PAIR SUSPECTED AS D'AUTREMONT'S TAKEN IN CANADA

Admitted Being Fugitives,
Declares Companion in Affidavit Before Authorities.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
ASBESTOS, Que., Mar. 8.—Two men detained on suspicion of being Roy and Ray DeAutremont, wanted for a train holdup and the killing of four men in the Siskiyou mountains, Oregon, in 1923, have been transferred to the jail at Arthabaska, Quebec.

The United States postoffice department is sending an officer to examine the men and he probably will arrive tomorrow. The department has offered a reward of $15,000 for the capture of the three DeAutremont brothers, Roy, Ray and Hugh. The detained men refused to make any statement. Their signatures have been taken and will be used in an effort to determine whether or not they are the men wanted.

The allegation that the men held here are the DeAutremonts was made in an affidavit by Charles Pineaud, who, with the two requested a night's lodging in the police station from Chief of Police Ferland. Chief Ferland received inquiries from Princeville asking if he had seen three strange men and on further questioning, Pineaud, the latter, made out an affidavit before a notary.

LONG-TIME SHEEP PROSPECT GOOD, BUREAU SAYS

Although sheep raising heretofore has perhaps been subjected to greater vicissitudes than any other branch of animal husbandry, the long-time prospect for the sheepman appears favorable. This is the view of the United States Department of Agriculture, which says the tendency in sheep raising should be toward greater permanence and profits.

Unquestionably, says the department, there will again be periods of overproduction and underproduction in sheep raising. It declares, however, that various factors are coming into operation which tend to lessen the violence of these ups and downs. One of the most important is the fact that the sheep industry has emerged from the pioneer stage, and can no longer be shunted off to the poorest lands but must have a definite place in the agricultural scheme. In many places sheep have already come down off the rocks and are occupying valuable land and consuming high-priced feed.

Another favorable influence on the sheep industry is the growth of population in the United States. This is taking place at the rate of 1 1/2 per cent per annum. A substantial increase in lamb and mutton production will be required to meet the resulting increased demand.

PRINCETON STUDENT IS LATEST SUICIDE

man, even if there is no increase in per capita consumption. Moreover, urban population is increasing more rapidly than the country's population as a whole, and it is in the urban centers that sheepmen find their chief markets for lamb and mutton.

It seems inevitable, says the department, that lamb and mutton consumption in the United States will increase materially. Our per capita consumption at the present time is only 5.5 pounds. This is insignificant compared with England's 25 to 27 pounds, and is low even when compared with Canada's 9 pounds. A moderate increase in our per capita consumption of lamb and mutton would mean a vastly increased market for the leading product of the sheep industry. There is every prospect, says the department, that lamb and mutton will work out of the specialty or luxury class in which they now stand, and will take their place in the list of meat necessities.

MOHAIR SHEARING NOW GETTING WELL UNDERWAY

Mohair shearing is getting under way in the entire Willamette valley and growers in this section who are members of the Pacific Cooperative Wool Growers are this week receiving letters from the association office with billing and shipping instructions, and general data regarding the handling of mohair through that marketing organization.

Approximately ten thousand goats have been signed up this winter in Arizona, reports association officials. A mohair grower at Alamogordo, New Mexico, with a thousand goats has just sent in his marketing agreement and will ship his mohair immediately. The Pacific's principal field of operations includes Oregon, Washington, Idaho, California and Nevada.

The mohair market has been rather inactive, with a few scattered clips being reported contracted at 45c. Mill demand for mohair continues moderate in volume with a considerable stock of foreign hair immediately available for consumption. The total volume imported since the beginning of the year is slightly smaller than for a corresponding period of 1926 but withdrawals from bonded warehouses amount to about 1,400,000 pounds or about a half million pounds greater than for a similar period last year.

California fell.
U. S. Ship Reports.
NEW YORK, March 8.—The Cunard line office here received the full report of the captain of the world cruiser California today concerning the Japanese earthquake shocks that resulted in the death of one passenger and injuries to several of the crew.

The report, stated by Captain Alexander Collie, follows:

"Ship endangered. Heavy sea in harbor dashed over pier causing gangway structure and dock to part. Passengers in upper shed on falling dock rushed on board for safety. Gangway parted during violent quake throwing one passenger onto lower dock and into water and I regret to report death of lady, Mrs. Glen Schultze of Ventnor, N. J., from shock and immersion."

Minor injuries suffered three members crew. Also George Prance, steward, head injury sustained diving from ship while making heroic efforts to rescue lady passenger between ship and dock. All other passengers and crew uninjured and well.

Official Report
NEW YORK, March 8.—The consulate general of Japan in New York announced the receipt today of a cablegram from the Japanese foreign office minimizing the damage done in the earthquake yesterday.

"The earthquake occurred March 7 in and about Tango district of Kyoto prefecture," said the message. "Some damage was sustained through houses being shaken down or destroyed by fire but the total damage suffered is estimated to be much less than that wrought by an earthquake in May 1925 in the adjoining district of Tajima."

SINCLAIR COUNSEL BLOCKS MAN WHO WOULD 'EXPLAIN'

Former Secretary Hitchcock of the Interior Department, one-time ambassador to Russia, told the story of the oak in a memorandum written years ago. During his term as ambassador, he related, he inquired as to the disposition of some acorns from Mount Vernon which Charles Sumner, then senator from Massachusetts, had sent to the czar. They had been planted, he learned, on what was known as Casaria Island in the grounds of the imperial palace at Peterhof.

"There I found a beautiful oak," he wrote, "with a tablet at its foot bearing a Russian inscription, a translation of which is as follows: 'The acorn planted here was taken from an oak which shades the tomb of the celebrated and never-to-be-forgotten Washington. It is presented to H. I. M. the emperor of all the Russians as a sign of the greatest respect by an American.'"

"I was fortunate at the time
