WILL PROSECUTE FAILURE REPORT CONTAGIOUS CASES

Two new cases of smallpox have been discovered in Roseburg, Dr. Richard Thompson, county health officer announces. These cases were not reported until they were well advanced, and there is no way of knowing how many persons have been exposed, Dr. Thompson says.

"There is no excuse," he declared this afternoon, "for not recognizing the eruptions of chicken pox or smallpox. The Oregon law requires that where there are cases of suspicious contagious disease that the head of the household or others in authority must make a report, even though a physician is not called. The head of a household may be arrested, fined and imprisoned for failure to report a case in which a contagious disease may be suspected. In the future if unreported cases of small pox are found this office is going to file a complaint and back up the prosecution of the person who is responsible for such failure."

CIVIL WAR VETERAN DEAD AT 87 YEARS

STATE CONTROL BOARD REPORTS FOR BIENNIUM

cultural College, and approximately $1,000 for small fire losses at the state institutions, leaving a balance of approximately $24,000.

The board administers the provisional government park at Champoeg—the spot on which the Oregon country voted as United States territory by the settlers. During the past 12 months the park was visited by 52,896 people and 13,519 cars.

The past legislature provided for the loan of $1,500,000 to the farmers to reseed the frozen areas of Eastern Oregon. This fund was administered by the Board of Control and approximately $400,000 was loaned, and this has been collected execept about one and one-half per cent. The board was given $5,000 for expenses to handle the fund, which was expended practically entirely for attorney fees and printing. A balance of $576 remains in this fund.

The board administers the fund for state aided private institutions for the care of orphans, homeless and dependent children and for delinquent and wayward girls. A quarterly inspection and muster of these institutions is made and for their care, the institutions are allowed $20 per month for children under five and for maternal and venereal cases, and for children over five $16 per month. The board paid to these institutions during the biennial period is approximately $263,000.

Buildings Reconstructed

The building program at the state institutions for the coming biennium, as recommended by the board, amounts to $456,415. In addition the board will have charge of the construction of the new eastern Oregon tuberculosis hospital at The Dalles, authorized by the people at the last election.

The board acts as purchasing agent for all state institutions and expends for necessary purchases approximately $1,000,000 per year. The greater portion of these purchases are made on semi-annual bids, which bids are invited from the public. Very low prices are thus secured and a large saving is effected in the cost of operating the institutions. The board has recommended to the present legislature that it be made purchasing agent for all state department and activities.

The Board of Control is now the budget making department of the state and has just presented to the legislature a budget consisting of 144 pages of tabular matter and figures in small type. Governor Patterson recommended to the legislature that the governor be made the future budget making official.

The report referred to above contains the recommendations of Commandant Riddle of the Soldiers home for improvements proposed at that institution. An appropriation of $1,700 is asked for upkeep and improvements at the cemetery, the money to be used to lay pipe for a sprinkling system, and for carrying for the grounds. An appropriation is also asked for the erection of a greenhouse for the propagation of flower and garden plants. It can be cheaply operated from the main heating plant.

Would Admit Widows

The present laws make no provision for the admission of widows to the Soldiers' Home. At the annual grand encampment held in Marshfield the G. A. R. and W. R. C. passed a resolution asking for the admission of widows to the soldiers home and for an appropriation for the erection of a suitable building for the accomodation. The cost of a suitable building and its equipment, Mr. Riddle says, would be about $30,000. This building, the commandant reports, would be ample for the accomodation of wives with their husbands, with the view of doing away with the present cottages that are now occupied by four widows and three married couples. These cottages are inconvenient, expensive to maintain and unsanitary. The bill will be presented to the legislature by the Women's Relief Corps of the G. A. R. and endorsed by all ex-service organizations. Mr. Riddle advises that any law for the admission of widows provide restrictions as to age and date of marriage.

FINANCE PLAN FOR TEN YEARS AIM OF SURVEY

measure was not constitutional for the reason that the constitution limits the pay of legislators to $3 a day.

"To pass it," he said, "is to ignore the constitution which we have sworn to support. We should be lawmakers and not lawbreakers." He cited an election in which the people had turned down a similar measure and demanded a roll call vote. "I consider that when I was elected to this senate," said Senator Staples, "that I made an implied contract with the people. They are the other parties to the contract and are not here to defend themselves. We are their hired men. Who of you would expect his hired men to raise their own wages."

"Expense Money"

Senator Banks, speaking on the other side, declared there was nothing in the resolution that does violence to the constitution for the reason that the constitution provision refers entirely to compensation, while the resolution provides "exnense money."

"The resolution does not compel any one to accept this money, but I venture the guess that the senator from Yamhill will sign a receipt at the end of the session."

Senator Dunn of Jackson poked fun at the resolution.

"Under the present system," he said, "we have in the senate the finest body of men that could be gathered in this state. While we can get plenty of good men to work for $3 why pay more? It's good business to keep it at $3."

Senator Moser reminded the opposition that when the constitution was adopted meals cost 25 cents and the finest hotel room could be gotten for $1 a night. He predicted that the resolution would place the legislature on a higher plane.

"People now say," Moser complained, "that they don't understand how men can come here for $3, and they seem to think there is some graft in it. You and I know there isn't."

Sartorical Evidence

"Senator Moser says he knows there is no graft here," Senator Joseph said. "He may know it, but I don't. I have seen men come here wearing hand-me-downs and by the middle of the session they would be wearing tailor-made clothes."

The resolution's reference to "expense money," Senator Eddy branded as a subterfuge.

Senator Hall said he was going to vote for the measure because he considered it right and that he had not signed any agreement.

"I am wondering," spoke Senator Strayer, "how many of you senators would have had the courage to tell your constitutents that as soon as you got to Salem and were sworn in you would vote $20,000 into your own pockets. Had you done so I am wondering how many of you would have been elected."

Sincerity Questioned

Senator Hare closing the debate, said the speeches of the opposing members reminded him of the story of the devil shearing a pig. "He is reported to have said," the senator recounted, "that he got a hell of a squeal and very little wool." He opined that Strayer had the wrong idea in thinking a legislator "must get down on his belly and crawl to satisfy some old long-bearded taxpayer."

Hare declared that the legislature stands higher in the estimation of the people than ever before, and that if the resolution passed he was going to check up at the end of the session and find out how many of the opposing senators took their share of the money.

Popular Vote Sought

Although he did not support the resolution providing that members of the legislature receive $5 a day additional, as "expense money," Senator Joseph yesterday introduced a joint resolution for constitutional amendments to increase the pay of the members from $3 to $10 a day. The resolution was introduced immediately after the passage of the $5 resolution. Under the law the measure would have to be voted on by the people. Twice before a measure for the purpose has been submitted to the people and defeated, but both the previous resolutions were different from the Joseph resolution. One of the former measures carried with it a provision for a divided legislative session and the other a provision that the duration of the session be increased from forty to sixty days. The Joseph measure contains only the provision for an increase in the pay.

Consolidation Plan

The senate late yesterday adopted the MacPherson house joint resolution for the appointment of a special committee of three representatives and two senators, appointed by the respective presiding officers to make a study of a more simple and efficient machinery of state government, with consolidation in view. The resolution requires the committee to report to the present legislature not later than the 20th day of the session.

STATE HOUSE, Salem, Oregon, Jan. 21.—The house late yesterday adopted senate joint memorial number 5, calling for an investigation by congress of a contract entered into by Fred Herrick for purchase from the federal forestry service of 890,000,000 feet of lumber in the Malheur national forests. Under terms of the contract executed in 1923, Herrick was obligated to build about eighty miles of railway which was to be a common carrier. The contract has never been fulfilled, extensions of time having been granted from year to year, it was pointed out by Representative R. S. Hamilton of Bend on speaking on the memorial. The latter suggested it was on account of Herrick's relations with certain parties formerly connected with the forestry service that he had not been forced to carry out his contract.

STATE HOUSE, Salem, Oregon, Jan. 21.—By cutting out some appropriations bodily and trimming others down the ways and means committee last night found a way to save $104,675 more in state finances.

The predatory animal hunters fund was cut out entirely. So were the appropriations for the bureau of nursing, the pilot commission and the Americanization commission. From the appropriation asked by the state board of health the committee cut off $35,445. Committees were appointed to investigate some other activities upon which the committee is now inclined to frown on. The state penitentiary was allowed its entire estimate of $419,000.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 21.—Charles Gallagher, alias Gorman, taken from a freight train here, has been identified as a convict from Oregon who broke parole in 1916.

Stayed in Jail 15 Months to Keep Daughter From Divorced Wife

For 15 months James A. Hall stayed in a Kansas City jail rather than tell a judge and Mrs. Hall, who had divorced him, where their 8-year-old daughter, whose custody the court had awarded the mother, was hidden. His health failed due to confinement, and for weeks he could eat only bread and milk. Now, weak and emaciated, Hall has given up and announced he will reveal the girl's hiding place. His condition is considered serious. The insets show the daughter, Grace Angela Hall, and Judge Frank O. Hutchings, who sent Hall to jail for "contempt."

der President Diaz and the Liberals under President Sacasa. The conservative government has refused the suggestion with the explanation that Guatemala was used as a "revolutionary base by the liberals and Mexicans."

Major General Bartolome Viquez, commanding the conservative troops in the vicinity of Chinandega and Telica, has arrived at Managua, and says that within a few days he will make a concentrated drive "to break the backbone of the revolution in the interior."

He declared that owing to the pressure of his army the liberals were scattering every day, coming out only to steal food and cattle.

Coolidge Stands Pat.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—President Coolidge's position that there is only one question at issue between Mexico and the United States, that of whether American property is to be taken from its owners without compensation, was reiterated with emphasis today at the White House.

The president believes from certain activities in the United States he has observed that the American public does not even yet fully realize that this is the issue and that if that question could be settled there would be no further trouble.

The president has difficulty, it was said, in seeing how Americans can be on but one side of that question. The Washington government is one side, it was added, and the Mexican government on the other.

Rippling Rhymes by Walt Mason

A WET NIGHT.

It is a fearful night outdoors, it is the father of all gales; adown the pane the water pours, the nightwind shrieks and weeps and wails. The storm is beating on the roof, it thunders up against the wall; and I sit here, serene, aloof, and read "The Ghost of Hobson Hall." I have a good old padded chair; I have a pipe that draweth well; the comfort of my pleasant lair is multiplied when tempests yell. I think of wanderers abroad, out yonder where the torrents fall, who have no home, who have no wad, who have no "Ghost of Hobson Hall." I'm full of pity for such wights, I'd gladly hand them fifty cents; it's ill to roam, on stormy nights, afar from cottages and tents. Yet thoughts of them can but increase my comfort as I here recline; it fills my heart with balmy peace, contrasting their sad lot with mine. One-half of comfort is the thought that while we bask in gilded ease, some other fellows, sore distraught, wade round in mud up to their knees. While we repose, secure and warm, well filled from feeding at the trough, some other fellows face the storm and have their sideboards frozen off. While we recall the victuals sweet that we consumed an hour ago, some are so hungry they could eat the feet and feathers of a crow. Ah, no, we are not hard of heart, we're truly sorry for the poor, and for the hobo's dismal part as lost man on a rain-soaked moor. But contrasts are the things that make for comfort in man's loafing place, when savage tempests come and shake his shanty on its concrete base. The winds increase, the water pours, and I remark to my Aunt Em, "God help the fellows out of doors—I'm glad I do not train with them!"
