BASKETEERS TO PLAY TWO GOOD GAMES IN CITY
Ashland and Roseburg Junior High Teams Clash Tonight.
SENIOR HI SATURDAY
Marshfield Coming for Contest Tomorrow Night—Fast Battles Are Anticipated.

The local boys are to take a trip to the south on January 14 and 15, playing Medford and Ashland. Medford is to play here January 21. Senior High School Game
The senior high school meets Marshfield at the senior high gymnasium Saturday night at 8 o'clock. The game has been set a little later than usual in order to permit those who are engaged in business Saturday evenings to attend the game.
The Marshfield team is one of the best in the southern part of the state, according to all reports. In past years it has been leader in Coos county and last year topped the conference there. As many of the players are experienced they will have an advantage in this respect over the Roseburg team, which is composed largely of new material.
The Roseburg squad has been considerably strengthened by the return of George Webber, who has been ill and unable to play during his regular place at center. Coach Turner has been working the team hard during the past weeks in anticipation of this game, which is the start of a strenuous season. Even during the Christmas holidays the boys worked out regularly every day and gained some valuable practice. The team is now playing well together and should make a good showing in the games to be played during the season.

ROAD DISTRICT IS CREATED BY COUNTY COURT
The county court today created a new road district to be known as district 80. It will include the property lying east of the railroad tracks and north of Roseburg, a distance of about 5 miles and a half east. It does not take in the Winchester district, but extends to the boundaries of that district. Representatives of parties affected by the change met in court this afternoon and reached a satisfactory agreement over the change.
The court is also authorizing a small change in the Willis Creek district, taking in a small section of the Rice Creek district to accommodate the Ronck family which uses the Willis Creek roads rather than the roads in the district in which they are now included. The change, the court says, will have little effect upon the valuations.

Basketball fans of the city are to be given an opportunity of witnessing two games today and tomorrow. Tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Junior high school gymnasium there will be a game between the Roseburg Junior high school team and the Ashland Junior high school basket tossers. This is the first game the local boys have had with a team from out of the county.
The Roseburg team is somewhat handicapped by the absence of the regular center, Lindon Hoffman, who is ill with a case of mumps, but a shifting of players and substitutes will be made so that the team will not be weakened to any great extent, it is believed. The local team has been coached by Dr. G. C. Finlay, who for years has given his time to school athletics. Prof. Redden has also been engaged in the coaching work.
The first squad tonight will include Keith Atterbury, Garland Hess, George Minton, Peter Sommerholder, J. B. McClain, Carl Stephens, Richard Maddox and Truman Harris.
The Ashland team is reported to be fast and somewhat heavier than the Roseburg team. Although the players are young, tonight's game has all indications of being a fast one.
ber is now in good form and will radio waves are longer. It was not until the continent was spanned with wires, that the A. T. & T. turned to piercing the ether where wires could not be strung. Its first experiment of moment was when the company's engineers talked from Montauk Point, Long Island, to Wilmington, Delaware.

The navy granted permission to use the towers at Arlington, and from this point experiments were made with France, San Diego, San Francisco, the Islands of Panama and Hawaii.
In September 1915, an official of the company in New York talked to another in San Francisco over the radio, and received an answer back over the wire.
The first attempt to talk across the Atlantic failed. But in October, when the static-called "atmospherics" in England—disappeared the company succeeded for the first time in transmitting the human voice across the Atlantic.

Atlantic.
The two chief developments, experts say, are development of a crystal capable of holding the transmitter to its exact wavelength and the elimination of the carrier wave and one of the side bands used in ordinary broadcasting.
The Piezo crystal, as it is called, is a bit of quartz ground to a specified thickness and shape. It holds the wave length to 5,000 meters in the present case, preventing oscillations that would make it difficult, if not impossible, to keep the receiving apparatus tuned to it.
As for the carrier wave and the two side bands, these in ordinary broadcasting consume nearly sixty per cent of the energy used. The sidebands carry the actual voice vibrations. The engineers working on the trans-Atlantic radio-phone have, it is said, worked out a system whereby these two parts of the original wave are whittled off the parent wave at the sending station, and the single sideband is sent on its way carrying the voice.
Without the carrier wave and its twin side wave the voice is dumb and useless, but at the receiving end the carrier wave and the other sideband are restored, modulation becomes possible, and the single wide wave delivers its message without loss.
