NO SPOONING BAN IN CHICAGO PARKS

(Associated Press Local Wire.)
CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Spooning may now view the summer moon in Lincoln Park unimpeded of the passing blue coat. The park board has lifted its ban and extended a welcome to all lovers to the park.

"Spooning should be done in a wholesome atmosphere where romance comes naturally," said Superintendent Emil Johnson, "and where is a more natural place than among the beautiful trees in the park?"

The south park commands showers applauded the action, but west side park officers declared they would not permit spooning in parks under their jurisdiction. "Give the young people good exercise and sports and they will forget about spooning," said Captain William Stocker of the west side police.

MOTHER, CRAZED, KILLS 2 CHILDREN, TRIES SUICIDE

(Associated Press Local Wire.)
ATLANTA, Aug. 5.—A mother killed her two daughters today and then turned the weapon, a 12-gauge shotgun, on herself in what physicians believe was a fit of temporary insanity.

Mrs. A. P. Dunnell, 38, was the mother. Physicians said they did not believe her self-inflicted wounds would prove fatal. The shooting occurred at the Dunnell farm fifteen miles southwest of Atlanta. The little girls, Mary, 9, and Jean, 7, were shot through the heart while sleeping in a bed adjoining that usually occupied by their parents.

UNION COUNTY FIRE.

(Associated Press Local Wire.)
LA GRANDE, Ore., Aug. 5.—Tolacaset, 22 miles south of La Grande, and Perry, four miles west of here, were both threatened with destruction by fire yesterday. Train crews of the O. W. R. & N. company controlled the Tolacaset fire after it had destroyed three buildings occupied by section hands, and the La Grande fire department prevented flames from two blazing haystacks from getting into buildings in the west end of Perry, situated 30 feet from the fire. Prompt action by fire fighters at both places prevented thousands of dollars loss, observers declare.

HOME RESTAURANT CLOSED
Suit was filed in the circuit court today by the International Sales and Produce company, which does business under the name of the 20th Century Grocery, and by H. B. Suggestion Great Aid in Preserving Youth

"My, but Americans are young looking people!" exclaimed Miss Alma Law, an Australian, on her first visit to San Francisco. "There don't seem to be any old ones. And such handsome, well-dressed and pleasant folks."

We do look young and, in fact, are looking younger every day. This is partly the applied science of the pulchritude parlor, but in larger measure it is due to a mental attitude in which a native optimism is reinforced by friendly suggestion.

We have not discovered the elixir of life—that is, not the elixir put in bottles—but we have the secret of keeping young, and it is telling each other that we look so.

Americans do know how to greet one another, and though greetings cannot make any difference to the calendar they may make a world of difference to one's appearance. Years are cut off when we are told we are looking well, and if we feel younger we cannot help looking younger.

Statistically we know that modern medical science has added at least ten years to the average American life, but the average man, and certainly the average woman, looks ten years younger than he and she did 20 years ago. —San Francisco Bulletin.

Central Control for All Factory Windows

Anyone who has got up in the middle of the night to open and close windows would balk on being required to open a multitude of windows, but if he were a night watchman in a certain eastern factory, all he would have to do would be to press a button, and electric motors would open or close all the windows without any further attention on his part.

This factory has a building four stories high and more than 600 feet long, equipped with steel sash windows which open at the top, and an electric motor to turn the shafts upon which the windows are swung. It is so arranged that the windows on any side or any floor can be opened by separate controls, or the windows of the entire factory can be simultaneously closed. This system permits of a very considerable saving of individual labor and at the same time assures a maintenance of adequate ventilation and protection against the weather. —American Mutual Magazine.

New England Rag Dolls

Old rag dolls were treasured heirlooms of many New England homes. Of all sizes, and attired in many sorts of quaint costumes, they had some points in common. Their faces were invariably flat, their hands were stiff and rigid, their toes turned out in a most alarming manner. Sometimes they had black button eyes; frequently their prim faces were painted with beet and fruit juices; occasionally, eyes, nose and mouth were embroidered. For hair they wore toupes of yarn or hemp or wisps of real hair. Their garments were full skirted gowns of spangled muslin or prints, and they often wore sunbonnets of the same materials as their dresses. In one New Hampshire family still lives an old rag doll who for over 50 years has pleased its daughters. True, she has become somewhat the worse for wear, but her beaming features have been renewed by the simple expedient of recovering her face with a piece of fresh cloth. —Antiquarian Magazine.

Famous Old English "Beau"

The sobriquet "Beau Nash" was bestowed upon Richard Nash, a fashionable personage of the Eighteenth century. He was born in Wales in 1674, and studied law, but later became a gambler, for which he seemed to have a greater liking and aptitude and from which he derived an ample revenue. In 1704 he transferred from a vulgar and neglected watering place into a gay and fashionable resort. The city of Bath, in gratitude for his services, placed his statue between those of Newton and Pope. He lived to be eighty-seven, but his last years were spent in poverty, owing to the act of parliament that suppressed gambling. —Kansas City Star.

Redwood Log "Gold Mine"

Lumber valued at $3,000 and 30 circular dining-table tops, each worth $75, were cut from a redwood log found partly buried in the sand by an Oregon man, who declared that the discovery was almost as good as a gold mine. Two days' work with team and scraper were required to unearth the huge log, which was 8 feet in diameter and 50 feet long. According to the logs it was 527 years old and had lain in the same place for many years before anyone had thought it worth the trouble to remove it. —Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Modern Expression

English Teacher—Michael, when I have finished you may repeat what I have said in your own words.

"See the cow. Isn't she pretty? Can the cow run? Yes, the cow can run. Can she run as fast as a horse? No, she cannot run as fast as a horse."

Michael—Lamp de ease, Ah! she's a beauty? Kin the cow huddle in with the horse? Naw, de cow ahn't in it with the horse? —Bowen Arrow.

Many Seniors Unhissed
As a result of a questionnaire sent to a number of university seniors it has been found that 90 were willing to marry for money; 57 preferred bachelorhood and 80 admitted never having been kissed. Forty-two thought their education not worth while. Mark Twain seemed to be the favorite author.

of $500 is being offered by the county for information which will lead to the arrest and conviction of those who have started fires at the ready set, or those starting new fires. This, it is expected will be backed up by a vigorous investigation by the sheriff's office, and possibly a special session of the grand jury will be called, if conditions are not immediately improved.

The county fire patrol already has a standing reward of $100 and it is possible that the state association will authorize still more money to be posted for information.

The matter has been placed before Governor Pierce, who has been found sympathetically inclined and it is believed that the state will offer an additional reward of $500. With $1,100 offered as a reward for the apprehension and conviction of those guilty of incendiarism, it is believed that there will be an opportunity to halt some of the work now being carried on.

forth to curb the activities of the incendiaries, and the determination voiced by fire patrol officials and officers of the county will be welcomed by those who are alarmed by the existing circumstances.
