The SECRET STUDIO

By Hazel Livingston

CHAPTER 32.
The story so far:
Rosemary Meiton, determined to win independence of her family, quits college, following a romance with Philip Eames, a neighborhood sweetheart. Churling in a book-store she meets Larry, an artist, and Sloan Whitney, a man of the world, by whom she is fascinated. She breaks with Larry on account of his affair with a modiste's helper, Nina, employed in the same store, tells Rosemary of her romance with Stanley Cuyler, an old friend of her dead father, and married. Nina goes to join Cuyler in Spain, and Rosemary is given the use of her luxurious apartment. After a visit to a roadhouse and other meetings with Rosemary, Whitney finds she will not surrender to him, although she is deeply in love. He accuses her of being a "piker."

Now go on with the story:
They made it up, but the joyousness was gone. After all their trouble, the dinner wasn't much of a success. Rosemary burned the chops and there was something the matter with the percolator—the coffee was pale and bitter. "It was the part of smashing his thumb that made him say that. You're liable to say anything when you're hurt so badly. He didn't mean it."

She came and took his hands in hers, holding the hurt thumb against her cheek. "Rosemary, don't you want me to go?"

There was a long silence. Then he slipped his hands out of hers. "You don't know what you want. I—I didn't realize what a kid you were. Well, I'll wash the dishes for you."

Then after a time— "You're awfully quiet."

"Am I?" She drew his head down and kissed him shyly—the first time. Surely he'd see—he'd know how much she cared—

But he didn't seem to notice. He was very quiet, too, very gentle, and strangely cool. "After a while, Sloan, come to-morrow. Five o'clock."

"I'm afraid I can't, Rosemary. I've been neglecting the farm. You know I have some polo ponies down in the country."

"Where? She wanted to keep him, keep him talking, keep him here until he had forgotten his hurt, grown more like he used to be."

"Oh just a few horses down the country. I have a homestead out there. Did I ever tell you about that?"

"No—tell me!"

"I took up some government land when I came back from France. Thought I wanted to live up in the riurbarb, but I couldn't stand it—the loneliness, the long, silent nights. I used to dream—the old dreams—"

He broke off suddenly. "I'd have gone just if I stayed. Well, I'll be home in a few days, and tomorrow I'm off for the farm to see about the horses."

"Oh no, Sloan—wait—just for a day or two—"

"I've been waiting all summer. Got to get down now and see about 'em. But I'll be back one of these days—soon."

"I'm not much of a letter writer, but I will. Goodbye, dear."

She followed him into the hall. "Goodbye!" He was going. Without even kissing her goodbye. . . . "Sloan!"

"Yes?"

"Aren't you—don't you want to—say goodbye to me?"

He smiled and came back. "Don't take it so hard. I'm going down the country a little way—and besides—didn't you send me away?"

"Oh Sloan, no! How can you say such a thing?"

"You blessed baby—"

He kissed her lightly and was gone.

The candlelight fell on the mellow, rich hued rugs, the brasses gleamed, the logs still burned in the fireplace. It was the same place, the same place it had always been, but its meaning was gone. What was the use of it without Whitney? And she had let him go. Sloan. . . he'd be back. He loved her. She knew it now. He might go away, but in the end he'd come back. And besides, he said he would. Her luck was on the rise. She was winning. She'd have him in the end on her own terms. He'd think all the more of her for sending him away. And when he came back—

"Oh, Rosemary!" Hal called, as she came into the store the next day. "Ellen wants you to call her up."

Did You Ever Stop to Think

By Edson R. Walte, Secretary of the Shawnee, Oklahoma, Board of Commerce.

Edwin S. Friendly, business manager of the New York Sun, says:

That the world's first newspaper appeared in Rome several centuries before the Christian era. It was literally a bulletin called the "Acta Diurna", in which accounts were given of the progress of the imperial arms and other matters of state. The Peking "Gazette", the oldest daily newspaper in the world, was first issued about A. D. 1350. The earliest English newspaper in the true sense of the word was Butler's "Weekly News", which appeared in 1622. The first advertisements were published in English newspapers in 1652. The first newspaper in the American side of the Atlantic, "Public Occurrences Both Foreign and Domestic", was a monthly published in Boston by Benjamin Harris in 1689. In 1702 appeared "The Boston Newsletter", and in 1729 Benjamin Franklin issued his "Pennsylvania Gazette" now "The Saturday Evening Post."

From this diminutive beginning, dating back to the "Acta Diurna", what a remarkable contrast we have today. There are approximately 14,000 newspaper published in the United States today, of which 2,333 are accused daily, from four to 160 pages and with circulations running from a few hundred to over a million. More than 33,000,000 newspapers are published each day, with nearly 13,000,000 more issued weekly, semi-weekly or tri-weekly.

These newspapers in the aggregate spend around $1,000,000,000 a year to gather and write the news from the four corners of the earth. Twice that sum is spent for composition, engraving, printing and other incidental processes. The bill for newspaper paper amounts to more than $225,000,000.

The story of the newspaper, from its inception to the present is a story of progress without a counterpart. The modern newspaper is the map of life, recording its progress, its innumerable fluctuations, both good and bad. And the vast sums spent in the publication of our newspapers give the American people the greatest value by far they receive for their money.

ANTLERS THEATRE

Rare Gathering With La Plante in Antlers Film
A strange and unusual combination of comedians, stage veterans, vaudevilleans, with a European film star thrown in for good measure makes up the highly interesting cast of "Her Big Night," the Universal feature which is now showing at the Antlers theatre.

Laura La Plante, who plays the featured role in the picture, makes her bow as a real motion picture star in this production, and it is planned by Universal to make a series of similar farces with her in the leading role.

film star, plays the male lead opposite her as his first American role.

Lee Moran, veteran comedy star, who, as a running mate of Eddie Lyons, has made literally scores of two-reelers for Universal, is in the cast in the role of a feverishly busy press agent.

Mack Swain, a comedy, "heavy" of the old Mack Sennett days gives a very funny performance as a motion picture producer.

Tully Marshall as a cynical, hard-boiled veteran newspaper reporter, and William Austin as the ambitious young cub who works with him add many comedy scenes to the picture.

Zasu Pitts, as the "ugly duckling" roommate of Laura's gives many wistful comedy touches. Clary Fitzgerald as a jealous wife, and John Roche, as an equally jealous husband, and Nat Carr as a sporty millionaire with a weakness for winning and dining showgirls, also are in the cast.

LIBERTY THEATRE

Cummings Triumphs With "Midnight Kiss"

Irving Cummings has scored another triumph with "The Midnight Kiss." Fox Films version of John Golden's delightful comedy drama succeeds "Figs" that comes to the Liberty theatre for a two-day run today.

Two of the most promising of the younger generation of screen thespians, Janet Gaynor and Richard Walling, both of them discoverers of the Director, play the leading roles in the production.

Janet, as Mildred Hastings is winsome, willful and vivacious all at once, and Richard, as young Tommy Atkins charms with his boyish sincerity and serious attention to the business at hand.

The theme is simple and convincing involving two average

American families. The Hastings are the wealthiest family in town. The Atkins on the other hand are average and Atkins Senior is deeply disturbed over the lack of ready money to pay off a loan incurred to send the oldest boy through college.

The manner in which Tommy turns his despised medical expert to advantage and creates a sensation with his first financial experiment is the kernel of the plot.

Men Who Made the World

GOLD WAS THE MAGNET WHICH DREW SPANISH ADVENTURERS TO THE NEW WORLD. NOWHERE WAS IT FOUND SO EASILY AND PLENTIFULLY AS WAS EXPECTED BUT THERE WAS ENOUGH TO WHET THEIR APPETITES FOR MORE. THE SPANISH COLONIES NOW (1515) IN THE NEW WORLD WERE LIMITED TO THE ISLAND OF HISPANIOLA (HAITI), CUBA, PUERTO RICO AND JAMAICA, WHICH WERE CALLED "THE INDIES" BECAUSE THE DISCOVERERS AND CONQUERORS FIRMLY BELIEVED THEY HAD ENCIRCLED HALF THE GLOBE AND REACHED THE ORIENT. THERE WAS ALSO A COLONY AT DARIEN, REALIZING GOLD AND PEARLS MUST BE FOUND ELSEWHERE THE DISAPPOINTED IMMIGRANTS EXPLOITED THE NATIVES AND SO THE SLAVE TRADE SPRANG UP.

FERNANDO CORTEZ

IN 1517, CORDOVA, A RICH PLANTER OF CUBA, EQUIPPED AN EXPEDITION TO CAPTURE SLAVES IN THE LANDS FAR TO THE WEST. THE EXPEDITION REACHED AN ISLAND OFF THE COAST OF YUCATAN AND AFTER A SEVERE BATTLE MANAGED TO RETURN TO SANTIAGO WITH SPOILS TAKEN FROM THE TEMPLES OF THESE STRANGE INDIANS AND SPECIMENS OF GOLD TOGETHER WITH MARVELOUS TALES WHICH EXCITED THE EAGER CUPIDITY OF THE COLONISTS, WHO WERE EVER READY TO BELIEVE THAT EL DORADO WAS FOUND.

By Dr. Elliott Shoring, the Noted Historian

THE IMAGINATION OF VELASQUEZ WAS FIRED BY THE REPORT AND PARTICULARLY BY THE IDOLS AND ORNAMENTS OF WROUGHT GOLD WHICH THE EXPEDITION HAD BROUGHT BACK. A SECOND EXPEDITION WAS AT ONCE SENT OUT. THE NATIVES RECEIVED THEM HOSPITALLY, BRINGING PROVISIONS AND GOLD ORNAMENTS IN THE SHAPE OF BIRDS AND LIZARDS. THE SPANIARDS LEARNED THAT THESE GOLD OBJECTS CAME FROM A RICH AND POWERFUL COUNTRY FAR DISTANT INLAND KNOWN AS ACOLHUA OR "MEXICO." WORDS WHICH THE SPANIARDS FIRST HEARD AT THAT TIME. STILL FURTHER ON THE SPANIARDS MET FOR THE FIRST TIME WITH EMBASSIES FROM THE GREAT MONTZUMA, RULER OF MEXICO.
