SLOW PROGRESS MADE IN TRYING TO OBTAIN JURY

9 Veniremen Tentatively Chosen at Retrial of De Autremont.

NEW PANEL IS DRAWN

Prejudice Against Penalty of Death and Physical Ills Excuse Most of Talesmen.

COURT HOUSE, Jacksonville, Ore., June 7—Slow progress was made this morning in the selection of a jury in the retrial of Hugh de Autremont. When the court recessed at noon, there were nine veniremen in the box, subject to challenge of state and defense. Two of these were passed at the morning session. Forty three veniremen had been examined. It is forecasted that the opening statements of both sides will be made Thursday and that the first witness will be called to the stand Thursday afternoon. The court dismissed four veniremen at the opening of court, for physical disability.

Special Venires Draw COURT HOUSE, Jacksonville, Ore., June 7—The second day of the retrial of Hugh de Autremont began this morning with six tentative jurors in the box, and a special venire of 35 names, drawn late yesterday, to augment the rapidly depleting ranks of veniremen.

Out of a list of 110, twenty-seven were excused yesterday for prejudices against the death penalty, circumstantial evidence, or acquaintance with the slain trainman. Nine were excused for physical disability, three because they were registered pharmacists, and eleven because of illness in their families or pressure on business.

Paul de Autremont, of Eugene, Oregon, father of the defendant, was in the court room and took a chair beside his son and divorced wife.

7th Tentative Juror J. W. Dunlap of Medford, the first venireman examined, said he had opinions, and expressed them and read a magazine article dealing with the crime, by Professor C. D. Heinrich of the University of California. Professor Heinrich will be a witness for the state and his scientific researches following the holdup, constitute a vital link in the chain of evidence. Dunlap said he harbored a grudge against a Southern Pacific special agent of Josephine county, but that he could dismiss it. After an exhaustive examination by the defense, Dunlap was passed by both sides—the seventh tentative juror in the box.

2 Excused, 1 Passed Don Binyard of Medford, clerk, was excused on account of prejudices against the death penalty and Justin Smith of Medford, clerk, was called. Smith was opposed to the finding of all guilty, for the act of one, in a conspiracy. The state interposed a challenge, which the defense resisted, and the court excused Smith with the comment that he had disqualified himself. "to set in this case, or any other, by his statement he would refuse to follow the instructions of the court."

George Stewart of Medford, clerk, next drawn, was opposed to the death penalty, under any circumstances, and was excused. E. E. Gore of Medford, insurance agent, said he went to school with the slain man, but did not think it would sway him, and held no prejudices or opinions. Under defense examination, Gore said he had "no opinions—but ideas" on the case. Gore was passed by both sides and was the eighth tentative juror.

Excused and Dismissed Norman Anderson, farmer, Medford, examined next, declared that he had a fixed opinion, from hearing one witness at the first trial which could not be changed, and was excused.

P. J. Fleck of Jacksonville was next called and was opposed to the death penalty on circumstantial evidence, and was excused.

James Dailey of Medford was opposed to the death penalty in any case, and was excused. John O. Riggs, of Ashland, merchant, held fixed opinions and was dismissed.

Don S. Clark, orchardist, Medford, held unchangeable views on the case, and was excused.

George E. Corey, merchant of Medford, next drawn, opposed the death penalty and was dismissed.

E. O. Hurley of Medford, holding religious scruples against serving on Saturday, was excused by the court.

E. J. Wright of Sams Valley, opposed the death penalty, and W. W. Hittle, of Gold Hill, was called in his place and tentatively accepted.

E. M. Wilson, of Medford, certified accountant, was against the death penalty on circumstantial evidence and was excused. Stewart Ditsworth of Eagle Point was next drawn and expressed opposition to the death penalty on circumstantial evidence, and was dismissed.

Charles E. Gray of Rogue River, next called, also was opposed to the death penalty on circumstantial evidence. He was excused.

BLACK SLAVERY CASE IN GEORGIA BEFORE U. S. JURY

Conditions Like Those of Ante-Bellum Days Are Alleged Against Farm Owner.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) ATHENS, Ga., June 7.—A picture of plantation negroes hoeing corn and chopping cotton, under threats of death and suffering personal violence when incurring the displeasure of their wealthy employer has been held up to a federal jury, sitting in the trial of Dr. W. R. King, physician-farmer, on charges of poisoning. Bennett Arwood, a white man who worked on Dr. King's Oglethorpe county farm, testified that he was struck down with a pistol for suggesting that he attend a barbecue on the farm. Arwood said he mentioned the matter to Dr. King while at a well drawing water for livestock. His employer felled him with a pistol, he testified and ended the argument with: "I'll shoot you." Prosecution witnesses were heard at the opening of the trial as the government laid the foundation for its specific charge that Dr. King forced Benny Dorsey, a negro, to work on his farm without pay. An array of more than three score witnesses, several summoned by Dr. King, was held in readiness today by opposing counsel. One of the witnesses came from Danville, Ill., with a story of cruelties that last week caused Governor Clifford Walker to order an investigation. James Felton, no longer armed guard on the King plantation and that five men were slain. He escaped about three weeks ago, he said, after working more than a year. Mrs. Bennett Arwood testified yesterday that she and her husband were threatened with incarceration should they attempt to leave the farm. "Dr. King promised me $1.25 a day," the husband testified, "and all I got was food and no clothes, except one time he gave me a quarter."

Mussolini Assigns Italian Women to Six Duties of National Fascism

ROME, June 6—Woman's place in the home, but not necessarily her own home, according to women Fascist organizations which are training several hundred thousand girls and women for productive occupations closely connected with domesticity. Signora Eliza Majer Rizzoldi head of the feminine Fascists, said the nation's crying need for nurses will have been satisfied within a few years. Five thousand trained nurses have been graduated in special courses and 35,000 more are being trained. More than 100,000 women are being instructed as scientific farmers with the intention of relieving men of such work as animal breeding, truck gardening, fruit farming and horticulture of all types. Premier Mussolini, believing "a mother's kitchen budget to be the cornerstone of healthy national economy," has instructed women to carry out propaganda in favor of home rather than imported products. The organization groups train each member as a lecturer and provide her with data so that even casual conversations prove of propagandistic utility. Feminine Fascists advise producers of the necessity of changes and improvements.

The most far-reaching of the six roles assigned to women by Il Duce—the others being propagandistic, sanitary, agricultural, scholastic and protection of home products—is "moral tutelage of labor," which means that social work among laboring classes of both sexes is their duty.

Despite the fact that a principle of Fascism is to keep women out of political activity, it is pointed out that they have equal rights in "politics" of the new national labor unions. In several unions women have commanding positions. Some say that women will be permitted to be deputies when the present chamber of deputies, conforming with Mussolini's plan, is transformed into a "chamber of labor" representing the productive population of Italy by trades and profession instead of by geographical regions.
