SENATORS' FATE THIS YEAR RESTS ON THE PITCHERS

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Pitching seems likely to decide the fate of the Senators in the American league pennant race this year.

Collapsing of the team's veteran hurling corps last year has spurred the club to action, and of the forty players on Washington's roster, more than half are pitchers. The squad includes the veteran, Walter Johnson and Stan Coveleske, the former of whom will start his twenty-first campaign as a Senator next spring.

The only deal Washington has consummated since the close of the 1926 race was a stroke to strengthen the mound staff. This swap brought here a pair of White Sox hurlers, Hollis Thurston and Leo Mangum, in exchange for the veteran shortstop, Roger Peckinpaugh.

Thurston, still on the sunny side of thirty, achieved twenty victories for the last place White Sox in 1924. Fred Marberry, well known relief pitcher, George Murray and Curley Ogden also remain from last year's team.

Draft, purchase and recall all have been invoked in assembling the remainder of the array. Manager Bucky Harris hopes to weld into a winning bow staff. Among the prospects are Alvin Crowder, Irving Hadley, Decatur Jones, Willard Morrell and Garland Braxton.

McWeney, Gordin and Rice again are expected to comprise the first string outfield. The inner cordon will be Judge, Harris, Myer and Bluege, while Ruel and Tate will divide the catching burden with John Berger, a draftee from New Haven, acting as understudy. Several promising infielders and fly-chasers are due for an inspection at the Tampa training camp.

FOREIGN BEEF ON U. S. BATTLESHIPS STIRS STOCKMEN

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 28.—In a compilation of approximately 25 resolutions voted on Thursday at the closing session of the American National Livestock association convention, was one requesting both the secretary of war and the secretary of navy to instruct army and navy provision purchasers to buy only American grown beef.

"It has come to our attention," the resolution read, "that the United States navy is provisioning their fleet on or about March 1, at Panama, with Australian and New Zealand beef and this beef is to be distributed to the navy on the Atlantic coast. We insist that the regular duty of 3 cents a pound be paid on this foreign beef in this instance."

Angling for steelheads in the Rogue river and its tributaries would be prohibited between February 1 and April 15 by house bill 204, introduced late yesterday by Representative Theodore of Josephine county.

Commercial trolling for salmon in tidewater in the state would be made legal if a change in the commercial fishing code proposed by the state fish commission is made by the legislature. The measure would give the commission power to license commercial trawlers in any tide water of the state. The present law prohibits trolling inside the streams.

To Halt Petition Pest.
Another bill designed to make it more difficult to circulate initiative and referendum petitions is scheduled to make its appearance in the house today under the guiding hand of Representative S. L. Stewart of Lane county. It provides a penalty for any one circulating a petition for money, the proposed fine being from $25 to $100, or imprisonment in the county jail for not to exceed sixty days or both fine and imprisonment.

Would Curb Rustling.
SALEM, Jan. 28.—Another series of bills seeking to stamp out cattle "rustling" in the range country east of the Cascade mountains was introduced today in the house by Representative C. A. Hunter of Union and Walla counties.

House bill 335, one of the series, would provide for appointment of inspectors to serve in stockyards in Oregon and other states on the request of cattle and horse raisers' association of Oregon. A small levy would be made on cattle and horses owned by association members to pay such inspectors. These inspectors to be named by the governor, would "spot" stolen animals. House bill 336 provides for the payment of the inspectors.

House bill 337 would require the owners of stock supply a railroad or other common carrier with a certificate describing animals he is shipping.

House bill 338 requires that animals be "hog dressed" which means that the ears and hide shall remain on any carcass. Only the knees, heads and entrails may be removed under such a law.

Bounty Bond Grows.
William Garoutte, member of the Oregon cavalry in the Civil war, died in a hospital at Fort Walla Walla in 1865 and left to his credit in the state treasury of Oregon a bounty bond of $50, provided by the state for all soldiers of the regiment. The bond has remained with the state treasurer ever since and by the accumulation of interest now amounts to $118.25.

by Bert E. Haney, that the reason he had chosen to default in the injunction suit brought to prevent the execution of the contracts was that otherwise the state would have been on what he considered the wrong side of the case. He said further that he considered the commission was illegally constituted.

A. B. Mavity, agent for one of the publishing concerns, denied that he had made statements about Milton A. Miller attributed to him by Turner. He and Frances Brown, another agent, said they had attempted no undue influence and had seen no evidences of bribery attempted on members of the commission.

GLENDAL MAN GETS BROKEN LEG WHEN HIT BY CAR

Glenn Booth, who operates a service station at the Booth ranch near Glendale, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile driven by Oscar Joelson, who was on his way to Roseburg to visit his brother, Mr. Booth.

Mr. Booth was crossing the road when Mr. Joelson drove up in his car. The driver apparently became confused and the car plunged across the highway and pinned Mr. Booth against a large maple tree about 8 feet off the left hand side of the road. The man's left leg was broken and crushed, while he suffered other bruises and cuts. He was brought to Mercy hospital and is suffering greatly from shock today. Dr. Stewart was called to attend him. Mr. Joelson was placed under arrest by a state traffic officer and is being given a hearing at Canyonville today on a charge of reckless driving.
