OLD CAR OWNERS SHOULD TRADE IN USED AUTOS NOW

Changes from open cars to closed cars had better be made now in the warm summer season while there is still a market for open cars, according to J. O. Newland and Son, local dealers in Dodge Brothers motor cars.

In cold or hot weather, the closed car has found favor because the windows may be quickly raised or lowered at will. When the windows are up, dust, rain and wind do not affect the occupants and the shift from hot afternoon to chilly evening need not be noticed.

Better circulation of air with double protection from the sun makes the closed car more pleasant in the summer. The rigid top does not wear out as the folding top, which is very seldom lowered, and it does have practically all the features of the open car.

"Dodge Brothers have added still another item to closed car advantages," said J. O. Newland. "That is the safety afforded by the all-steel body, which is very strong and light in weight. This body, welded as it is into one piece, makes it possible for the hard and tough lacquer finish to be baked on."

"Anyone with a used car who is contemplating the purchase of a new closed car for the winter will do well to make the change now, as the resale value after the warm weather will be less. Right now the selling season is on the decline, doubly so for the open car."

"Dodge Brothers have the policy of 'constantly improved'—but no nearly models'—which enables people to buy without fear of having an obsolete design or model in a few months."

TELEPHONE DISCOVERY WAS ACCIDENTAL

Prof. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, discovered the principle of the telephone by accident. He was a teacher of deaf mutes, and to fit himself for that field, had made profound study of the science of sound and speech. In 1847 Bell was experimenting with the "Harmonic Telegraph" by means of which he expected to send six or eight Morse messages over a single wire at the same time. Thomas A. Edison, a practical young mechanic, made the instruments and helped the inventor in his tests.

The possibility of transmitting speech over wires was in the back of Bell's head all the time. In June, 1875, an accident to one of the experimental telegraph instruments caused vibrations to be reproduced on a similar instrument in another room. The "speaking" telephone was born when Bell caught the hum and realized what it meant.

He realized at that time the vast importance of this new servant of the human race. But interest in the inventor and the invention was intense. Doubtless called Bell a fraud and the telephone an impossibility. Visitors, both lay and scientific, came in swarms. Two earnest Japanese made copious notes and marveled that the thing spoke Japanese as well as it did English. The telephone had a curious trick of paralyzing the tongues of men who were fluent enough by nature and profession. A prominent lawyer staked in one day to examine the marvel. Watson went into the other room, and the visitor heard the little instrument say:

"How do you do?"

The lawyer was aghast. There was a long and speechless pause, finally, realizing that a polite question had been asked he put his lips to the telephone and shouted:

"Rise-a-bis-bis and away we go!"

In those early days you yelled "Ahoy!" when you answered the phone. When the instrument came into general use that salutation was discarded in favor of the less nautical "Hello!"—Nation's Business Magazine.

A lot in Sutherlin now will mean money in the bank later on.
