know," said Gladys absently, "but I thought I'd let it have a try."

Keep Yourself Easy

Keep yourself easy, for all things are governed by the universal nature. Besides, you will quickly go the way of all flesh, as Augustus and Hadrian have done before you. Further, examine the matter to the bottom, and remember that your business is to be a good man. Therefore, whatever the dignity of human nature requires of you, set about it at once, without "ifs" or "ands," and speak always according to your conscience, but let it be done to the terms of good nature and modesty and sincerity.—Marcus Aurelius.

Solving the Difficulty

While erecting a new organ in a church at Kirkwall, Scotland, the electricians were confronted with the problem of getting an electric cable through a 12-inch pipe, 90 feet long and bent at right angles in the middle. A small dog was placed at one end of the pipe, and a string attached to his ear. His master went to the other end and called to him through the tube, and along came the dog, the string, and, finally, the cable.

SPORTING STARS FLOCK TO MOTION PICTURE LOTS

LOS ANGELES, July 6.—Much like a volume of "Who's Who in Sportdom" is the chronicle of athletic prowess that is being written in celluloid by sporting stars of today and "yesterday" under the ghostly glare of Klieg lights.

Their roles range from bits that cut in for the extra pay to feature parts compelling magnificent spectacles. Often times the parts particularly where time and age has advanced the brilliance of athletic crown, in no way resembles those played in real life yet many are doing before the camera the stunts which brought them glory.

Boxing, football, baseball, wrestling, track and field performers are in the assemblage and on these aspirants for film honors, only a few remain for any great length of time. One of the exceptions is Luigi Montany, familiarly known as "Bull Montana," the wrestler. He has been in the favor of ticket film fans for more than five years.

Many Prize Fighters The giant Jim Jeffries, for some six years king of heavyweight pugilists, went back to the farm after a brief career as a movie actor. Tippy O'Neill, 65, and Jack Horrick are familiar figures. Then of a later date, "Gunboat" Smith, "Sailor" Sharkey and "Broken Nose" Murphy have stepped out of the sport page and into the dramatic column.

Gene Tunney is one of the latest to show up in the film lot. He is following in the movie footprints of Jack Dempsey from whose brow he hopes to topple the heavyweight crown. As he has a top-picture contract he will have a place before the lens for some time.

Lesser lights of this sport are numerous, including Gene Belmont, lightweight veteran of a half hundred battles; Larry Williams, heavy; Phil Salvatore and Joe Benjamine, lightweights; and George Godfrey, negro heavy.

Norman Selby, middleweight champion as Kid McCoy enjoyed a successful movie career lasting several years before he went to prison for his part in the Theresa More killing. Film fame lure also drew onto the lot, Georges Carpentier, France's heavyweight and Benny Leonard, former lightweight title holder.

Paddock Joins Fold

From other branches of sport there came the carrot-topped Harold "Red" Grange of unduplicated gridiron prowess; Maurice "Lefty" Flynn stalwart Yale fullback of 10 years back and, if one has a good memory for turf victories of long ago, one may recognize the features of a score of former American jockeys. Among them are Charley Maddox, "Shorty" Hall and William Robbins all of whom are riding to thrilling victories on the silver sheet.

The nimble feet of Charles Paddock have been signed for dramatic performances. He likewise is showing talent in playwriting.

Then there is Duke Kahanamoku, great Hawaiian swimmer, John Hackenschmidt, Konstantine Romanoff and Kala Pasha, wrestlers, and, from out of the reminiscences of baseball, Mike Donlin who in the nineties cut a big swath in major league circles.

TURKISH WOMEN ARE STILL WITHOUT POLITICAL PARTIES

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 6.—(A. P.)—In spite of all that has been written about feminine emancipation and intellectual advancement in Turkey, Moslem women still are refused admission to political parties and play a very minor role in the social, political and intellectual life of the new republic.

They do not yet enjoy the right to vote nor to hold political office. Halide Edib Hanum, wife of the former mayor of Constantinople, who was educated at the American Girls' College in Constantinople, is the only exception to this. She once held a post in the Ministry of Education under Mustafa Kemal Pasha. All other Turkish women remain in political obscurity.

Nesliha Moushaddin Hanum, president of the Turkish Women's Union, insists that women in Turkey be given the same rights as men.

ENTER THE DOLLAR MARK LONDON, July 6.—(A. P.)—Dollar signs on goods have appeared for the first time here in the shopping districts frequented by American tourists. The marks, quite evidently, are London made, as they are very much of the perpendicular variety, and lack the original Yankee twist.

LOCAL BOY WINS HONORS IN CITIZEN MILITARY CAMP Morrill Huber, Jr., who is attending the Citizens' Military training camp at Camp Lewis, has been designated as one of the twelve honor students for the week ending July 3. The distinction denotes excellence in performance of duties and deportment.

CAREFULLY GUARD FORMULA OF BUCKINGHAM PERFUME

LONDON, July 6.—(A. P.)—One of the most carefully guarded secrets of the British Royal family is the formula of a specially prepared perfume, with which Buckingham Palace is sprayed for the court presentations attended by men and women from all parts of the world.

The perfume is entirely original, suggestive of a tropical flower garden—hidden away in the midst of a country setting which grows nothing but blossoms for miles around. The preparation has been used since the time of Queen Victoria's first court and its ingredients are known only to the king and queen and the manufacturers.

The scent was described by an American debutante as being the most delightful thing of its kind she had ever encountered. "It is just England," she said, "and ARTHUR W. PUGH, Meteorologist
