ANTLERS THEATRE

Thrilling scenes of the Oklahoma oil rush are vividly pictured in "The Brute," the Warner Bros. production starring Monte Blue which is at the Antlers theatre today.

When the big rush is on, Felton leaves his Razzle Dazzle Saloon and with his "girls," his bartenders and bouncers makes the pilgrimage to the boom country, starting up another place of business. The ways in which Janice, one of the girls, is rescued from the toils of the wicked old spider Felton, by "Easy-Going" Randall, otherwise known as "The Brute," make a tale of as stirring adventure as has been seen on the screen in many a day.

Monte Blue plays "The Brute" in his most vigorous and pleas...? manner.

Long considered as wonderful picture material, but pronounced "too big even for the screen," which is supposed to know no limitations, the famous Jules Verne melodrama, "Michael Strogoff," the attraction Sunday at the Antlers theatre, seems to have more than justified the daring of its producers, and their lavish expenditure of time and money. More than eight months was spent in filming the pictures; more than 6,000 people were employed in the cast which included Tartar tribesmen, Cossacks, Russian cavalry, and hundreds of aristocratic appearing couples who dance the national "Krakowia" at the Grand Ball in the Palace of the Czar. A large portion of the picture is in natural color, which is especially effective in the scenes of barbaric Oriental splendor.

LIBERTY THEATRE

Excitement and thrills are given a new meaning in "Tarzan and the Golden Lion," an FBO Gold Bond Special which is now showing at the Liberty theatre. A hunt for a hidden city, scaling a precipitous cliff, an escape through some unknown caves, skirmishes with savage tribes and an encounter with a lion are a few of the highlights of a picture that may well be called the acme of entertainment. Suspense and romance are also runners up, and claim a large amount of the audience's attention. Inasmuch as the story is laid in Africa and deals wit hsuch unusual characterizations as the unique Tarzan, various native tribes and a purely imaginary people living in the hidden city, there is a wealth of novel material.

Two children in an enchanted garden, listening to the music of a violin weaving its magic into their hearts and binding them together forever; this is the memory that a boy and girl cherished through long years until they found one another again. Gene Stratton-Porter created this beautiful theme as her last and greatest story, "The Magic Garden," and is may be seen on the screen as an F. B. O. release at the Liberty theatre next Sunday when it begins a two-day run.

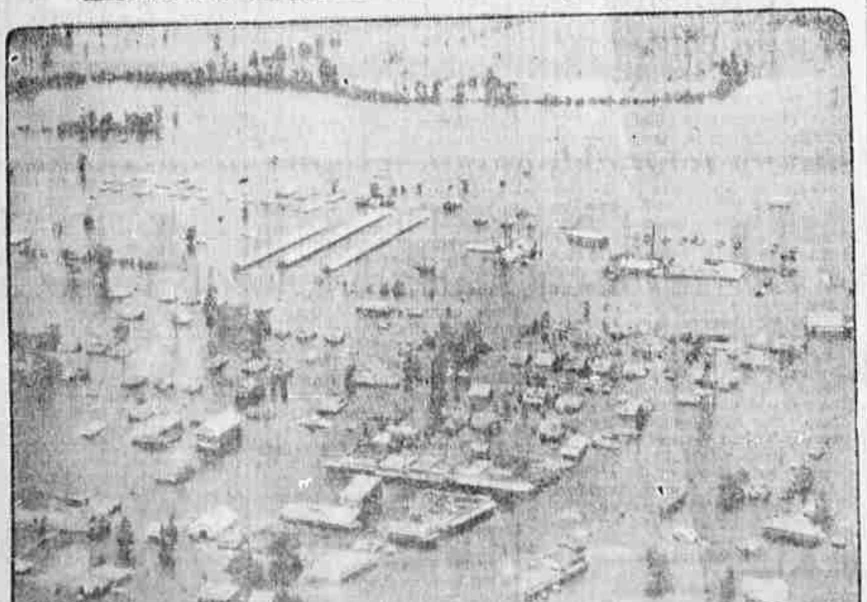
Entire Town Is Almost Submerged by Floods



This aerial photograph, taken by William Day, flying cameraman for NEA Service in the Mississippi valley shows how the greatest flood in history has made a huge inland sea of rich farm lands and villages. The picture shows the town of Leland, Miss., with every house flooded. An additional rise of a few feet would have completely submerged the town. Airplane Photo, Copyright, 1927, NEA Service

Canada Prepares for Arid Influx

Revised Liquor Law, Effective on May 15, Will Enable Multitude of Americans to Satisfy Thirst Under "Home" Owning Status—Real Estate Values Boom, Hotels and Clubs Being Erected.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 5.—Canadian "homes" for thirsty Americans are being prepared along the Ontario border.

The real estate activity is in anticipation of the inauguration of Ontario's liquor control system, tentatively set for May 15. Repeal of the province's temperance act has aroused interest over a stretch of miles on the Canadian side of the border in possibilities for developing places that will meet the Ontario definition of "homes."

The government will sell "hard" liquor, and either residents or tourists may drink in their own homes, tourists camps, hotels and boarding houses coming under this classification. Liquor permits will be sold to citizens, and a citizen, under the meaning of the law, is anyone who has resided 30 days in the community. A liquor permit, good for 30 days, will be sold for $2.

A rush of millions of Americans is expected during the summer months, and extensive plans are being made to assist them in being "at home."

Along the Niagara frontier, ranging between Lakes Erie and Ontario, there are many small hotels ready to cater to Americans, as they attempted to do when 4.4 beer went on sale in 1925. The beer law permitted serving at tables, but under the new regulations rooms must be made available.

For years many wealthy Americans have owned Canadian homes. The influx this year, however, will not be confined to the rich.

Bridge Boosts Realty

The construction of the international "peace bridge," across the Niagara between Buffalo and Fort Erie, Ont., caused a distinct advance in real estate values, and the new liquor law has added another decided boost.

Since the bridge was built the vast undeveloped farming section west of Fort Erie and along the north shore has opened to Americans possibilities of home sites and there has been a movement away from crowded suburbs on the American side. That situation has existed for several years, but it has increased since the liquor law became a certainty.

A real estate firm, making a specialty of developing Canadian property, says figures quoted for Lake Erie waterfront property five years ago must now be multiplied by ten to be interesting.

The boom is not confined to border residents. Orders for land from natives have met competition from other sections, and people from the south and east have joined the line with money in their hands.

Entertainment for the visitors will not be entirely liquid. At a point overlooking Lake Erie is to be built a large clubhouse, the nucleus of a country club, which is to have Americans as members. The week-end possibilities are regarded as extensive.

Building Permits Multiply

Building inspector George Wood of Windsor has reported issuance of permits totaling $1,290,000 for the first two and one-half months of the year, exceeding by several hundred thousand dollars the figures for the same period last year.

A ten story hotel is being built at Windsor, as another hotel contemplates the construction of an addition. Walkerville, adjoining Windsor, has reported building activity, and Ford promises to be an oasis of cafes. Riverside, near by, also has set a record for building permits issued.

Sault Ste. Marie has begun its preparations for an army of visitors. An addition to a hotel is being built and five tourist camps are under construction on St. Mary's river and other locations in the vicinity of Canadian Sault. Hundreds of cottages are being put up, scattering from St. Joseph's Island to Batchewana Bay.

Sault St. Marie, Mich., expects to have a place in the picture as entrance to Canadian territory is through the American Sault. However, a new hotel being built there will not be completed until September.

A portion of the American capital being invested in Canada will find its way directly to the liquor industry. As announcement has been made of a $1,000,000 brewery to be constructed at Bridgeburg, opposite Buffalo, with a Canadian president, but a former Buffalo brewer as vice president.

Law Minions Watchful

Two direct effects of the new law will be felt on the American side of the border. One will be a decided increase of the customs forces at strategic points to prevent the Americans from transferring whiskey from their Canadian homes to other homes in the United States.

The number of conventions to be held during the summer at Niagara Falls and Buffalo will show a decided increase over those of previous years if the early reservations are indicative of later convention activity.

Canadians, too, have given thought to precautions against violations of the law. Some village officials, heeding the warning of dry members of parliament, are taking steps to increase their police forces.

National pride will not condone overdoing the elatest prosperity "good thing" in some localities. Work on a building intended to house a night club operated on a roadhouse plan, with facilities for accommodating dozens of Americans, has been suspended at Welland, Ont., in the face of a severe frown of public opinion.
