MAN FIGURING IN ELOPEMENT CASE IS KNOWN HERE

PORTLAND, May 13—Love still laughs at locksmiths, and at railroad time tables, shorthand notes and typewriters, and even, on occasions, at the old job itself.

Capit plays some queer pranks. So it happens that news has been received of the wedding in Hood River of Miss Dorothy Donlon and Edward R. Morris, both formerly well known employes of the Portland Chamber of Commerce whose budding romance that after vicissitudes of separation and the pleadings of other suitors, has finally blossomed to the surprise of many of Miss Donlon's friends and relatives, who had believed that her heart belonged to another.

Miss Donlon, or Mrs. Morris now, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Donlon, No. 1174 East Hoyt street. Until about one year ago she had been a stenographer in the office of E. N. Weinbaum of the trade and commerce department of the Portland Chamber. Since that time she has been employed as stenographer by Closset & Devers, coffee dealers, No. 521 Pottysgrove street.

"Eddie" Morris was with the Chamber for five years in various capacities, having been in the executive office with W. D. Dodson, general manager, when he left last August to enter sales work for the Chevrolet Motor Car company. He is located at Yakima, Wash., and is there now with his bride so far as Portland friends are aware.

"We were quite surprised when we received a telegram telling us of the wedding," said Donlon, father of Mrs. Morris, "and as yet we have not been advised as to details or future plans."

Arthur Devers of the firm of Closset & Devers said that he and Mrs. Morris' fellow employees were much surprised also as they had believed that she had made other plans entire for her wedding.

Mrs. Morris is about 29 years of age. Morris is several years her senior.

The Edward Morris, mentioned in connection with the Portland elopement case, is well known in Roseburg. He was born in this city, the son of the late R. C. Morris, who for many years was a railroad engineer employed out of Roseburg. Edward Morris attended public school here, moving to Portland with his parents about twenty years ago. The family is well known to many of the older residents of the city.
