THE RAILROADERS.

For more than 50 years Steve J. Standart, of Kansas City, has been a locomotive engineer. He is not only dean of engineers on his own railroad; he is believed to have about the longest service record of any engineer in the country.

Standart was a railroader when locomotives and their equipment had not been perfected as they are now. And he makes a remark that we think is rather apropos:

"The man who travels on the de luxe trains of today, with all the comforts of a modern hotel, does not realize the toil in human life and suffering the present-day standard of railroad service has taken in its building."

He's right. We are accustomed to take our railroads for granted. We fuss and fume if, on a freezing winter night, the Pullman car is not heated to just the right temperature. We complain loudly if, on a thousand-mile run, our train is twenty minutes late. When the roadbed over a mountainous region is a bit bumpy and uneven we vow we shall never travel by that route again. When we read of a wreck we shake our heads and wonder what is the matter with the line, anyhow.

We forget what a tremendously complicated thing the modern railway train is; we forget how many years of effort have gone into bringing it to its present standard.

Not so long ago, for instance, applying the brakes to a train was not a simple matter of pulling a six-inch lever in the engine cab, with compressed air to do the work. No indeed. The engineer threw his weight on a long lever; on top of every car a trainman did likewise. Standart points out that many times in the old days he blistered his hands and wrists "to the elbow" pulling on the hand brake.

Railroading is an exciting calling. Rain or shine, winter or summer, the trains must go out on time. This means hard work and careful planning by the workmen responsible.

It's worth while for us to give a thought, occasionally, to the man in the cab—and to the other workers, on the train and along the line. Heavy responsibility sits on these men's shoulders. A slight mistake by any one of them could bring disaster. There's a strenuous job. They deserve our recognition.

Fifteen years ago Jesse Sharp, "lifer," escaped from the Ohio penitentiary. The other day, old and broken, he came back voluntarily. The strain of evading police, of fearing constantly that he would be caught, was too great, he said. It ruined his health and prevented him from getting any enjoyment of his freedom. So he came back. A law-breaker pays for his crime in more ways than one. This man found that a man's own conscience can punish him more sharply than any man-made prison. It doesn't always pay, after all.

The tornado swept virtually everything from an area of approximately four square miles. It seemed to center here.

Rain and wind that followed the twister continued in Texas yesterday to cause damage at widely separated places. Upward of a dozen towns reported more than a score injured and heavy damage from high winds.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

It has been rumored that Mr. Cooney's recent illness was caused by electric treatment given by Dr. R. A. Moon. Desiring to correct any misapprehension, I wish the public to know that my trouble was of long standing and was diagnosed as tuberculosis of the rectum by Dr. Coffey of Portland, and could not have been caused by Dr. Moon's treatment.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST

With Simon of Cyrene carrying the cross, Jesus was taken to Calvary and there crucified between two thieves, while His mother and friends stood by. Jeering Him, the crowd said, "He saved others, let Him save himself if He be Christ." (Luke XXIII: 26-39).

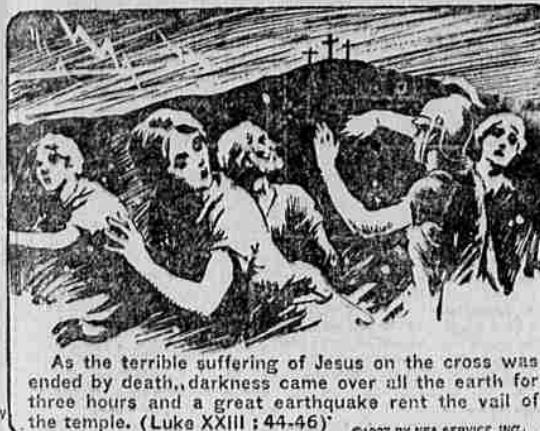

The Crucifixion

The soldiers cast lots for His garments. Above Him was the inscription, "Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews." (John XIX: 19-24)

One of the crucified thieves repented of his sins, and Jesus promised him eternal life. (Luke XXIII: 40-43)

As the terrible suffering of Jesus on the cross was ended by death, darkness came over all the earth for three hours and a great earthquake rent the veil of the temple. (Luke XXIII: 44-46)

NEWS-REVIEW TO MAKE CHANGE IN PRESS TIME

the day upon which they are to appear.

The News-Review is making these definite rules entirely for the benefit of its advertisers. Adherence to these requirements will permit the issuance of the paper daily in time to reach its great family of readers the same night of publication, serving them with the news of the day and at the same time giving the advertisers an opportunity of reaching the prospective buyers with fresh and timely displays. The cooperation of all advertisers in solicited in making this service efficient and effective.

Be Sold On Training

The News-Review is enabled to make another announcement which is very gratifying to the management. The Southern Pacific Company has made arrangements whereby the News-Review is to be sold on trains 11 and 12, being the only daily paper between San Francisco and Portland to be placed on sale on these trains. While the News-Review feels very appreciative of the fact that it has been accepted to provide the news of the day for the train passengers, it feels that there is an opportunity to do a great service for Roseburg. These trains, the Shasta carry a great many tourists and there is an opportunity to call Roseburg to the attention of a number of these people through the newspaper which they will read.

The new schedule puts both trains through Roseburg to the early part of the afternoon. By that time the passengers have exhausted the news in the evening and morning papers, that they will have procured in San Francisco or Portland, and they will be anxious to secure the more up-to-date news. The News-Review will be able to supply these trains and Roseburg will therefore be impressed more definitely upon the minds of the passengers who procure the papers. It urges the cooperation of its advertisers and solicits the suggestions of its readers in maintaining an attractive and interesting newspaper.

The new train service is causing several other papers in the state to make changes in the press hours, word having been received today that Portland dailies are advancing their press hours in order to get their upstate editions in the early mail.

TEMBLOR ROCKS CHILEAN CAPITAL; SEVERAL KILLED

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 14.—Several persons lost their lives and numerous persons were injured when an earthquake shook the capital at 1:40 o'clock this morning. The newspaper La Nacion had reports of six deaths, while El Mercurio had learned of four deaths.

Most of the casualties were in the residential sections, where several houses collapsed. In the business district the streets were littered with bricks and debris. Only a few persons were in the streets at the time of the shock. They hurried to open spaces for refuge. The population in general rushed from houses in night attire or with what few clothes they were able to snatch in hurried flight. Within a few minutes all was chaos.

Numerous fire alarms were turned in and the fire engines were kept busy rushing to various parts of the city. Telephone and telegraph service was interrupted with all points except Los Andes and Concepcion, which reported that while they felt the shock, no severe damage was caused.

The quake was felt at Valparaiso, about 60 miles northwest of Santiago, but only meagre reports of damage there have been received.

THEATRES

LIBERTY THEATRE

The stirring days which followed the United States acquisition of California from Spain, are depicted in "Don Mike," Fred Thomson's latest starring vehicle for P. B. O. which is coming to the Liberty theatre next Friday when it begins a two-day run. Among the highlights of the picture is the raising of the Bear state flag on Don Mike's ranch by the marauders who have stolen it, and the ride to the young Don's aid by General Fremont and his troopers. Fred plays the part of Don Mike who has inherited not only a vast tract of land, but all the fascinations of his Irish mother and the daring of his Spanish father. He interprets the role in an engaging and brilliant fashion, and uses his marvelous horsemanship to great advantage in some of the thrilling scenes. Silver King, of course, is any list of the "Great Westerns of all time," and thoroughly performing unusual feats furnish serves this rating.

BROCCOLI GROWERS

The board of directors of the Um-Qua Valley Broccoli Growers will meet at the office of their Edendower warehouse April 18th at 7:30 p. m. All growers are invited to be present.

many breath taking moments. The production was made under the very excellent direction of Lloyd Ingraham who also wrote the continuity from the original story by Frank M. Clifton. The splendid cast includes such celebrities as: Ruth Clifford, Noah Young, Albert Prisco, William Courtwright, Tom Bates, Norma Marie and Carmen Le Roux.

If anything was needed to prove the utter greatness of Fred and Silver as a top-notch western combination, it can be found in this picture. It is right at the top of his equine partner in these adventures, and their limitless skill in performing unusual feats furnish serves this rating.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY NAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Fair Bobby Sharpe felt real proud that he could show the Tinymites' crowd the way his little railroad sailed across the deep blue sea. He'd pushed it out a ways, and then, 'twould float right back to shore again. Then Cloway sat down on the sand and said, "Say, just watch me!"

He tossed his shoes up in the air, and shortly both his feet were bare. He scrambled to the water's edge, and shouted, "Gee, it's cold." "Oh, go on in," we Scouty cried. "It's warmer when you're once inside." So Cloway shouted, "Sure I will. I'll show you I am bold!"

He waded in up to his knees and, my, at first, he thought he'd freeze. But then, when he got used to it, it wasn't bad at all. "Watch out," cried Cloway. "There are stones. Don't stumble now, and break your bones."

The boat was then pushed out to him, and very soon he made it skim across the glassy water just as slick as a slick can be. The others then went wading too. It was a lot of fun to do. But Bobby Sharpe stayed on shore, 'cause quite afraid was he.

A ways from shore a boat went by and made some little waves sail high. They tipped the sailboat over and this quickly stopped their fun. A lump rose in poor Bobby's throat. "Oh, my," said he, "don't spoil my boat." But Cloway quick is told him it would dry out in the sun.

Then all the Tinymites left the boat and thanked him for the fun they'd had. And then they heard a country maiden sing a milking song. They rushed right up, quite un-
