Woman's Club Closes Successful Club Year

The last business meeting of the year of the Roseburg Woman's club was held Tuesday afternoon at the I. O. O. F. hall, Mrs. W. S. Jost, the retiring president, presiding. Annual reports of the officers and chairmen of various committees serving during the club year were given.

The club house board was ordered to look into the matter of finding a suitable club house for the club and make a report at the picnic at which the club women will gather in June for their last time together as a club until fall.

Election of officers was held, Mrs. Wm. Bell being elected to the office of president, which office she held in the club 13 years ago. Mrs. A. G. McMillin was elected first vice-president, Mrs. Carl B. Neal, second vice-president; Mrs. H. D. Harris, recording secretary; Mrs. Albert Minturn, corresponding secretary; board of directors, Mrs. W. S. Jost, Mrs. Dean Bubar, Mrs. L. B. Skinner, Mrs. C. S. Heinline and Mrs. Foster Butner.

The officers who will take charge of club activities next fall will be installed at the picnic to be held the first Tuesday in June.

Mrs. A. A. McMillin is the official delegate to the state convention at Bend this summer.

The following is the annual report of the president, Mrs. W. S. Jost, on the club year:

"The Roseburg Woman's Club is closing a very busy and helpful year. The activities sponsored by the club were Moroni Olsen Players, who presented two excellent dramas; Silver Teas for scholarship loan fund; endowment day and Doernbecker hospital, all major projects of the Federated Woman's club and the Christmas seal sale.

"To raise funds for a club house the club gave a banquet for the Shriners. It held a flower exchange, gave a home talent play and are getting out a city directory as well as holding a rose show during the Strawberry festival. A food sale was given to help the charities. The club held meetings twice each month with excellent programs and fair attendance.

"W. G. Paul and Rev. Dr. Matthews of Roseburg, Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, Mrs. J. G. Frankel and Mr. Schappel of Portland have addressed the women. Some good papers by the local club members and excellent music by courtesy of home musicians have made the meetings most enjoyable.

"A joint meeting with the Daughters of the American Revolution leaves a pleasant memory as also does the lovely Christmas party at Mrs. L. B. Skinner's and the visit of Mrs. Sarah A. Childs, the founder of the Roseburg Woman's Club."

Roseburg Folk to Attend Convention O. S. T. A.

The 12th annual convention of the Music Teachers Association in Eugene next week will center the attention of music patrons as well as members of the association. A number aside from the delegates from the Douglas county chapter are planning to leave Wednesday night to be present for the sessions on Thursday and Friday.

The University of Oregon School of Music building will be the convention headquarters. Thursday morning will be devoted to the business meeting. Piano discussion will be held, Dent Mowrey being in hearge. Mrs. C. S. Heinline of Roseburg will be one of the speakers on the program.

Last year Roseburg, as convention host, established a precedent by arranging for the luncheons and other affairs for the delegates and visitors, each affair being given by the booster clubs of the city. Eugene this year is following this idea and the noon luncheon on Thursday will be given by the Chamber of Commerce.

A sight-seeing tour will be one of the features of the afternoon and later at the convention headquarters violin discussion, led by Franck Eichenlaub, will be held. In the evening a no-host dinner will be held at the Woman's Club and afterward the Murray-Warner Art Museum will be visited. A concert will be given by the University of Oregon School of Music at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Friday morning a no-host breakfast will be at the Woman's building, followed by a business meeting and election of state officers. Voice discussion will be a part of the program. A song recital and concert by the O. A. C. School of Music will follow luncheon. Dinner in the evening will be given by the three service clubs of Eugene for the visitors. A feature of the evening will be the concerts by Portland artists.

Baby Parade Next Week Attracting Interest

The baby parade, one part of the annual Strawberry Carnival which is most enjoyable, is attracting a great deal of interest and it is hoped by the committee in charge that every baby, whose mother and father are interested in boosting the city, will be entered in the parade this year.

The parade will be at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and very substantial prizes are being offered, by those in charge, for the winners. Several classes are to be catered this year affording much opportunity for novel ideas. The parade will only be for a short distance so that the little tots will not be tired by a long walk. The Boys' Band will lead the parade. Mrs. T. H. Ness is chairman of the committee handling the parade and is being assisted by Mrs. Horace Berg.

Business Women Have Enjoyable Meeting

The Business and Professional Women's Club held a most enjoyable meeting on Friday evening at the Brand road stand north of Roseburg. Reports of the convention delegates formed an interesting part of the evening's program and reports were also heard from the committees which handled the May bazaar and dance sponsored recently by the club. It has been decided by the organization to make this an annual May Day fete.

Among the important announcements made by the delegates was that the 1928 state convention of the clubs might be held in Roseburg. Although the Roseburg club is comparatively young the members have successfully carried on a great many activities and it is believed that the club is perfectly capable of having charge of the convention here. The invitation asking the other clubs to Roseburg for the 1928 sessions was extended by the president of the local club, Dr. Lucetta Smith, but no reply has been had as yet, although it is believed likely that the invitation will be accepted.

The Coos Bay and Coquille clubs has extended an invitation to the Roseburg club to meet them at some point half-way between this city and the coast in the near future for a joint picnic. A committee was appointed at the meeting to handle the affair and cooperate with the other clubs. Elvan Strader is chairman and will be assisted by Mattie Perry and Emily Judd.

Among the activities planned by the club for the summer months is a bridge party to be given the second week in June. Mrs. S. L. Kidder is chairman of the affair and others on the committee and Mrs. C. H. Heinline, Mrs. J. K. Falbe, Mrs. W. S. Jost and Mrs. J. E. Sawyers.

A decision was made by the club that it be represented in some manner at the carnival next week and the following committee was appointed to make arrangements, May Baldwin, Elvan Strader, May Fisher and Lucille Lenox.

Plans were discussed by the members to sew for a linen chest, each member making a piece for the chest, which at some future date will be raffled off. Mrs. Storylies is chairman of the committee in charge and is being assisted by Emily Jos tand Lotta Barnes.

The program for the evening was arranged by Mrs. W. S. Carpenter, Mrs. W. E. Ott, Lucille Sappington and Lucille Lenox. At the close of the evening refreshments were served by the committee, Mrs. A. H. Perrin, Mrs. A. B. Crawford and Edith Gilmore.

RONALD COLMAN and VILMA BANKY in "THE NIGHT OF LOVE"

LIBERTY THEATRE

"Night of Love" Laid in Feudal Spain

Swashbuckling gallants, dastardly villians, brave men and fair women in a dazzling, sure-fire, swift-moving romance of feudal Spain, credit Samuel Goldwyn with another one hundred per cent success with "The Night of Love" and definitely place George Fitzmaurice as one of the ten best directors of the year.

The picture, which opens at the Liberty Theatre Sunday, makes another "knockout" for the Samuel Goldwyns' famous team, Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky. Colman never looked more handsome than he does as the brave and romatic Spanish bandit, seeking revenge against the dastardly Duke for the murder of his childhood sweetheart.

Miss Banky is more beautiful than ever, if that is possible, and as the Duches de la Garda, kidnapped by Colman on her wedding night, she fights and loves with a verve and abandon that moves audiences almost to cheers. It is evident that the fair Vilma, who came from far Hungary a little over a year ago, has progressed marvelously during her stay in America, for, in addition to being one of the most beautiful women on the screen, she is today the most accomplished of the younger actresses and in "The Night of Love" makes her character an outstanding triumph.

Tony's Intelligence Proven in Mix Film

Probably the best known horse in the world, Tom Mix's Tony, has a leading role in "Outlaws of Red River," Fox Films latest release, in which Mix plays the stellar part of the Falcon, a Texas Ranger.

Tony is said to be at his best in this film, performing several difficult feats that require an almost human intelligence. The film is showing at the Liberty Theatre today.

Eddie Cantor and Jobyna Ralston in the Paramount Picture 'Special Delivery'

ANTLERS THEATRE

New Laugh Special Stars Eddie Cantor

Uproarious comedy with a strong flavor of melodrama, blended with a touch of pathos and a keen sense of human psychology these are the ingredients that Eddie Cantor has used in the creation of "Special Delivery" his second starring vehicle for Paramount which opens Sunday at the Antlers for 3 day's engagement.

Funnier than the stage play was his screen version of "Kid Boots" but funnier still is his "Special Delivery" with its romance and experiences of a rookie postman, Cantor is just naturally funny anyhow. Give him such a role as Eddie, the letter carrier, and then let him work out his own ideas, and he is a riot. The interesting thing about him, though, is the fact that you always find yourself laughing with and not at him.

That is essentially Cantor. No matter how funny he is, he always enlists your sympathy for the character he portrays. From the very moment that you first see him as the mis-fit mail clerk you can't help feeling a bit sorry for him while at the same time you can't help laughing at the situations and predicaments he gets into; and he gets into plenty.

"Special Delivery" is a picture that you will want to see. It is Cantor at his best and if he follows through in his future pictures along the lines established in this one the screen has found a new type of comedy and a new type of comedian.

Supporting Cantor is an unusually well rounded out cast. Jobyna Raiston is the girl, sweet, charming and attractive.

WINTER LAYERS INCREASE REVENUE OF FARM FLOCK

Prices of farm eggs as well as of live and dressed poultry are usually highest during fall and the early winter months. Profits from the farm flock can be materially increased by taking advantage of this market situation in handling the flock, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Timing production to the market demand can be accomplished best by hatching early and by having early maturing strains.

Most of the revenue from the farm flock is obtained from eggs. It is important therefore to develop the flock from good laying strains. This requires careful selection of hens that mature early, that lay best after they begin, that seldom go broody, and that lay well throughout the late summer and fall.

The size of the flock is an important factor to consider also. aMintaining about 20 0or 400 birds enables the flock to be divided to advantage for breeding purposes. A flock of 200, for instance, can readily be divided into two units—50 yearlings and 150 pullets; and a flock of 400 into 100 yearlings and two units of 150 pullets each. The pullets are used primarily for egg production and the yearlings for breeding purposes. Yearlings are preferable to pullets as breeders because usually they lay larger eggs which hatch into bigger chicks.

Moreover, the yearling hens have gone through a molt the preceding fall, and thus have had a rest prior to the breeding season, and for that reason they usually produce stronger chicks than pullets. A still more important reason for using yearlings as breeders is that they should be only the best birds of the pullet flock of the preceding laying year, and the continuous selection from year to year should assist greatly in improving the quality of the pullets raised each year. Farmers should give attention to the selection of their breeding stock every year and block units of about 200 or 400 birds will enable them to do this to advantage.

Since pullets normally do not begin laying until they are at laest seven months old it is important that they be hatched early enough to permit laying during the season of high prices—from October to February. These and other points of interest to the farm flock owner are discussed in Farmers' Bulletin 1524-F, now ready for distribution. Copies may be obtained, as long as the supply lasts, by application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

FARM REMINDERS

Scratching litter in the poultry house is examined daily to see that all grain is cleaned up by the fowls. If some is left less is fed.

Grain is fed to hens in such amounts that they are never entirely satisfied except when they go to roost, says the O. A. C. extension service.

Over feeding and not underfeeding is the cause of many poultry ailments in Oregon, says the Oregon experiment station.

Cull beans are a satisfactory poultry feed but are not liked by fowls in the raw state. Ground or crooked and mixed into the mash they are readily eaten.

Fowls have no teeth to grind their food with, so grit is absolutely necessary to perform this action, says the experiment station.

Salt fed in large quantities is poisonous to fowls, but one pound to each 100 pounds of dry mash is desirable as an appetizer.

A poultry house in the orchard gives two incomes per acre—valuable fertilizer and shade for hot summers.

Poultry to be dressed is kept without feed for at least 12 hours before killing.

Two running feet of open hooper space is allowed to chickens for best results in Oregon.

Chicks weigh about a pound in Oregon when they are 6 weeks old, says the experiment station.

When pullets grow combs before they are five months old the amount of mash is reduced or the contents changed, but care is taken that pullets are not stunted in their growth.

Some cod-liver oil mixed in with the dry mash keeps fowls in better flesh and promotes firmer egg shells.

Pullets and old hens are fed separately. Otherwise old hens steal the feed from the pullets. The requirements of each are different.

Detroit Will Have Outfield of Swat Kings if Bob Fothergill Wins Out This Year.

BY BILLY EVANS

Bob Fothergill, pudgy outfielder of the Detroit Tigers, away to a good start at the bat, cherishes designs on the American League swat crown.

If Fothergill should realize his ambition and top the American League batters, it would give the Detroit club an outfield combination without compare in the majors.

Harry Heilmann has thrice won the batting honors. Last year Heinie Manush won great fame by topping the Johnsonian swatters. Should Fothergill come through, it would give the Tigers an outfield trio of battling champions.

Fothergill has had a varied career with the Detroit Tigers. Despite the fact that he has consistently batted .300 in the majors and minors, not until this season did Bob definitely win for himself a job as a regular.

Fleet of foot, a brilliant fielder, despite the 200 pounds he carries and a .300 batter, he was not used regularly by Ty Cobb for various reasons. This season, the job of playing left field has been definitely assigned to him without any reservations and he is more than making good.

Coming to Detroit after one year in the minors, with Bloomington in the Three-Eye League, Fothergill was sent to Rochester in the International for development. Playing under irrepressible George Stallings, Bob came fast and after swatting the pill for the gorgeous average of .383 in 1922, he was pronounced ready for the majors.

The following season he was used in 101 games by Detroit, and batted .315. During 1924 he played only 54 games and in 1925, less than half the season, 71 contests.

Last year, due to the fact that Manager Cobb was able to play only about half time, Fothergill got his big opportunity to make good and he more than delivered.

For a goodly part of last year he led the American League in batting, a late season slump killing his chances to win the championship. At that he finished a tie for third with his teammate, Harry Heilmann, only 10 points away from Heinie Manush, who won the championship.

Prone to put on weight in the winter, Fothergill is always the life of the party during the spring training trips. He is constantly kidded by the rest of the athletes for the many hours of extra work he is forced to put in in order to remove the surplus.

"You boys do all your laughing now, I'll do mine after the season starts," was Bob's reply at San Antonio this spring.

"Fifty times for you around the ball park, Fothergill, and then you can call it a day."

Starting where he left off last fall, Fothergill's hitting has been one of the early season sensations of major league play. In the west versus west series between the American League clubs, he batted .500.

"If I can just lead the league this year, I will have plenty to say to Heilmann and Manush about the art of batting next spring," is the way Fothergill puts it.

Right now he is a hot favorite to come through.

Fothergill, a right-handed batter has a rather peculiar crouch style at the plate and like most great hitters has a tendency to look bad on a certain style pitched ball, only to come back and hit the next ball, pitched the same way, out of the ball park. While he takes a good swing at the ball, it is not nearly so healthy a cut as that of Babe Ruth, there being more of wrist-snap to his style.
