A Dollar Dinner for Four

The daily dinner menu in warm weather is often a problem. Here is one containing foods both nutritious and appetizing. Its total cost is $1.00, and it will serve four people.

Pea Soup
Shrimps Baked with Tomatoes
Corn Sauté
Bread and Butter
Shredded Pineapple
Demi Tasse

A GOOD pea soup may be bought for 10 cents a can. Two small cans of shrimps, at 15 cents a can, are required for the casserole dish suggested. A small 9 cent can of tomatoes is sufficient. This dish is prepared as follows: put a layer of breadcrumbs into a well buttered casserole, then one of shrimps and another of the solid part of canned tomatoes. Season with a little salt, pepper, butter, and 1 teaspoon sugar. Add alternate layers of crumbs, shrimps, and tomatoes until the dish is full. Cover with crumbs, dot with butter, and brown in moderate oven. A can of corn to sauté in bacon drippings costs about 12 cents at this season. A small loaf of bread costs 10 cents. A can of shredded pineapple may be had for 17 cents. Enough coffee to serve four people, at an average cost of 40 cents a pound, comes to about 4 cents. The total of these food items is 92 cents. 8 cents may be allowed to cover the cost of butter and sugar for the meal.

Foolish Beliefs Not

Confined to Sailors

In defense of the supposedly superstitious fishermen, Lorenzo Sabine, in 1853, in an article on the American fisherman, wrote:

"It is said that he is credulous and superstitious. Admit that. Kidd's money has been dug for in every dark nook of the coast, or talked about in every caddy for a century and a half, and that horse-shoes are nailed upon the masts of fishing vessels to keep off witches; what then? Is he the only one who has been or still is guilty of the same follies?"

"In 1825 the duchess de Berri visited a watering place in France and indulged in sea bathing. Salt water and fish which were afterward taken from the spot were articles of immense value and sold at enormous prices. Indeed, those persons who could not purchase a whole fish gladly possessed themselves of a few scales or a fin! The water where the 'royal person' had been washed, when bottled and offered for sale, was known as 'Berri wine.' Have fishermen committed greater follies than these fashionable people of France?"

Good for Lorenzo! Today horse-shoes are so scarce that fishermen no longer nail them to the masts of their schooners to keep off witches, although they do hang used automobile castings over the side to keep off other craft that might rob their plinking.

Important Precaution

The Grocer's Encyclopedia says that dealers should never sell a can of tongue, or of any meat or fish during warm weather without reminding the buyer that it should be cooled thoroughly before opening.
