THE GIST OF THE BIBLE

BOOK BY BOOK

ROMANS—THE WAY OF SALVATION IN SIX GREAT WORDS

The Epistle to the Romans, which Coleridge calls "the profoundest book in existence," was written by the Apostle Paul from Corinth about the year 56 A. D. after he had been a Christian about twenty years.

Undoubtedly it is Paul's masterpiece and one of the chief books of the New Testament.

The "key-note" is sounded in 1:16-17: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth: to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith, as it is written, 'The just shall live by faith'."

From this fundamental statement Paul evolves the profound argument of the epistle which may be summarized in six great words, viz.: "Condemnation, justification, sanctification, glorification, restoration and consecration."

"Condemnation" is what all men deserved because of their unrighteousness. The wrath of God was incurred by all through ungodliness. "That every mouth may be stopped, and all the world become guilty before God." This is the argument up to 3:20.

"Justification" is the way by which condemnation is removed, and the righteousness of God imputed to the unrighteous through faith alone in Jesus Christ without the deeds of the law. "As by the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation; even so by the righteousness of one the free gift came upon all men unto justification." This is the argument from 3:21 to 5:21.

"Sanctification" and not license will be the result of this abounding grace of justification. "Shall we continue in sin, that grace may abound? God forbid." Rather, the justified believer "walks not after the flesh, but after the Spirit," and "through the Spirit," and "through the Spirit mortifies the deeds of the body." This process of sanctification is dealt with in 6:1 to 8:13.

"Glorification" is the goal of justification and sanctification. Our glory is that we are the "children of God: and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ." "Whom he justified, them he also glorified." Thus the argument proceeds in 8:14-39.

"Restoration" is the word that sums up the argument Paul makes in chapters 9 to 11 for the solution of the "Jewish Question." God hath not cast away his ancient people Israel. "Because of unbelief they were broken off," but "they also, if they abide not still in unbelief shall be grafted in: for God is able to graft in again."

"Consecration" is the great practical word which sums up the last five chapters and to which all the doctrinal words of the first eleven chapters lead up. It shows the manner in which Paul would make doctrine the motive power of practice: "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

Thus it is with all of Paul's great epistles: first comes "doctrine," and afterwards "practice," and between these, like a golden hinge, a "therefore," showing that doctrine is the root, and practice the fruit of Christianity.

Let no man despise doctrine, for it is the foundation of life, and let not those who confess the Christian doctrine fail to translate it into consecrated Christian living.

"I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." Romans 12:1. What is the only sacrifice an yconsecrated person may make? As a man he gives up his right to live on earth as a perfect human being. When he agreed to do God's will that agreement carried with it the sacrifice of his right to live, because such is the will of God. Therefore it is apparent that the sacrifice of each and every man is exactly the same. Wealth, education, ability to make money, influence, and the like, have nothing whatever to do with the value of one's sacrifice. Come and study with us.
