The international extension program announced recently by officers of the Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias, will, in a large measure, direct the activities of Alpha Lodge, according to Chancellor Commander George R. Ware, who was recently installed with eight other officers of the lodge to direct the work of the Pythian fraternity in this city during the year.

Guard Must Stay Between His Man and Basket

This is the First and Most Important Fundamental of Individual Guarding. By H. G. Olsen, Ohio State Coach.

A COMMON MISTAKE IN GUARDING

One of the first and most important fundamentals of individual guarding is that the guard should stay between his man and the basket. If he so places himself, he is able to see the ball and cover his man as well. He can watch ball, but the same time be aware of any movement which his opponent makes and can shift his position accordingly.

Failure to observe this fundamental of guarding has cost many a basket. The illustrative pictures portray one very common mistake in this connection. The guard (see illustration No. 1) has posted himself in an improper position; he is not between his man and the basket, and he cannot see the ball and his man at the same time.

He is watching the ball and pointing at his opponent, who is slightly behind and to his left. This mistake can very easily be observed by anyone who cares to look for it in the average basketball game. Pointing at a man doesn't cover him.

Illustration No. 2 shows the forward starting his break for the basket. The guard, watching the ball, is evidently aware that something is about to happen. But before he quite senses the situation, the forward has the jump on him and is on his way to the basket. Too late, the guard discovers this and makes a strenuous effort to stop the pass to his man.

Illustration No. 3 shows the usual result of such improper guarding. The forward has carried a sufficient advantage, and the efforts of the guard are in vain. The basket is made.

It's Dangerous To Be Too Thin

Demands of Present-Day Fashion for Straight-Line Skinniness Wrecking Health of Thousands. It's the worst kind of folly to sacrifice your health for fashion or to daily ignore a condition you know is seriously wrong.

You do not need to be a Doctor to understand the dangers of sub-normal weight. Common Sense and the fact that Life Insurance Companies refuse to sell insurance to those who are "too thin" furnish convincing proofs that cannot be denied.
