VALUATION RAISE PROTESTED BY THE PULLMAN COMPANY

Attorney Tells Oregon Tax Commission Boost Not Justified by Car Earnings.

The Pullman company attorneys, who came from Chicago for the hearing, sought a cut of over $400,000. They objected to the increased valuation that has been given them in Oregon each year, declaring that there has been no increase in earning capacity or number of cars. Objection also was made to the capitalization of gross receipts which they said has been injected into the calculation for the first time in 1924. Earl Fisher, state tax commissioner, however, showed that this had been used in 1921 and 1922. Objection also was made to valuation on a unit basis on grounds that it takes into account property that never comes into the state. Further objection was made to the "miles run" basis on grounds that in Oregon the cars do not earn over 80 per cent of the average all over the country on that basis. Business done in the state, it was contended, is the only accurate basis.
