AMERICAN LEGION DRUM CORPS HAS ANNUAL ELECTION

The drum corps has set out this year to make the organization the best in the state and with this objective in view is practicing every Friday night. The organization has extended an invitation to any one who served in the World War and can play either bugle or drum to become a member. The organization has no dues and all instruments and uniforms are furnished by the Umpqua Post American Legion.

PRUNE RAISERS SEE VALUE OF ORGANIZATION

(Continued from page 1.) rules which may be adopted. R. H. Kipp, of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, discussed roughly the plans of organization. Twenty meetings of prune growers in as many places throughout the state, have approved the plan, he stated. The most favored plan would provide for local units, each of which would elect a delegate to the state group, which would in turn select four men as representatives. The packers in turn would have a similar organization and they would select four men, these eight to choose a ninth man to serve as chairman. This board would determine prices, grades, advertising, etc.

The plan is one which is now being advocated in California and a committee is working in that state to correlate the Oregon plan so that there will be no conflicts. The growers, after listening to the speaker, asked a number of questions, which were explained, leading to further detail concerning the plans of organization. The growers agreed that some form of united action is necessary and that the plan proposed seems to be about the best offered so far.

SENATORS AND CONGRESSMEN GET WAR SCARE

(Continued from page 1.) war, congress should be told why. Kellogg to be heard. Two administration senators came momentarily to the defense of the Coolidge policies, but neither replied in detail to the charges of questions of the opposition. The Republican floor leader, Curtis D. Kammis, asked senators to withhold their opinions until Secretary Kellogg appeared next week before the foreign relations committee, and Senator Edges, Republican, of New Jersey, asked whether critics of the administration did not believe in protecting American life and property.

While the senate still argued, the house was told by Representative Huddleston, Democrat, of Alabama, that the United States was deliberately drifting into war with Mexico. He nominated President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg for places in the front line.

Jim Reed sarcastic Senator Reed declared himself "hopeless, confused," as to the identity of "that mysterious individual, the White House spokesman."

Even those who negotiated on behalf of Panama seem dissatisfied as their principal argument in

ROSEBURG JUNIOR HIGH BASKETEERS DEFEAT ASHLAND

Sensational Game Played Here Last Night—Outcome in Doubt Until Last Moment.

The Roseburg and Ashland junior high school basketball teams last night presented one of the fastest and most exciting basketball games to be seen in Roseburg in many years. Evenly matched in weight and size, the two teams exhibited unusual speed and fight and until the last few minutes of play the outcome was an uncertainty. The score saw-sawed back and forth until the last quarter when Roseburg staged a determined fight which noted out a victory by a score of 23 to 15.

Dying the first three quarters there was no time when the score differed by more than 2 points. First one team would be in the lead and then the other with never more than 2 points variation.

Roseburg started the scoring when Garland Iles, local forward, snatched a rebound, short shot, Ashland quickly tied the score, however, and from that time on it was a nip and tuck, with both teams fighting furiously. Roseburg used the short fast passes, characteristic of all Doc Flinlay's teams and the basket shooting was accurate. Ashland was slower in passing, but was steeper.

Time and again the crowd was brought to its feet by the clever basket shooting of Keeton, the Ashland forward, who demonstrated an uncanny ability at locating the basket on long shots. Time and again he popped the ball squarely through the hoop, the ball never touching the bounding board, while the shots were tossed from difficult positions on the middle of the floor. He was by far the outstanding player on the Ashland team.

Peter Sommerhalder, guard, Garland Iles and Keith Atterbury, were the stellar performers for Roseburg. Sommerhalder's defensive work was one of the features of the game.

Although he was the smallest player on the floor yet time and again he broke up organized Ashland plays and recovered the ball for Roseburg. Many of the plays upon which Roseburg scored were started by the fast little guard who was in the middle of every mix-up.

Iles was clever in his basket shooting and seldom missed when he had a chance at the basket. Atterbury's floor work was exceptionally good, and he accounted also for a good many of Roseburg's points.

Roseburg was somewhat handicapped by the fact that the regular center, Lindon Hoffman, was out of the line-up because of illness, but Truman Harries, substituting played a good game.

Although the players composing the junior high school teams were mere youngsters the brand of basketball presented has seldom been duplicated for thrills and excitement and clear playing. Only two fouls were called during the entire time, although both teams were fighting hard and fast, which
