THE GIST OF THE BIBLE

BOOK BY BOOK

ARTICLE NO. 40

MATTHEW—"JESUS CHRIST AS KING"

Our Bibles do not contain "four gospels," for there is but one gospel of Jesus Christ, and that "good story" or "gospel" is related by four different evangelists, Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. A writing to different nationalities to portray Jesus Christ from four different standpoints.

Matthew, a former tax collector, wrote to the Jews to prove to them that Jesus of Nazareth was the king of the Jews and the Messiah of Jewish prophecy, in whose life and death the Old Testament prophecy and ritual of the Jews were fulfilled.

His characteristic expression, therefore, is "That it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying."

Matthew gives us sixty quotations from the Old Testament. It is, therefore, logical that Matthew, though not written first should stand first among the twenty-seven books of the New Testament.

Its opening verse is a door which swings backward into the Old Testament as well as forward into the New Testament: "The book of the generation of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham."

When Matthew left the custom-house he brought with him more than his pen and ink. He brought the ability to classify and codify parables, miracles, sermons and teachings through which runs a common thought, for his biography of Christ is written topically rather than chronologically.

In developing his great theme of the kingship of Jesus, he first writes of the Person of the King (1:1 to 4:10); then of the Program of the King and his Kingdom (4:17 to 18:20); and finally of the Rejection of the King and his crucifixion under the title, "This is Jesus of Nazareth the King of the Jews" (18:21 to 28:20).

True to his purpose of convincing his fellow Jews that Jesus was their Messiah, he traces his genealogy not from Adam, as Luke does, but from Abraham.

He alone records the visit of the magi who come seeking the king of the Jews.

He shows in Jesus' life the fulfillment of Isaiah's prophecy of the virgin birth and incarnation; of Micah's prophecy of Bethlehem as the birth-place; of Jeremiah's prophecy of the slaughter of the innocents; of Isaiah's prophecy of the ministry of the forerunner John the Baptist, and so on through his life to the very end in the betrayal, death and resurrection. Matthew matches the Old Testament prophecies with their complete fulfillment in the one he seeks to prove is the king of the Jews.

The essence of Matthew is given in both the message of Jesus and of his forerunner: "Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." Fifty times he uses the word "kingdom" in this connection.

This theme of kingship which characterizes all that Matthew wrote of Jesus led the early Christians to adopt the lion as the symbol to represent Matthew in the art of the early church.

The theme of royalty is sustained to the very final note in the triumphant risen king's own claim of universal dominion on which he based his great commission to his disciples to evangelize all nations to his standard. "All authority hath been given unto me in heaven and on earth."

We extend to all a cordial invitation to attend the services of the church.

First Christian Church, Next Sunday morning the subject of the sermon is, "The Power of Prayer." This is the last of the series on prayer. There will be a vocal duet by Mrs. Stanton and Chas. V. Stanton. Sunday evening the sermon topic is "Marriage." This will be one of the best services in our popular evening series. This sermon will be aided by the presentation of a Tom Thumb wedding, by our dramatic committee. They have worked hard on this and it should be presented to a full house. Bring your best singing voice with you Sunday night and make Charlie smile during the sing-along. Let all the intermediates in the city, that are not in Christian Endeavor, know assuredly that there is one of the liveliest C. E. societies in the state meeting at the church at 6:30, waiting to give you a welcome. Boys and girls of younger teen age, get in to the great C. E. movement. It will help you wonderfully. The seniors meet at 6:30 also. Here you will find a fine group of older young folks. Meet with us next Sunday evening. H. E. MOW, pastor.

The International Bible Students Association Bible Study at 939 West First street. Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Study for Sunday will be "Character or Covenant—Which?" and "The Fall of Jericho." All are welcome.

should all learn to like them that that. They should also be cooked in as little water as possible.

We should all learn, also, to like many more of the vegetables served in the raw state (after being very thoroughly cleaned, of course).

Most everyone knows how delicious grated raw carrots are in a salad, and raw celery, tomatoes, cucumbers and others, but not so many know how good are raw turnips, raw sweet potatoes, raw corn, raw cauliflower, raw spinach and several other vegetables. Eat more raw vegetables and cook them less, when you do cook them. You'll find it is better for you.

DANGER LURKING IN ENGLISH-MADE BEER.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—John Hill's famous bitters manages sometimes to get lead, borax acid and an excess of salts into it in spite of the boasted purity of British beer.

The Ministry of Health reports that out of 387 samples of beer, which were taken at random for analysis, nine samples contained one of these three adulterants.
