WHEELER PREFERS PRESENT JOB TO ANDREWS' PLACE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
WASHINGTON, August 13.—Wayne B. Wheeler doesn't want to be General Andrews' successor as chief of the government's prohibition forces. And even if he did, he would not take the job under present enforcement conditions.

Replying today to a telegram of inquiry sent him by the Washington Evening Star, the anti-saloon league leader said it was contrary to the policy of the league for one of its officials to accept political appointment and added that he could serve the cause better in his present capacity.

APPRECIATION FOR SERVICE IS EXPRESSED

These lands are located, should be called upon to bear the burden imposed by the withdrawal of these lands, which are for the benefit of the people of all states. I believe that the government should pay to the states, in which forest lands are located, some measure of return for those lands, and this bill paves the way for such relief.

Mr. Stanford then told of the amendment he has introduced in congress which, if adopted, will give far greater relief to Oregon than the O. and C. bill recently enacted into law.

GAINES CASE IS STILL IN HANDS OF PROSECUTOR

here today in the trial of her father, Wallace Gaines, as her slayer. Prosecutor Colvin declared he photographs relevant as showing the situation of wounds how unlikely it was that the clothing of the person who beat and choked her to death inside Green Lake here the night of June 16 would have much blood on its clothes.

Resumption of testimony in the trial was delayed until 10:20 a. m. today to permit Prosecutor Colvin to question state witnesses before they took the stand. Louis Stern, former companion of Gaines, was to be removed from the King county clerk's office where he has been held since relating a "confession" of Gaines, to the county-city building, so he could testify when wanted.

CUPID LAUGHS AT 13.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 13.—Three couples braved the superstition attached to a Friday, when it falls on the 13th and applied for marriage licenses today at the Multnomah county courthouse.

The first license was issued to Allen W. Aufang, 45, and Ella M. Willey, 28, both of Salem.

Flashes of Life

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
ORANGE, N. J. An obnoxious incident marked a search for an escaped leopard yesterday. A dog catcher with his net drew from a sewer manhole an animal reported to be the spotted cat, only to find without use of his eyes that he had captured a member of the mephitic mephitic family, commonly known as a skunk.

LONDON. If the Metropolitan of Alvar could only bring the fish to life and the door to come into the open he would have a sportman's paradise such as his comrad's possess in his possession of in Saratoga city. He has fitted a river in England and a game preserve in Scotland to make his comrad's of the bank Wallace and Harry James a game, but was unable to get in by the contract a guarantee of earnings. Fishes on deck with snail and snail.
