

To The Voters Of Douglas County:

The undersigned Republican voters and citizens of Douglas County, Oregon, many having been ardent supporters of Senator Stanfield at the primary election, believe that the people of Oregon should abide by the result of the primary election and that they can best serve themselves, their state and nation by electing the regular Republican candidate, FREDERICK STEIWER, as United States Senator. We base our judgment on the following facts:

1. As a native son of Oregon pioneers, Steiwer knows intimately the needs of his state; as a successful lawyer and legislator, he is equipped to get results for his state; he has the courage to fight for principles, as he proved when a soldier on the battlefields of France.

2. He is the candidate of Republicans, chosen after a clean, straightforward campaign at the primary election; under the law of the State of Oregon he is the ONLY Republican candidate, and by every rule of justice and good faith, entitled to full Republican support.

3. No man who is opposed to the Republican administration or has not the full support of the Republican Party of Oregon behind him can achieve results in the Senate; the results are obtained by organized effort, which is another way of saying party organization; Steiwer, the choice of the Republican Party at the primary election, is the one man who can carry to the United States Senate the organized backing of the Republican Party and so secure the help of a Republican administration.

4. Steiwer brings the strongest recommendation that any man can have; Umatilla County, the home of both Stanfield and Steiwer, gave to Steiwer at the primary election its whole-souled endorsement when it gave him three times as many votes as was given Senator Stanfield. A man who stands that high in the estimation of his neighbors and townsmen merits the confidence of the state.

On this page tomorrow will appear our reasons for the belief that the Democratic candidate is not entitled to Republican support for U. S. Senator.

We trust the readers of this page will follow our statement with an open mind.

Food Staple Depends on Irrigation Work

Among the staple foods raised in Central American regions is one that is almost daily on the tables of rich and poor; this is the garbanzo, or chick-pea. They are successfully grown also in the state of Sonora, Mexico, on the alluvial plains near the mouths of the Mayo and Yaqui rivers, where the altitude is but little above sea level, although they are also grown farther inland at altitudes of 300 feet, more or less, and with more or less success.

The plant is very tender and subject to injury by frost. During the growing season the temperature ranges from 70 degrees Fahrenheit to the freezing point. At planting time, in October, it ranges from 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. The average rainfall in the garbanzo region in the Yaqui valley is nine inches and in the Mayo valley thirteen inches. No rain falls during the growing season of this crop, and the growers depend entirely upon irrigation for the rains begin in July and end in October, just before the first planting begins.

The garbanzos are harvested in May, when the plants are pulled up by hand in the field and turned over so they will dry thoroughly. They are then carried in bunches to central points in the fields where a threshing floor has been made on smooth beaten ground. Charles Bell Emerson in Adventure Magazine.

Brown Proved Quite Unable to See Joke

Two bachelors, Smith and Brown, were seated in the flat of the latter. Smith—Would you like to know the name of your future wife? Brown—I certainly would. "Well, I'll guarantee to tell you her name by arithmetic." "That's impossible." "Well, you take a piece of paper and work out this sum: Write down the year in which you were born, subtract the last two figures from the first two. Now multiply what remains by the date of the month in which you were born. Divide your answer by two, and tell me the result." Brown, after a lengthy struggle and much thought, at last works out the problem and hands his friend the result. Smith—Now, these figures obviously indicate that the name of your future wife will be Mrs. Brown. Brown and Smith are no longer friends.

FRED JONES BUYS OUT ROSE HOTEL BARBER SHOP

Fred Jones, former secretary of the Roseburg Barbers' union, who during the past year has been interested in the R. C. Bowers Barber shop at Myrtle Point, has returned to Roseburg and has purchased the Rose hotel shop from J. I. Terrill. Mr. Jones has been engaged in the barber business in Roseburg for many years, and although he has on several occasions moved away from the city for business reasons, he has never been able to overcome his liking of this city and has always returned to reengage in business. He has taken immediate possession of the shop and is now in full charge. Mr. Terrill is moving to Klamath Falls, having gone into business there. He has been at Klamath Falls for a short time and has just returned to make arrangements to move his family to that city.

Arrive This Morning—
Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sykes and daughter, Miss Marguerite Sykes, of Portland, former residents of this city, arrived this morning to attend the funeral of Mrs. S. K. Sykes. They will be here for a few days.
