REFINING METHODS ARE EXPLAINED

Today's program at Rotary was in charge of A. D. Abbott local representative of the Standard Oil Co., who explained in detail the refining process used in making gasoline. His talk proved very interesting to Rotarians, giving them a vivid idea of how crude oil is refined to that degree of high grade gasoline. The "Standard Oil Orchestra" furnished a delightful music program during the lunch hour.

President McElhinny announced next Thursday "Father and Son Day." Each Rotarian is to have as his guest a son and a special program will be prepared for this occasion.

Jack Harding, who is putting the convention spirit into the boys, announced that elaborate plans were being made for the district conference to be held at Tacoma April 24, 25 and 26, and that reservations should be made at once. It is hoped to have a good attendance from the Roseburg Rotary club, and Jack is anxious to get a list of all who are going to attend. The first day's luncheon at the conference will be in charge of the local club, other southern Oregon clubs co-operating.

Joe Denn got away with a fine "exploitation" of his courtship days in honor of his wife's birthday, the latter being the recipient of a beautiful bouquet of flowers from the president.

Johnny Runyan also told of his courtship days and the many "hardships" encountered. Mrs. Runyan was also presented with a fine bouquet from President Charley.

Elmo Maulding of the Wilder & Ager store was received into Rotary today.

Several visitors were present and the general attendance was good.

THELMA OLMSTEAD LEAVES TODAY ON HOLLYWOOD TRIP

Group of Junior Movie Stars Stop in Roseburg at Noon Today on Way South.

The big Bell Stage line bus, bearing the winners of the Bell Stage Line—Paramount Studios Junior Star Contest arrived in this city at noon today and remained until 2 o'clock, the members of the party taking lunch at the Rose hotel. Ten winners of junior star contests make up the party, there being eight girls and two boys, representing as many, Oregon and Washington cities.

Miss Thelma Olmstead, representing Roseburg, joined the party here and will be given a free trip to Hollywood and return with a personally conducted tour through the Paramount studios, with an opportunity to meet a number of the famous movie stars. The young people making up the party include: Everett, Miss Alma Clifford; Bremerton, Miss Althea Stoeck; Seattle, Miss Lou Golding; Tacoma, Fred Stoeck; Kelso, Miss Gladys Thoe; Oregon City, Miss Babe Smith; Salem, Miss Maud Gwyn; Roseburg, Miss Thelma Olmstead; Medford, Miss Ruby Hannaford; Albany, Bobby Stevens.

Mrs. Wallace Jessop, associate editor of the Associated Press in the northwest and editor of the Daily News-Sunlight of Bremerton, and well known as the "Mother of the Pacific Fleet" is the official chaperone. Included in the party is also Robert N. Bunce, manager and director of the Paramount Junior Star Contest.

The contest is one in which the Paramount studios conduct popularity screen tests in leading theatres in various cities, and from among the young people select those of the most attractive appearance and personality. These winners are then given free transportation to Hollywood by the Bell Stage Lines and are shown through the Paramount Studios.

Mr. Bunce states that since the contest was held in Roseburg, at which time Miss Olmstead was selected to represent Roseburg, the plan has been changed somewhat and has been attracting so much attention that an effort has been made by theatre men to have a stunt used for vaudeville. In Seattle and Tacoma the contest was put on in the Pantages theatre, and numerous groups will be brought through Roseburg during the future months.

Because of the fact that the bus left here during the middle of the afternoon there was no public demonstration in connection with Miss Olmstead's departure. An official delegation of the Umpqua Chiefs was present and many of the charming young lady's friends were on hand to bid her goodbye.

MARKET RATINGS

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

PORTLAND, Ore., Mar. 10.—Very little hopes are held now of a curvy in the potato market in the final wind-up of the 1926 deal. Instead it appears now as if the close will be peaceful with little change in current values.

In the Pacific northwest primary markets trading is steady with prices on a stable basis. Little change has been shown during the past 30 days. Some growers still have hopes of higher prices and are holding but buyers have little trouble filling their requirements.

Buyers in the local field report little activity in the producing sections tributary to Portland. A moderate volume of business is being done at 1.50 to 1.60 for 1 1/2 No. 1 Burbanks in the country. These prices generally include sacks and hauling.

There is very little top grade stock now and it is widely scattered. Prospects of a shortage before the new crop comes on is very remote.

The cube butter market is firm and higher with an active demand for top grades. On the dairy exchange extras and standards were posted a center higher at 45 and 44 cents respectively. Prime firsts advanced a half to 43 1/2 and firsts remained unchanged.

Medium grade eggs declined a cent today to the 19 cent level. No other changes were shown on the board and the market continued generally steady.

Receipts of country meats continued steady in quantities sufficient to meet the call of a moderate trade. Hogs moved at 17 cents, while prime calves went at 17 1/2 to 18 cents.

Poultry trade on the local market is holding steady with the exception of light hens, which, under influence of an easy toze, were selling at 21 cents.
